3 HE excitement attending the circulation of anonymous circulars warning property make ready to apply for licenses in their

the next term of license ourt, where the tenants are Polish, Lithumian and Hungarian people, has been rerived by circulars of a more plain and unnistakable character. For some unknown cason the parties who have received the last circulars will not give out any part of the contents. One man has admitted that the freniar seems to have come from the same ource as the first lot.

A large property owner said this merning, To save my life I cannot see what these anonymous people are driving at. If the property owners do secure all the licenses there is nothing to prevent their being trans ferred if the party to whom the transfer is to be made comes within the requirements of the law and rules of the court as to respective bility and responsibility. And I should think the best method would be to have the party who is to conduct the place appear before the court in the first instance and have the matter disposed of. It looks to me like a scheme to double the expenses of the property

A prominent Polish gentleman said in discussing the matter, "Our people intend to claim the same rights at the sext term of ageration in number. Visit us license court as other people claim, and we are making arrangements to secure the services of lawvers to see that these rights are not shridged. I'll admit that the places conducted by our people and the Lithuanians and Hungarians are becoming very plentiful, but if the owners are law abiding and re spectable citizens and conduct their places as required by law, I do not see how the court can exclude them from the license privileges."

Another intelligent Pelish man sald, "The thing seems to be a game of freeze out. Last year and the year before some of our people paid enermous prices to get possession of some of the saloons, but they are not so foolish now. They are willing to pay good prices for good stands, and when they can buy the give fair value, but they see that too much imposition has been attempted. It looks to with a business-like wink, me that there are some parties trying to force our people into buying their properties, by putting out the scare that only property wners will be granted licenses. Our people are organized and we will be well represented thousand dellars the School Board has Reformed church, will then preach the at the next license court."

A large number of applications from this town for licenses have already been filed with the Clerk of the Court, and it is said that they will number about thirty per cent. more at the next term of license court than they did at the last.

Shackford, start the company on the road again and it get as far as Danville, where he disappeared, leaving the members stranded. Miss Shephard succeeded in getting to Philadelphia, whence she was sent to her home in New York by the manager of the Palace theatre. On Monday Miss Shephard's mother met the woman's left eye. #### OBE'S OBSERVATIONS What He Sees and Hears During His Truvels.

The poultry dealers have a new wrinkle this year. In the past it has been the custom for the dealers to have the poultry killed and dressed for sale. They claim that much loss resulted from this method and this year, with very few exceptions, the customer must be content with the raw material. The after the bargain is made. This change may be accountable for by the scarcity of turkeys in the market this season. Several farmers were seen yesterday driving back to the val ley with live turkeys.

The foot ball fever has struck this town and no less than half a dozen teams are in process of organization. There is material in town for at least two good teams and there owners having sulpens is no reason why they should not beem the on their premises to game this winter as base ball is in summer. There are many lovers of the sport in town who would give the teams liberal patronage.

> Many collieries in this and the surrounding listricts were idle yesterday for want of cars, and it is said that frequent stoppages of the allieries may be looked for until after the opening of the new year. It is semi-officially announced that all "dead work" has been uspended until that time.

He now has a laundry and a store for the sale of Japanese articles, employing two men there. While in Chicago Frank attended the Baptist Sunday school and acquired a knowledge of the English language that enables him to speak and read it quite well. He eventually became a mem ber of the church. While in Bethlehem he was a regular attendant at the Reformed Sunday school. Frank has opened a laundry on West Centre street and, should be meet with success, will soon add to it a departmen for the sale of Japanese goods. He has besome sufficiently Americanized to know the value of printers' ink and in the use of it he shows he has a level head.

PHILLIPS ON TRIAL.

The Slayer of 'squire O'Donnell Before a

Constable Issue Phillips, who is now on trial for the murder of 'Squire O'Donnell, has the appearance of a mun who is brokenoweted, and as the story of the tracedy is unfolded his bloodless face and downcast eyes indicate that he is suffering the keenest pangs of remorse for his crime.

The first witness called was J. L. Booze, landlord of the Pleasant Hill Hotel, the place where the quarrel began. He told substantially the same story as the one given before the Coroner.

Ferdinand Keiser, father-in-law of Booze, said he knew but little of the quarrel. He gave Phillips two glasses of beer and O'Donnell a glass of whiskey. He also heard the men uarrel but was not present.

Mary Harkins was passing the hotel and eard the men wrangling.

She saw Phillips come out and go home. Shortly after the 'Squire and Mr. Booze came out and started for home. On the way they net Phillips. She saw O'Donnell strike at Phillips, when the latter drew a revolver and fired. When the third shot had been fired both men fell to the ground, with O'Donnell

J. R. Coyle, Esq., counsel for the School Board, yesterday made application to the court at Pottsville for the appointment of viewers to review the Cather property on West Oak street. It will be remembered that the viewers previously appointed fixed the value of the property at a figure the School Board considered too high. In fact, they fixed the price higher than the owner saked.
