IT WAS ALMOST A PANIC

A CRY OF "FIRE" IN FERGUSON'S THEATRE.

A GALLERY SMALL BOY SHOUTED

Some Cool Heads in the Audience Stopped a Stampede and Induced the Frightened Ones to Resume Seats.

The fire engine had gone in the distance meantime and the fire alarm bell had stopped ringing. A number of men who had retained their presence of mind and their seats shouted to the frightened auditors, "sit down," and others added jocular cries of "sit down, Smith!" which had a soothing effecting and those who had jumped up timidly resumed their seats, when the "Muggs' Landing" exponents retired behind the scenes, where any well regulated theatrical company would have remained in the first place, and not led color to the alarm by rushing to the curtain.

When the boy first shouted several men and women made a rush for the main exit, but the door tenders remained cool and self-possessed and would allow no one to depart, giving assurance that the fire was not near the theatre.

The cause of the alarm that frightened the gallery boy was found in the Hungarian honeycomb at the lower end of Main street, known as the "bug-hole," but which in days gone by was a skating rink. An immense volume of smoke pouring from one of the chimneys of the nest frightened the residents of the vicinity. Fire Marshal Edward Early, assisted by "Jimmy" Williams, Enoch Decker, "Tim" Lynch, Patrick Feeley and a number of others, made a thorough investigation and concluded that the output of smoke was caused by a freshly kindled fire.

Veno Departs.

Veno gave his closing entertainment and lecture at Robbins' opera house last night. He was very successful here and it is said that he made nearly $800 during his ten day stay. Last evening Mr. Hopkins, of 230 West Coal street, called upon Veno and gave testimony of the virtue of the Veno liniment and medicine. Mr. Hopkins said that his son was crippled by rheumatism. One morning the remedies were used and in the afternoon the boy was entirely relieved.

Left the Rails.

Passenger engine No. 407, which was doing local freight duty in charge of Engineer Albert Billman, left the rails while running from the Lehigh to the Reading tracks east of the red bridge last night. The stormy weather made the work of replacing the engine on the track very difficult, but the crew succeeded after a struggle lasting over two hours.

There are many common liniments sold but there is only one great pain cure for all forms of sprains, cuts, bruises and all bodily pains. It is the Red Flag Oil. Costs 25 cents. Sold at P. F. D. Kirlin's drug store.

THREE FUNERALS.

The remains of the late Michael O'Hara laid to rest.

The funeral of the late Michael O'Hara took place this morning from the family residence on North White street. In spite of the stormy weather the attendance was very large and many people from distant points were present. The remains were taken to the Annunciation church, where high mass was celebrated, Rev. H. P. O'Reilly officiating, assisted by Revs. Brady, of Beaver Meadow, and Kane, of town. Watkin Waters Post, No. 146, A. R. of which the deceased was an honored member, with the Grant Cornet Band, headed the cortege. A large number of people went to the cemetery in carriages and sleighs and many walked to the foot of the road leading up the mountain to the place of interment, the Annunciation cemetery. The pall bearers were Lawrence Mangum, Joseph Knapp, John W. Morgan, Michael Needham, John B. Monaghan, P. H. Ormsby, Michael Tierney and John Watson. Among the people from out of town who attended the funeral were William Higgins and George Higgins and wife, Mr. Carmel, John F. Quinn and wife, and Thomas Quinn, Mahanoy City; W. J. McCarthy, St. Clair; Math W. Donahoe, David M. Graham and Thomas P. Moore, Mahanoy City; Arthur O'Hara, Port Jervis, N. Y.; John O'Hara, Philadelphia; Patrick O'Hara, Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Misses Kate and Ann O'Hara, Scranton.

THE MOORE FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late Thomas Moore took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence on North Jardin street. Services were held at the house, after which the remains proceeded to Tamaqua by train. The funeral services were interred in the Odd Fellows' cemetery at Tamaqua.

EDWARD CORRIGAN BURIED.

The funeral of the late Edward Corrigan of Ellengowan, who died at the Miners' Hospital on Monday from the effects of injuries sustained at Ellengowan colliery, took place yesterday. The remains were brought to town and interred in the Annunciation cemetery.

"She Couldn't Marry Three."

One of the greatest successes on the road will play an engagement here shortly. It is one of the most colossal theatrical enterprises ever sent from New York. During the past summer over twenty men, some painters, machinists, upholsterers, carpenters, etc., have been constantly at work building the most stupendous scenery and effects. It can be best appreciated from the fact that not one piece of the local scenery is used in the production. The stage is stripped bare on the company's arrival in town, as every piece of scenery for the entire play is special, and from the accounts which precede the company, some of the scenic effects are simply wonderful.

Query From the Fifth.

EDITOR HERALD:—I see the Democrats have everything out and dried ready for the spring election. Lee Mr. Higgins is out for Tax Collector, Mr. Burns and Mr. Wheelahan and a dozen others are out for Burgess. All are Irish, but the poor Dutchman is nowhere. Yes, and an Irish High Constable, too. Don't the Germans get anything? Are we always to stand up like soldiers and be dumped into sulphur creek like empty beer kegs. I reside in the Fifth ward, the only German ward in the town, but we come in mighty handy on election day and I believe in demanding some recognition.

