

CITIZENS WILL NOT PAY

A Bloody War Likely in a Kentucky County.

TROUBLE OVER A RAILROAD TAX.

It Was Voted 20 Years Ago in Aid of a Road That Never Ran a Train—The Court of Last Resort Has Affirmed That the Tax Must Be Paid, and Citizens Are Arming Themselves to Resist Collectors.

PRINCETON, Ky., Jan. 3.—There is a most serious situation in Muhlenberg county. Hundreds of old muskets and Winchester rifles have been brought out, and war of the bloodiest description is a possibility. The trouble is due to an attempt to collect the railroad tax voted 20 years ago in aid of a railroad that did a vast amount of work, but finally failed to run trains.

Payment of the tax was resisted years ago, and has been fought in every way through every court, the courts holding that the tax should be paid, and the court of last resort has affirmed the action of the lower courts.

Previous attempts at collection have resulted in loss of life, and now that the end of litigation is reached and the people have lost, they are furious and desperate. A few days ago certain of the bondholders who got a judgment against the county, induced A. M. Capps, a citizen of the county, to undertake the collection of the tax.

When it came to preparing the tax receipts the Assessor's books were stolen, and duplicates had to be taken from the State Auditor's book. The collection has begun, and the excitement in the county districts is increasing.

Capps is assisted by an armed posse of deputy sheriffs, and bloodshed seems a certainty, as the farmers say they will not pay the tax nor allow their goods to be attached. The original levy has now increased to $250,000 through costs and penalties, and is half the assessed value of the taxable property of the county.

He has carefully studied the question from all points of view and to-day for the first time expressed his opinion as to the wisdom of investing in the enterprise. The company has been organized and tomorrow Mr. Logan will announce to the public the details of his plans for the prosecution of the work of building the largest dam for irrigation purposes in the Southwest.

The whole work is estimated to cost about $2,500,000, and will require more than a year for its completion. For years this has been recognized as the enterprise most important to the prosperity of this section of the country.

NEW YEAR'S IN WASHINGTON.

The Day Not Observed as Usual by the Officials.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—There has never been a quieter New Year's in Washington. Not even the pleasant sunshiny weather which followed the rainstorm could enliven the prevailing dullness.

The White House was not only a house of mourning, but was quarantined by reason of infectious fever. Consequently, there could have been no Presidential reception had not domestic bereavement forbidden it.

Cabinet officers and leading officials of the Government, of course, followed the example of the Chief Executive, and the entire omission of all of the official receptions deprived the day of all the life and color which the brilliant uniforms of the Diplomatic Corps and of the officers of the army and navy usually give to the occasion.

At nearly all the leading hotels the custom which has been observed for many years by the women guests of holding a reception in the parlors was this year omitted. Very few private residents kept open house.

EXPLOSION IN A CONDUIT.

Escaping Gas Blows Up the Street in Front of the Blaine Residence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—An explosion, followed quickly by the rattling sound of falling iron, occurred at an early morning hour in front of the residence of ex-Secretary Blaine on Lafayette square. The report could be heard in the house, but only faintly, and did not disturb Mr. Blaine, who was asleep at the time.

The explosion was caused by leaky gas mains, which filled the electric conduit with illuminating gas, and coming in contact with an imperfectly insulated wire, set the gas afire.

The heavy iron mantrap was blown up a distance of fifteen feet and fell, breaking the iron-thick cast-iron into a dozen pieces. The conduit for a distance of several squares was cracked. Other manholes along the conduit were also blown off.

Aside from the loss to the company, which is trifling, no damage was done, and no alarm was created.

HIS LETTER WAS BURNED.

The Facts About Dr. McGlynn's Excommunication.

RESTORATION THE POPE'S OWN ACT.

Leo Believes That Injustice Has Been Done the New York Priest—An Ecclesiastic of the Church Says That Another Who Received the Letter for Transmission to Rome Destroyed It.

New York, Jan. 3.—The Rev. Dr. Edward F. McGlynn has been welcomed back into the fold of the Catholic Church simply because the Pope considered that injustice was done him when he was excommunicated.

Archbishop Corrigan's charges against Dr. McGlynn, disobedience and preaching false doctrine, have not been acted upon at all by Monsignor Satoli in restoring Dr. McGlynn to his full powers as a priest.

These charges still hang over the head of Dr. McGlynn, but it is extremely doubtful if they ever will be pushed. The case will probably never be reopened.

Dr. McGlynn was excommunicated for "contumacy" in not having gone to Rome when summoned by the Pope to answer the charges made against him by Archbishop Corrigan. He was excommunicated because a letter which he despatched to the Pope, after receiving the cablegram from him ordering him to Rome within forty days, was "suppressed" before it reached its destination.

An ecclesiastic, who occupies a high position in the archdiocese, and who is a close friend of Dr. McGlynn, made public yesterday the above facts regarding Mr. Satoli's settlement of the case, and told an interesting story of the suppression of the Doctor's letter.

He declared that the letter had been "burned by a high ecclesiastic," into whose hands it was given for transmission to the Pope.

Had this letter reached the Pope, it was said, Dr. McGlynn would not have been excommunicated.

The Doctor did not know that his letter had miscarried, and was surprised at the end of the 40 days to find himself excommunicated.

The Pope did not learn until long after the fact that he had been excommunicated that he had written a letter to him. When he did find out he had Cardinal Simeoni write to the Rev. Dr. Burtell, Dr. McGlynn's counsel, a letter in which he stated in specific terms that had the letter been received the "scandal" would have been averted.

"I have seen Cardinal Simeoni's letter with my own eyes," said the informant, "and I know what I am talking about. It was written in Italian, and I can remember the exact words."

The reverend gentleman here repeated the words in Italian, and gave this interpretation to them:

"Unfortunately, that letter was not delivered, and if it had been delivered it would have prevented this contumacy or contempt of court and the resultant scandal and disturbance."

"Who was the high ecclesiastic who burned this letter?" was asked.

"It would imply to reveal the name, and I do not care to take up a matter that is past and gone. The ecclesiastic I refer to was high in authority, but showed the white feather, and did not dare send the letter to Rome for fear that McGlynn's case would have been decided differently from the way in which it was decided."

"I have been informed on high authority that McGlynn has been restored to all his functions as a priest. He can say mass, hear confessions, preach or perform any priestly function, just as he could before he was excommunicated. Dr. McGlynn stands now exactly in the same position as he did when he left St. Stephen's parish."

"Why didn't Dr. McGlynn write another letter to the Pope when he found that his former one had miscarried?"

"He considered the suppression of it and his excommunication as added insult and never asked for a reconsideration of his case."

"It has been held in abeyance ever since. Mr. Satoli has now rectified the great injustice done the Doctor after learning the facts and his explanation of why he did not go to Rome."
