PARLIAMENT IN SESSION

Important Legislation Promised in the Queen's Address.

A LENGTHY DEBATE EXPECTED.

It May Be Three Weeks Before Mr. Gladstone Can Introduce His Home Rule Bill—Irish Leaders and the Premier at Variance Regarding the Land Question.

BOARDS PROMISING THE INTRODUCTION OF THE IRISH LEGISLATIVE BILL, an Electoral Registration Reform Bill and a County Council Reform measure, the speech intimates that a Licensing Reform measure, a Local Option measure, a bill dealing with the election of county magistrates, proposals affecting the Ecclesiastical Church in Scotland and the Church in Wales will be offered for the consideration of Parliament.

Next, legislation is promised to extend the powers of the London County Council, and a Board of Trade measure expanding the functions of the present Labor Bureau.

Reference is made to the newly appointed Royal Commission on Poor Law Relief, which is to deal with the old age pension question; to the Indian Currency Commission as about to present a report to Parliament, and allusion is made to a royal commission to inquire into the land question in Wales.

The attention of the House is asked to the report of the Irish Evicted Tenants' Commission and the Government proposals based thereon. Allusion is also made regarding agitation for the release of the dynamite makers and political prisoners except in a guarded reference to the general measures which are at permanent points in Ireland.

Regarding the condition of home and foreign trade, the speech is more optimistic than might have been expected. The relations of the British Government with all foreign powers were declared satisfactory, and hopeful reference is made to the future of commerce between the United Kingdom and the colonies.

It is expected that the debate on the address will be a lengthy one. Mr. Chamberlain will raise the Home Rule question by an amendment denying the advisability of a separate Irish Legislature. Mr. Chamberlain's amendment is supported by the majority of the members of the House, and the Irish members will present an amendment protesting against interference with their vested rights.

Unless the House grows fever with impatience, it will have some three weeks of oratory before Mr. Gladstone can have an opportunity of introducing his Home Rule Bill.

Messrs. McCarthy, Sexton, and Dillon have in a hasty way approved the clause in the Home Rule Bill reserving the control of the land question to the Imperial Parliament for a certain number of years, but they differ with Mr. Gladstone as to the number of years during which the Irish Legislature has to wait.

Mr. Gladstone proposed ten years. The Irish leaders think five years too long, and Messrs. McCarthy, Sexton, and Dillon have in a hasty way approved the clause in the Home Rule Bill reserving the control of the land question to the Imperial Parliament for a certain number of years, but they differ with Mr. Gladstone as to the number of years during which the Irish Legislature has to wait.
