THE RAZOR WAS DULL.

MRS. RATLOWICZ ATTEMPTS
SUICIDE.

SHE GASHED HER ARMS AND NECK

But the Old Rusty Razor Failed to do its Work, and the Woman is Still Alive.

DECIDED sensation was created yesterday afternoon in the row of houses that occupy the site of the old skating rink in the southern part of town. The cause was an attempted suicide by Mrs. Mary Ratlowicz, who tried to fatally gash her throat and cut the large blood vessels in her arms with an old razor belonging to her husband. A neighbor discovered the woman. She was lying upon the floor in the kitchen and bleeding profusely. The whole neighborhood became alarmed and people crowded the house to suffocation. Two small children were weeping in an adjoining room. Had the victim been gashed as bad as intended she would have died without attendance, as her neighbors were so excited that they did not think of sending for a doctor until the woman herself made the request.

Mrs. Ratlowicz will continue to remain with the living. The razor with which she tried to end her existence was very old and dull, as it had not been used for some time.

A neighbor volunteered as interpreter and informed the HERALD reporter that the act was the result of remorse following a holiday jollification.

R. J. Glick, Will Wattress, Harry Crawford, Charles Schlesman and Joe Monaghan have left for college again.

EVERYBODY TALKS OF IT.

The "Herald's" World's Fair Enterprise Discussed in all Sections.

It is doubtful whether there is any subject more generally talked about north of the Broad mountain than the voting contest announced by the HERALD to commence January 16th and end July 1st, next, as a result of which two school teachers will be privileged, some time during the month of July, to go to the World's Fair, be entertained in Chicago and at the great exposition on a first class scale for ten days, and be returned to their homes at the end of that time, all at the expense of the HERALD, the travelers at no stage of the trip being under obligation to spend a single cent for transportation or living. It was natural that this gigantic enterprise should be talked about by almost every one and in nearly every place. No such proposition was ever heard of before in this section of Pennsylvania, it being one that will require much preparation and labor in advance and all at a cost that will astonish any person who pauses long enough to make a rough estimate. Another reason why the coming contest creates such widespread interest is that it is a proposition that comes home to so many people. What outside person is there who is in closer touch with the home circle than the school teacher? The pupil looks to the teacher for advice as well as instruction; the parent relies on the teacher to prepare the child for the battle of life far more than he often realizes; both child and parent entertain a regard, often approaching a sincere affection, for the teacher, and now that an opportunity affords to show this regard by work to secure the teacher a chance for this trip, they can be depended upon to do their part with earnest enthusiasm.

SENSATIONS AT POTTSVILLE.
The County Commissioners Turn on the County Auditors.

The County Commissioners held a meeting yesterday afternoon and resolved to criminally prosecute the County Auditors for criminal neglect of their official duties in failing to audit in 1891 the disbursements of money in 1890 and to bring civil suits to recover the money that the Auditors now allege was improperly paid out of the public treasury upon the new court house. The Commissioners allege that by reason of the neglect to audit the accounts of 1890 no notice was given to the taxpayers or the county officials that the contractor of the new court house had received more money for work done in 1890 and 1891 than was due the contractor.

The action of the Commissioners created quite a stir, which was supplemented in the evening by a sensational development in the Pottsville Borough Council. A committee of that body reported that a test made by an electrical test had shown that

SEVERAL TRUE BILLS!

CASES OF LOCAL INTEREST TO BE TRIED.

THE SOGKLOSKI CASE AMONG THEM

The Grand Jury indicate all the Parties Concerned on all Charges—Madulus Must Also Stand Trial.

THE Grand Jury was kept busy yesterday considering cases in which Shenandoah people figured as prosecutors and defendants, and in the afternoon handed true bills in all the cases to the court. Among those indicted was Daniel Bradley, of the First ward, who was charged with stealing an iron pot and selling it to a Polish woman to raise money for whiskey.

The cases that consumed considerable time were those in which Joseph Madulus was charged with larceny and receiving stolen goods. Madulus is the Hungarian who was caught by Policemen Williams and Holvey as he was leaving a yard in the First ward after robbing a clothes line. A subsequent search of Madulus' trunks revealed a quantity of linen and other articles which were identified by residents of the town and several locks bearing the monogram of the P. & R. company. Madulus must stand trial.

Another case of local interest which occupied the attention of the Grand Jury was that in which Eva, Maggie and Alice Sockloski are defendants. The HERALD gave a full account of this case several days ago and Alice Sockloski subsequently made a statement in which she stated that she and her mother, Eva Sockloski, were innocent. The defendants were charged with encouraging Katie Connell to steal and purchasing from her for small sums what the girl stole from her parents. Alice maintained that only her sister, Maggie, and Katie Connell were the wrongdoers. Alice said that when she and her mother would give Maggie money to buy dress goods and ribbons she and Katie Connell would spend the money and steal what was wanted from the Connell house. After considering the Commonwealth's file of the case yesterday the Grand Jury handed down true bills on all the charges and the cases will go to trial.

OBE'S OBSERVATIONS

What He Sees and Hears During Travels.

All authorities, foreign and American, agree that unless some decisive action is taken by our Government very soon to restrict immigration to this country we will be attacked by an epidemic of cholera without parallel in history. The highest medical authorities assert that the cholera scare of last summer was but a mild warning, and that that dreaded disease is only slumbering 'till the warm weather comes again, when it will break out with terrible fury. It is also agreed that the best safeguard this country can have against this predicted calamity is a law, strictly enforced, prohibiting promiscuous immigration to our shores; and one of the most eminent men of this country to present resolutions as soon as possible to the Senate, urging the immediate passage of such a law. Let the Shenandoah societies take the initiative and put themselves upon record as being unqualifiedly in favor of such legislation.

Politics wax warm at last. The holidays seem to have produced an invigorating effect, and now the woods are full of candidates. The Democrats are particularly active and are putting fences in all sections of the town for ward and borough offices. They have started none too soon, for under the new law much more time is required than heretofore to get the spring elections in shape.

The new board of Directors of the Poor acted wisely in re-appointing John J. O'Connor as clerk at the Almshouse. Mr. O'Connor has been an efficient employe at the institution and has made himself very popular.

Our town is well drained of people this week. They are attending the courts daily in large numbers and the witness fees will run high in figures. Pottsville is unusually lively in consequence of the attendance.

All the public schools were re-opened yesterday and the pupils and teachers again resumed their noble work. The Teachers' Institute and Christmas and New Year holidays have consumed much of their valuable time, but if anything was lost it will be more than made up, as there is a good stretch of work before the next intermission arrives in the shape of summer vacation.
