AN ATTEMPTED RESCUE!

CONSTABLE BOLAND HAS A LIVELY TIME.

HE FIGHTS TO HOLD A PRISONER

And Not Only Succeeds, but Also Makes Prisoners of Two Men Who Interfered With the Arrest.

EIGHT men occupied cells in the lockup last night. Five of them were put in for becoming too boisterous in the celebration of New Year's day and were released to-day upon paying fines, while the other three were held on more serious charges—house-breaking and interference with an officer.

Joe Kientis, a Hungarian, broke into a house on Gilbert street at a late hour last night and Constable Boland responded to the cries of the occupants of the house. After considerable difficulty Boland got trace of Kientis. He found him in a Hungarian boarding house on Gilbert street and attempted to make him prisoner. Kientis made a desperate resistance, but the constable finally got the handcuffs upon his wrists. As the officer started to leave the house with his prisoner Joe and John Vincent, brothers boarding in the house, attempted a rescue. One grabbed the prisoner and the other intercepted the constable, who drew his "billy" and wielded it so effectually that he not only obliged the house-breaker to accompany him, but also marched the would-be rescuers to the lockup and placed them behind the bars.

OUR CONTEST.

Interest in the World's Fair Trip Already Aroused.

The voting for the two most popular school teachers north of the Board Mountain to be sent to the World's Fair at Chicago next July by the EVENING HERALD is not to begin until next Monday week, 16th inst. All the same somebody made a start to-day by voting for a Glardville teacher. Of course the vote can't be counted, but it shows that the teacher has friends who are determined to start a team for her early in the contest. It was learned yesterday that the friends of other teachers had already gone to work and were making an active canvass in their behalf. We hope all these friends will bear in mind that only coupons published in the HERALD after the 15th inst. will count as votes. The HERALD's offer has caught the attention of the teachers and some of them have expressed their appreciation of the project frankly and enthusiastically. They all agree that it is a generous recognition of a deserving profession and that the ultimate benefit will be to the school children themselves. Superintendent

THE LICENSE COURT!

LAW AND ORDER SOCIETY BEGINS WORK.

SEVERAL REMONSTRANCES FILED

Another Large Batch in Course of Preparation—A Determined Fight Against New Applications From Town

LICENSE matters are beginning to wax warm, and from the present time until license court is held there will be great scrambling. Some months ago it was announced that the law and order authorities were making arrangements to file a large batch of remonstrances for 1893, and these announcements were confirmed yesterday, when S. G. M. Hollopeter, Esq., the attorney who had charge of that business, entered a number of protests.

A HERALD reporter conversed with Mr. Hollopeter to-day, but that gentleman said he had nothing to give the public, save that it was true that a large number of remonstrances had been filed and another large batch will go on file this week.

It has been learned that an anti-license fight will be made throughout the county this year, and special attention will be given to Shenandoah on account of the large increase in applications.

Last year the total applications filed for licenses numbered 414. This year they run up to 142. The parties who urge the remonstrances say that the increase is not due to a necessity for saloons and hotels, but reflects the schemes of people who either want to get big rents for their properties or want to get the benefit of the market value a license usually gives a property. For this reason, it is stated, the remonstrances against granting licenses to new places will be strong and urged with all vigor and those who secure licenses for such places will have to give some gilt-edged reasons.

Inquiry was also made regarding the circulars issued some time ago notifying property owners having Polish and Hungarian saloon-keepers as tenants that at the 1893 term of license court such property owners would be obliged to apply for licenses in their own names. The party spoken to on the subject said he understood that the law required

REVIVAL SERVICES

Began in the Methodist Episcopal Church

Rev. Pawick's Sermon. Revival services were commenced in the Methodist Episcopal church at 10 o'clock on Saturday evening. A sermon was preached by the pastor from the text, "I will make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is, that I may know how frail I am." Psalm 39:4.

The sermon was followed by a prayer and experience meeting, after which the large congregation crowded around the altar and consecrated themselves to the service of God. The services were continued on Sunday evening and will be held every evening during the week. The subject of discourse on Sunday night was, "My duty." Acts 9:6. "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" This question was raised by Saul of Tarsus as soon as God arrested him in his mission of murder. Heretofore he had been more concerned as to the duty of other people but now he hears the voice of God, he forgets all about others and wants to know his own duty. As we stand upon the threshold of a new year we should feel concerned to know our duty to God. If we are alive to our own spiritual welfare we shall ask, "Lord what wilt Thou have me to do?" This is the first cry of every truly awakened soul. It is only when men are themselves hardened in sin that they attempt to justify themselves by criticising others. People often talk about others as though they were deeply concerned for their conduct, when all the time they have no concern for themselves.

The critics of the church will forget its alleged faults when they see themselves in their true light. When Peter presumed to ask "and what shall this man do?" the Lord answered, "What is that to thee, follow thou me." Saul thought he knew it all until God spoke to him; he was then willing to learn. His question was a confession of ignorance. It was an acknowledgement that his whole life had been wrong. It meant that he was now ready to surrender the advantages of his proud descent and to "count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus the Lord." He was careless of the opinions of others, nor was he careful to set any particular bounds to the requirements God might make. It was a clear and complete surrender to the will of God. This is just where we must get before we can be acceptable to God. We can do no better than to enter upon this new year with the docility which asks, "What wilt thou have me to do?" Such a prayer may bring a prompt answer. We may have to give up many persons who are
