MORE PENSIONS.

We agree with a contemporary that this is a timely moment for a demand for the creation of a permanent pension fund for the teachers employed in the public schools of this state.

The Presidential question is settled, and matters of state and local concern may now properly receive more attention. Among, such matters the HERALD knows of none more worthy to be taken up with earnestness and settled on principles of justice and equity than this one, which affects not merely the interests of our public school system itself.

This is not a novel proposition. It has been urged before, and it should be pressed upon the attention of the people and the Legislature until it is acted upon. It is time that something was done about it.

We intrust our children, so far as their education is concerned, to our public school teachers. The formacitizens and voters of this country is in their hands. That means that the destiny of the Republic itself is, under Providence, committed to their care audguidance. Surely no class of its ervants deserves more consideration at the hands of the state than these devoted men and women who give

The soldiers and sailors who fought for the Union are pensioned, and most justly. The widows and orphans and other dependents of those who fell in the great strife that kept the Republic one and indivisible and made every foot of its soil free are pensioned, too, and with a liberality which every true citizen approves. But the soldiers who followed the flag and the myriads of them who perished in its defense on a hundred battlefields were not more worthy of pensions than the patient, industrious and faithful teachers who year after year, through all their working days, so long as their health and strength and capacity last, consecrate themselves to the incalculably precious cause of public education. Their work is not less, but, if anything, of more importance to city, state and nation than the work of the soldier. The bayonet is the last resort and final dependence of the Government, but the public school is its first and firmest bulwark. At least, then, the public school teachers should be treated by the state with a respect and liberality equal to that which is shown to the soldier.

The main body of our school teachers are women of high intelligence and refinement, and of more than ordinary gifts. The great mass of them work for salaries that do not average over $600 a year, and in most cases they are the main support of little families. It is notorious that in hundreds of cases they do not resign when they should, because there is no future for them. So they remain at their posts long after they have become partially incapacitated for duty, befuture for them. So they remain at Evening Herald. sause the state has taken all they have to give and made no provision for the tays of weakness and infirmity that have overtaken them.

This is not right. This is not fair. Phis is not worthy of the great, rich state of Pennsylvania. There is no other civilized country in the world that fails to provide for its public school teachers a service pension system. It is a discredit and a reproach to this land of education, the birthsince of the free common school, that ts public school teachers should thus be neglected. It must not be so much

HOEY AT DEATH'S DOOR. The Ex-President of the Adams Express Company Passing Away.

New York, Nov. 14 .- It is announced by the family of John Hoay, the wellknown express manager, that his condi tion is very critical, and that it is feared he cannot survive longer than a few days at the most. Mr. Hoey is at his finely furnished rooms in Delmonico's, where he is surrounded by the members and friends of his family. Little hope of his recovery is given, although everything possible is being done to prolong his life. Drs. T. S. Robertson and Jane-way believe that only Mr. Hoey's extraordinary vitality can keep him alive more than a few days. He is gradually growing weaker, and it can be plainly seen that the end is near.

Mr. Hoey is suffering from a complication of disorders brought on by a severe cold he contracted several weeks ago. He failed to properly cars for himself when attacked and other alliments were contracted.

Although very weak, Mr. Hoey still keeps up his spirits and hones to recover, and of course every encouragement is given him by his family. Dr. Robertson is almost constantly by his side. Mr. Hoey's son William is also ill. The constant worry over his father's illness and fatigue from incessantly watching him has proven too much for the younger Hoey, who broke down yesterday. It was said at the office of the Adams Express Company that he might not be able to attend to business for several days.

THE CASE OF LIZZIE BORDEN. To Be Taken Up By the Grand Jury To

TAUNTON, Mass., Nov. 14.—The Lizzia Borden case will be taken up by the grand jury to-day, Marshal Hilliard is in almost dally re celpt of threatening letters and epistles containing all sorts of advice, from an intimation that it would be well for him to leave the country to a direct threat on his life, with a few words of advice as to the proper method of doing his duty

Lingo's Acquittal Excites Merchantville Residents.

EX-JUDGE WESCOTT CENSURED

Prominent People of the Place Spenk Their Minds-Negroes of Matchiowa Also Aroused-Lingo to Enter a Museum

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—The people of Merchantville, N. J., are in arms because of the acquittal in Camden of Francis Lingo, colored, the alleged murderer of Mrs. Annie Miller. Their anger knows no bounds, and is intermingled with fear that some one else may be murdered in that vicinity and the perpetrator go unpunished.

The wives and daughters of the wellto do residents, and they are numerous, actually dread to leave their homes alons for fear that something might happen to

As soon as it was learned on Saturday afternoon that Lingo was a free man, threats of lynching him, should be return to the community, were freely made, and yesterday the expression grew in carnestness and volume.

As the outcome of this state of affairs an indignation meeting was held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the Merchant-ville town half, which was attended by two hundred of the most prominent citi-

It was presided over by Thomas C, Knight, President of the Philadelphia Brokers' Exchange, and a committee of three consisting of John Morton, Edward Nash and Frederick Kleintz, was appointed to confer with Camden County Prosecutor Jenkins, who conducted the case against Lingo, and see what could be done to keep the acquitted negro from returning to the neighborhood.

Resolutions were presented, and, although referred to a committee of five, they were practically adopted, censuring ex-Judge Wescott, senior counsel for Lingo, expressing sympathy with John Miller, husband of the murdered woman, and disapproving of the abrupt ending of the trial

The committee, composed of John Al lep, Charles Hollingshead, Edward W. Morris, William Longstrath, and Morris Redderow, all of whom are wealthy and influential, and to whom the resolutions were referred, will probably augment

The meeting adjourned to meet at the same place to night at 8 o'clock, when a definite line of action will be decided upon. The citizens argue that, as the murders of Mrs. Leconey and Mrs. Miller, both of which occurred in their town, are unaveuged, there is no safety for them; that their lives and the lives of their families are in constant peril, and that precautions be taken.

They fear that the acquittal of Chalkley Leconey and Francis Lingo of the re-spective murders, the latter also being arrested for the first crime, will set alaw less precedent to many of the 500 ne gross of Matchtown, a suburb of Mer-other mysterious killing. They also feel that some one should be hanged for each murder, but as there is no probability of either mystery ever being deared, the best they can do is to take, in a measure, the law into their own hands and protect their homes by aggressive methods. The Matchtown negroes are aroused and threaten vengeance upon any one who shall maltreat Lingo.

Lingo says he never will return to Merchantville and as his life would be in danger were he to do so, it is believed he will be an unknown quantity in those parts. He will exhibit himself in a dime museum here during the coming week. Lingo's acquittal was brought about by the action of Judge Garrison, who, when the evidence was all in, declared to the jury that the case made out by the prosecution was not sufficient to convict the prisoner of the murder of Mrs. Annie Miller, and he thereupon discharged

Judge Garrison held that by the State's own witnesses an alibi had been proved for Lingo, and that he was not the negro that Insurance Agent Wilder and the Du Hadway children met in the bush lot. Under his instructions the jury rendered verdict of acquittal and Lingo was dis-

"Why," he exclaimed, "Mrs. Miller was the best friend I had on earth."4 "Will you work for mer" asked ex-Judge Westcott.

"Yes, a whole year for nothing," Lingo replied. "But I will not go to Merchantville again."

Ex.Judge Wescott said that although Lingo is acquitted he is not yet through with the case. Several of the State's witnesses, he declared, will be arrested for perjusy.
