MR. BLAINE'S REVIEW

He Sums Up the Issues of the Campaign.

LETTERS OF THE CANDIDATES

-Party Platforms Compared -The Most Remarkable Thing in the Canvisa, It His Estimation, is the Bringing Inte-Frominence of the Federal Elections Bill

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. -Mr. Ellalue's Ione promised atterance on the Presidentia. election of 1892 appears in the November number of the "North American Re-view," which is published to-day. It occupies thirteen pages of the "Review,

Mr. Blaine notes the lack of excitemen attending the present elections, contrasting it with the turmoil of interest than characterized the campaign of the older Harrison. This change of the public interest in such contests, he angrests, may be accounted for by the growth in population and the consequent absorption of interest in vast commercial and financial ubsidence in the future of extreme par tiannalip.

Mr. Biaine gives special attention to the letters of the Prisidential candidates. Of President Harrison's letter he say of his among other things: "Perhaps none of his predecessors has made so examistive, and none a more clear presentation of the questions involved."

Mr. Cleveland's letter is subjected to a searching criticism. Mr. Blaine finds that, in greater measure than Mr. Har rison's, it departs from the platform of his party; in fact, that "Mr. Cleveland has made the platform upon which he is now before the people," and that "Mr. Cleveland's departures from the positions of his party's platform on the question of free trade confirm the impression, water has been general, that a large proportion of the Democratic party believe in pro-

Mr. Blaine makes caustic comments upon Mr. Cleveland's utterances on the currency and State banks. He upholds the Republican policy of granting liberal pensions to veterans of the war. 128 The most remarkable thing in the Pres-idential campaign of 1892 Mr. Blaine regards as "the manner which, in some sections of the country, all other issues have been put out of sight, and the Force hill slone brought into prominence. He compliments the editor of the "Sun as the author of this policy. The representations made as to the purpose and the effect of the Force bill, however, he declares to be inconsistent with the spirit of President Harrison's letter.

Mr. Blaine is full and explicit as to his treatment of the subject of reciprocity. He asserts that a material increase has been caused in the trade of this country by reciprocal treaties with other countries, and quotes figures in relation to the increase of trade with the Lesward and Windward Islands and Cuba. He predicts in relation to Cuba that "we shall conquer by commerce far better than by force of armies, and cordially establish such mutual interests between Cubs and this country that commercially the two countries will be one."

Dealing with the claim of the Democratic party to be the Jeffersonian party, Mr. Blaine says: "It would surprise Jefferson, if he could once more appear in the flesh, to learn that he is held as endorser of all the principles and measures advocated by the Democratic party to-day. It is, perhaps, not worth while to enter into any caborate argument on the subject, but the Democracy owes no little of its success to the persistence with which its adherents have made their disciples believe this pre-tension through all the mutations of their par-y. It was equally true, it must be supposed, when Mr. Buchanan, a con-firmed Federalist, was the President-elect of the Democracy; though it is vell known that the object of Mr. Jefferson's most intense dislike was the Federal

'In valu it is pointed out that the position of Jefferson on any subject was di-rectly the reverse of the Democratic position; he is duly quoted on the next convention, and a new oath of allegiance is taken to his principles. In 1801, after a severe contest, Jefferson came to the Presidency as the founder and head of the Republican party. The prefix Democratiwas sometime, though seldom, used. The tenacity with which Jefferson held to the protective principle was only propor tioned to the necessities of the country. His action in 1807, when he declined to recommend the repeal or alteration of the revenue law, after a surplus of $14,000,-000 had been accumulated, puts bin in the sharpest contrast to Mr. Cleveland, who, in his term of office, treated the surp)us accumulated as the sum of all

In conclusion Mr. Blaine calls attention to the essential agreement of the two parties on the great unsjority of issues. "It is interesting and suggestive," he says, "to look over the platforms of the two parties, and see how much alike they are in several vital measures after the stated. If parties would aim to discover and define those subjects on which there is a vital difference of opinion, and would confine discussion to those issues, it would not only simplify the contest and be a relief to the candidates, but would also greatly help in arriving at the truth, which is the uithmate object of popular discussion and popular siec

the Japanese Disease Canses Alarm

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 -- A new disease contagious and fatal, non-reached this port, causing much alarm among the health officers at quarantine. The disease is imported from Japan, where it is known as hert bert.

The back it, P. Cann arrived off quarantine yesterday, 170 days out from Hollo, and reported that two deaths from the disease had occurred on route. Seaman Thomas Russell died on Sep. 23, and Carpenter John Nugent on Oct. 8. Both were buried at sea.

