Fatal Injury.

HORTLY after mid night Saturday the fire bell sent an alarm on upon the clear, colair. All the companies were out with appar atus in good time an skinning along the streets at as fast rate as thefice covere treets would permit. The firs was located at Szymanskie slaughter house near the Cambridge breaker below the lime kiln. The burned structure was not of much value, but it contained : boller, engine and chopping and othe sachines valued at several hundred dollars. The building soon succumbed to the fiames and within a short time the lights of the firemen's lanterns and the burning debris showed the upright figures of the boiler engine and machines, which retained their positions, but were budly damaged by the flames. Mr. Szymanskie places his loss at about $1,000. The origin of the fire is un-

The firemen took the two-wheeled hose carriage, known as the "crab," out of the hose house and started south on Jardin street with it. At Poplar street they turned east to go to Main, and down that street to the road that leads past the slaughter houses Poplar street, from Jardin to Main, is very teep. It is regarded as dangerous for wagon wen when it is not covered with snow and ice. Saturday night it was as smooth and bright as a looking glass and unfit for pedesrians, much less vehicles of any weight, But the firemen did not know of its condiion until after they turned the corner from ardin street, and then it was too late. Four r five men had hold of the pole, but their imost scrength amounted to nothing. The 'crab' took speed at the very top of the hill nd the speed increased so rapidly that the men in charge were barely able to guide it. About midway between Jardin street and Pear alley the men lost all control of the erab." It took a diagonal course from the on the south side and the next moment went have the wonders of the fair described to them crashing against the side of a house at the corner. The collision stopped the progress of the "crab" by badly wrenching the wheel teacher at present. I hope the contest will be and axle on the right side. The pole was also bailly bent. The weather boards of the appointed ones. use were somewhat damaged. It was nsidered a miracle that the men who atempted to take the "crab" down the hill were not badly injured or killed. They all say their escape was an exceedingly narroy ne. The apparatus was returned to the hos ouse. A male coupling of the hose is re ported missing and the finder is requested to return it to the company.

The returns of the HERALD's public school eachers' contest Saturday created great interest and in some places mingled disappointment and surprise. The great leaps made by ome of the leaders to decide which should caure the box for Ferguson's theatre to-night were the objects of special attention.

The positions of the leaders are the same to-day as they were on Saturday, with one exception. Miss Stein has again taken econd place and leads Miss Connelly by thirteen votes. The vote polled Saturday was not near a high as that of Friday, but compared with the average returns of previous days it is pretty high. Saturday closed the eighteenth day, or third week, of the contest. The average number of votes per day for that period was a fraction over 1,494, which is ample proci of the popularity the contest has met with and the great interest the public has taken in their favorite teachers.

Those who were left considerably believe the past week should not become disheartened There is no doubt that the dashes were do n a great measure to the theatrical box offer Still if the leaders should continue to roll up ig scores, those lower down in the lis should remember that their friends will have mple opportunity between new and July 1st The following communication speaks for