In case of hard cold nothing will relieve the breathing so quickly as to rub Arnica and Oil Liniment on the chest.

"Little Trixie."

The performance of "Little Trixie" at the opera house Saturday night was the best ever produced in this city. The play is replete with fun from beginning to end. May Smith Robbins, as "Little Trixie," was simply immense. Her changes of character were wonderful.—Hannover, Ind., Daily Standard. May Smith Robbins will appear in "Little Trixie" at Ferguson's theatre tomorrow evening.

Poor Gas Service.

The business men and others who use the service of the gas company have been complaining bitterly of poor light thus far this week. The company claims that the elements are against it. OBES'S OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and Hears During His Travels.

The merry, nipping, freezing cold wave is still with us and seems inclined to lengthen its stay. To some he is welcome and to others he is a burden. As usual, he brings joy and sorrow, and I do not hesitate to say that its departure will cause more shouting of glad notes than its coming did. The well-clothed and well-fed think it invigorating and a jolly and refreshing agent. The cherry-cheeked maiden, who sports a fellow with enough cash to hire a sleigh, thinks it just too awfully awful rice. The physicians, however, scowl upon him as an enemy of their business. Rainy, slushy weather is a better disease breeder. But the poorly clad, and the miner, who has long distances to travel to and from his work, are those who feel the pangs of the wave. There are scores of people that would not have walked to the top of any of the neighboring mountains any night or early morning this week for a large sum of money, but many scores of miners tramped up and down and beyond the mountains to and from their work at hours when the weather was the coldest. But when pay day comes the poor miner will receive his reward—with one per cent. less than last year.

"Do you believe in sympathy?" This question was put to me the other day by a young lady with such a musical voice and sweet face that I was tempted to make a mistake and (for the first time in my life) tell a lie. But moral courage stood the strain and boldly answered that I did not believe in it. For many years I took stock in that article, but time has worked a change and now when people talk to me about sympathy I am compelled to blurt out, "Boh!" Sympathy is, pocket deep. It takes wings when the last coin goes. Don't count too much upon it. Always spell it with a small "s" and prepare yourself for disappointment when inclined to rest upon this fluctuating article.

It is not my intention to preach an idle sermon upon sympathy, but to bring in view a local case that destroyed my faith in it. For years past a woman of this town, who appeared to be in good circumstance, was courted by many in distress, who asked and freely received of her bounty. This woman was foremost in everything pertaining to the welfare of the people. She worked harder than the rest of her kind, had a smile for all, and her "sympathy" was of the practical kind—cash and bread. Many took every occasion to express their gratitude and vowed they would do anything for her, should she ever need help. Nothing would be too good for her, and nothing would be too difficult to undertake in her behalf. Thus passed on and the woman I spoke of met with reverses. Money, and even the necessities of life became very scarce. The Samaritan of former days was on the verge of abject want. Those who had shared in her bounty were "upon their feet," but blind. "Poor thing. It is really too bad," and that was the extent of their "sympathy" and the benevolent creature was left to sink or swim. Look about you, reader, and see if there is a case in town such as I speak of, and then ask "Oba," if he believes in "sympathy."

In this column several days ago I called attention to the distressing case of Mrs. Mary Kelly, of Turkey Run. Her child died and being in destitute circumstances Mrs. Kelly applied for relief from the county to help defray the expense of the funeral. The last I heard of the case before yesterday was that Poor Director Derr told the woman to have the proper papers drawn and he would have the relief granted. Yesterday Mrs. Kelly informed one of the HERALD staff that the county did not assume the expense of the funeral. The burial offered by the authorities was too crude and she assumed the task herself, with the assistance of but $2.00 from the county.

The rules governing employes of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company forbid them smoking while on duty. On some of the long night runs the employes are prone to light a cigar in the early morning hours. This has cost one of them three months' wages. James McAllister, a conductor on one of the night lines between Easton and Waverly, N. Y., lit a cigar in the smoker when the train was about at Sugar Notch the other morning at 1 o'clock. Some spotter "gave him away," and the conductor received a notice from the company that he could take a rest for three months.

Appropos the action taken by Council last Thursday night in ordering the Chief Burgess to close up pool wheel and other gambling places, I am informed that one of the Councilmen was engaged in running a pool wheel during the holidays. I give the assertion as it is made.

The present police force is a good one and can hardly be improved upon, and I hope that the members will continue to exercise their usual good judgment and not become too aggressive in the impending battle to elect Councilmen. In giving this advice I am backed by many who are not wholly blind to the situation of affairs. The people are rapidly approaching a realization of the fact that merit and not political pull should prevail when the time comes to organize the police force and the officer who keeps his hands off and paddles his own canoe is less liable to be suspected of depending upon his "pull" and not his merit.
