INVESTIGATING THE COMBINE. Three Railroad Pres deats Examined Yo-terday in Philadelphia.

PHILADRIPHIA, Nov. 80. - The Con gressional Sub-Committee which is investigating the coal combine met in the Chamber of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday.

President McLeod was the first witness. He promised to furnish the subcommittee with water rates on authracite coal to New England points that are reached by the Poughkeepsie Bridge route, so that the respective water and rail rates can be compared.

Being asked to state the effect of the monthly tidewater meetings of coal agents on the periodical output of au-thracite coal, whether or not the meetings influenced prices and if the mertings tended to effect a concert of action, Presi-dent McLeod said that so far as he knew the sales agents met to inform each other about the condition of the market.

The point was pushed as to whether tidewater meetings influenced prices. Mr. McLeod stated that the demand for coal made the prices and he did not be-lieve that prices were otherwise influnced

by the agents. E. P. CLERKS COWED BY REVOLVERS.

The Thieves Secured $2,000 and Attempted to Escape, but Ware Soun Captured-Threats of Lynching Made by the Villagers-The Stolen Money Recovered. ALLENTOWN, N. J., Nov. 30 .- The daring bank robbery at this piace yesterday afternoon created the greatest excite ment, and the occurrence is still the aliabsorbing topic of discussion, even though the robbers were captured and the stolen money recovered.

At 2 o'clock two young men entered the bank, and with drawn revolvers demanded all the cash on hand.

Cashler Hutchinson and an assistant were the only employes of the bank present at the time. A weapon was leveled at the head of each, and one of the robbers backed up this forcible demand with the words: "We'll blow both your heads off if you don't turn up all your stuff at

Cashier Hutchinson quickly complied with this request, and handed over about $2,000 which lay on the counter before

Then one of the robbers compelled the cashier and the clerk to go to the wall and turn their heads, while the other router walked backwards out of the door and into the street.

His accomplice quickly followed. In a moment the cushier's courage returned and he and the cierks rushed out into the street after the robbers.

The cashier had grabbed a pistol in the bank which he immediately began firing at the fleeing thieves. The robbers re-turned the fire and the exchange of the shots and the cries of Hutchinson and the clerks soon aroused the village, and almost immediately a score of persons were in pursuit.

About two squares from the bank the robbers were captured. Threats of lynching were made by the villagers and had the robbers not surrendered quietly they would probably have been very roughly