When the ship arrived at Norfolk, Va. the first mais and seven men, who were stricken with beri beri, were put ashore

The disease is unknown here. The authorities are at a loss how to handle it should other ships follow with the disease on board.

The Cann is laden with sugar and tea. and makes the third vessel which has reached this port in the past four weeks, on which death from this disease has been reported.

The disease is said to resemble yellow fever somewhat, but it is more fatal.

The Cann will be detained at Quarantino and thoroughly disinfected, while stringent measures will be adopted to cope with the disease from other vessels arriving from the fover stricken Japanese

TO CARRY THE MATTER HIGHER

U. S. Grand Jury Will be Asked to Procaed Against Manmouth Park Officers,

ASSURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 24.—There is great indignation among the members composing the law and order league and the churches of Monmouth county because the recent grand jury failed to indict officers and bookmakers of the Park Association. They are greatly enraged because the supporters of the park insinuate that the Rev. S. Edward Young. the Secretary of the County League, was not in Freehold while the grand jury was in session because he was afraid to give his testimony.

In Mr. Young's sermon on the subject, last night he spoke at length on the sub-ject, refuting the charge. It is the intention of the Law and Order League to carry the matter before the United States grand jury, and the politicians and gamblers are much agitated over the proposed action.

TO KNIFE THE WARDEN

Perry Did Not Crave Liberty, But Revenge.

HIS LEASE OF FREEDOM WAS BRILLF.

Recentured Within the Priso. Walls-Struck Down by a Guard, and, It is Goported, Fatally Injured-The Escape-Excitement at Lyons Among Those Whom He Threatened to Kill.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 24.—It was a very brief period of liberty which Oilver Curtis Perry enjoyed after his escape from his cell.

He was captured inside the prison wall, and the only result of his desperate attempt to escape is to make his condition more miscrable.

After escaping from the wing in which his ceil was located, Perry boldly crossed the prison yard and hid in the basement of the broom shop, where Convict Johnson was murdered by a fellow prisoner only a few weeks ago.

When the night had sufficiently advanced for the darkness to conceal his movements, Perry tried to gain access to the broom shop. It was closely guarded, however, and he next proceeded to the marble shop. Here again be was frus-trated in his attempt to gain admittance, as the guards were on the alert, and his efforts attracted their attention.

Perry started to run as soon as he found that his presence was discovered. He went directly to the collar shop where a large number of knives are kept, the fugitive's one idea seeming to

As he neared the collar shop he was seen by Keeper Tunis, who stood in the shadow of the building. When within ten fast of the guard, Perry was challenged and ordered to balt. He did not rifle over the convicts head.

This had no effect upon Perry, other than to change the course in which he was running and to increase his speed. his change of direction was fatal, however, as it caused him to pass within reach of Keeper Smith, who, without waiting to challenge the fleeing man, struck him over the head with his heavy night stick.

So powerful was the blow that the cane was broken, and Perry was stretched un-conscious at the keeper's feet, the blood flowing freely from a deep wound. Perry was at once taken to the dungeon where come without even the comfort of a board to rest upon.

It is said that after his capture Perry told Warden Durston that it was not liberty be sought, but an opportunity to stick a knite into him. He has conceived a deep narred for the Varden during his long confinement in the screen cell.

The instrument which Perry used to dig through the wall of his cell was the fron leg of his bedstead, which he had managed to loseen from its fastening.

After the wily little despendo had been safely lodged in a dungoon the extra guards were relieved.

Warden Durston assembled them in the keepers' hall and in an address warned them not to discuss the matter of Perry's escape and capture in public. Despite these precautions, however, the particulars have transpired.

A rumor is in circulation that Perry was very seriously hurt by Keeper Smith's blow, and that death may resuit. The rumor caunot be confirmed.

FEARED PERRY'S VENGEANCE.

His Escape Caused Alarm at Lyons, N. T., Among Rarlroad Employes.

The especial object of his hatred was Deputy Sheriff Collius, who foresd him to surrouder, and Perry made no bones of talking of the revenge he intended to have upon the official.

The employee at the New York Central railroad station, and in fact, nearly every one who had in any way been counseted with his being landed behind the bars denunciation. He promised each and every one a dose of cold lead if he ever got out—and he said he would in short

These threats of Perry were at once recalled when the news of his escape was received by those against whom they were directed, and there was a decided feeling of anxiety that the desperado would come back to make his words good. Collins didn't appear at all scared, but the news filled the employes at the railroad stations and in the big yards here with unpleasant apprehension.

Little knots of men gathered here and there, the escape was discussed, and the stirring scenes in which Perry figured last winter were retold.

The mere mention of Perry's name was enough to cause a shiver to run through these assemblages. Most of the men at once armed themselves in anticipation of the robber's reappearance in this section.
