WHERE WE ARE AT!
SECRET OF THE RECENT DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS.
POLITICAL METHODS IN POLITICS
The Republican Plan of Campaign Compared With the Work of the Democrats Under Tammany Hall.

It is not difficult to understand why victory has perched upon the Democratic banner this fall. The solution is plain--practical politics, conducted by practical politicians, did it. The Republicans can afford to take example from the Democratic methods of conducting campaigns. When the Democrats want anything they ask for it and if it does not come they don't hesitate to try to take it. They take no risks and always give themselves the benefit of the doubt on all questions. They are aggressive and they win.

The pride of the Democrats of the country to-day is Tammany Hall--Tammany, the villainous, thieving, blackmailing Tammany. Strange that such a disreputable organization should poll such a vote throughout the country after standing before some of the most eminent and influential Democrats in the country and defying their wrath. But Tammany "got there." Tammany had its poll because when it had power she applied it and formed a foundation for a pull. Offices were made wholesale with ample salaries and perquisites. Those who failed to get office and were without means of livelihood were given employment in some department. In other words, Tammany spread butter upon the bread and those who received it were placed in a position that when they attempted to kick they were obliged to think twice before hitting the hand that had fed them.

This is a system of practical politics and the man who speaks at it is an idiot. Tammany has no use for sentiment. It is a wholesale political establishment conducted on what appears to be admirable business principles.

Another practical policy Tammany Hall and its kindred organizations adopted was a system for raising funds. People put in office were called upon to "penny up" and they did so handsomely; and when the Democratic Governor of New York made appointments he also took care to see that each appointee was "fastened" to the end of a string, so that in case he should fall in with kickers, Republicans, or other bad company, he could be easily pulled back. In all these things Tammany has been practical.

We clean, goody-goody Republicans have received the praises of the people, but not the votes. We are not practical.

We Republicans also lack a sense of understanding and discrimination. Some of us could see at a glance the horrible situation in which Matt Quay placed himself when he retired to his room in a Harrisburg hotel one time and shared a bottle of wine and a box of cigars with a few friends, but when we heard of the Democratic officials who were defaulters to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars we could not seem to reach that point of appreciation of the fact that would warrant us to utter a word of criticism. Then, again, when the Democrats held up the Republican manufacturers in scorn before the eyes of the workmen how many--too many--of us goody-goody Republicans weakened at the knees and said, "Yes, I'm afraid it will hurt our party." But when Bries, of Briceville, was shown up as the convict labor promoter, we, the goody-goody Republicans, congratulated ourselves that Bries was not a Republican and let the matter drop.

We're in the soup and it serves us right. We are hayseeders with cobwebs over our eyes and the slap the Tammany tiger has given us with his tail is not wholly undeserved.

Eight years ago Sunday school politics were injected into the Republican management and the party suffered defeat.

Four years later the Republicans tried another method--a more practical one than the Sunday school picnic plan. The management was placed in the hands of men who knew something of practical politics and Harrison was elected.

This year. Excuse the tear. The Smiths, Magee, Shephers and Depews were placed in trust. Mr. Shepherd is an exceedingly religious man, so much so that he carries a biblical quotation at the head of the editorial column of his paper, the New York Mail and Express. The plan of campaign was based upon "pure methods." And there you are,

While Shepherd and Company were offering the public Simon pure unskimmed milk, Tammany Hall was making judicious use of the old oaken bucket that hung in the well. O, ye political saluts!

And to cap the climax the New York clergyman who was howling about Tammany Hall and its corrupt methods was arrested a few days before the election and fined $100 for violating the game laws of New York.

And there was Mr. Depew, the tall side-whiskered after-dinner talker. He shouted long and loud in nominating Harrison and then stole off to Europe. Had he staid in this country and tried to reason on politics with his N. Y. C. & H. R. R. employes as a certain corporation not a thousand miles from Schuylkill county did during the last campaign we would perhaps admit that he is of some use to others besides Depew.

Thanks to Messrs. Shepherd, Depew, Magee and company, Dudley, Platt, Miller, Clarkson, Quay and such men were turned down and, now, we goody-goody Republicans may revel in the glory that attends defeat to our party.

Oh! it makes me sick when I think of it and I am fast approaching the conclusion that unless the Republicans brush some of the hayseed from their persons and get down to the practical method adopted by the Democrats it will be many years before another Baby McKee romps about the White House nursery.

The Democrats call a spade a spade and not a pick. C. * Y.

REACHING OUT AGAIN!
THE READING AFTER ANOTHER BIG SCOOP.
THE DEAL A GIGANTIC ONE.
Reliable Reports Have it That a Controlling Interest in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Will be Secured

REPORTS coming from what appears to be a reliable source are to the effect that the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company is making arrangements to consummate another gigantic deal. It involves the purchase of a controlling interest in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

The Reading has had its eye upon this valuable interest for some time and the opportunity to get control of it is now said to be within reach.

Should the deal be consummated the Reading system will be very much enlarged and enhanced in value and will open many new markets for the anthracite field.

FIRE ANNIVERSARY.
Recollections of the Calamity of Nine Years Ago.
To-morrow will mark the ninth anniversary of the great conflagration that swept out of existence one-third of our town on November 12th, 1883. There are few people who were in this town at the time, and who are still here, who do not recall this anniversary each year. This year it was recalled to mind by a fire which a few days ago threatened to have a disastrous effect. Had that fire secured a little more headway we might have been called upon ere this to record a far more serious conflagration than that of '83. Fortunately, however, we had a good fire department at our backs and the reduction of the water supply to the people had held in reserve a sufficient supply to enable the firemen to keep the fire from getting beyond control. While the conflagration of November, '83, played havoc with the town we must admit that it was ultimately beneficial in its results. Many shanty structures of primitive mining town pattern were swept out of existence and replaced by more substantial and imposing brick structures. For several years after the new structures took the place of the destroyed ones our people took the view that the conflagration was a blessing in that sense, but it is feared that too many are forgetting the lesson that was taught by it. Within the past year scores of buildings have been erected in the town and over eighty per cent. of them are as dangerous as some of the worst that were destroyed nine years ago. They are virtually magnets for the fire fiend and if it ever secures a hold on some of them he will give the people a bad scare. It is well to always keep the conflagration of 1883 before the people who build such places.

An Obstinate Woman.
Wednesday evening a fight marked the wedding festivities in a house near Shenandoah City colliery occupied by a Polish family. A boarder was beaten by two men and the woman in charge of the house, Suits and counter-suits were instituted before "Squire Monaghan. The two men who helped the woman beat the boarder paid their fines. The beaten man was locked up because he could not pay. The woman was not pay her fine and after sending for her infant child said she was ready to go to jail. The squire gave the woman the option of promising to appear before him when required but, it is said, the woman was obstinate and finally she was committed to the lockup with the child. The constable allowed the woman to remain in the lobby of the lockup. Later in the evening she was released upon promising to appear when wanted.

I have used them for 'psais in the back and side arising from rheumatic and other causes never without deriving benefit from their application. They are easily applied and very comforting.
