Bristle Challenges Fahey.
EDITOR HERALD:—Sir, I, the undersigned, do hereby challenge Martin Fahey, of Shenandoah, to run me a foot race of 100 or 500 yards for the sum of $300 or $500 a side. Mr. Fahey allowed before that I took him too short; I will give him from four to eight weeks to get ready in, and if that isn't long enough time for him, he is afraid to run me, and I can do nothing squarer. I will give him everything he wants but the ground to run on. He can have George Turner for pistol frer and the Philadelphia Item for stakeholder, if he wants it. Now, Mr. Fahey, please say something. I have got that big head that he said I had, so now this is a glorious opportunity for him to reduce the size of it, if he wants to run. This is your last chance, Mr. Fahey, so put up or shut up. Please answer through the HERALD and Wilkes-Barre News-Dealer.
Yours truly,
JAMES H. BRINLIN.
WARRIOR RUN, Pa., Nov. 30th, 1892.

"Held in Slavery."
A very large audience witnessed the first performance in this city of the nautical melodrama, "Held in Slavery," at Ferguson's theatre last evening, and the house fairly shook with the liberal and well-merited applause bestowed on all the members of this most excellent company. Our theatre-goers have seldom seen a better show, and as the same company will repeat their performance to-night, the house will surely be packed to the roof. Martin Hayden, as Jabin, a young sailor, gave a perfect presentation of this character, while special mention should be made of the work of Anna Doyle, as Jenny, Freddie Huke, as Clara, Nellie Emmette, as Cook, and Messrs. Sedley, Barryman, Robinson and Langdon. The specialties in "Held in Slavery" are fine and those who miss to-night's performance will regret it.
