OUR FOREIGN POLICY.

ALLIANCE OF UNITED STATES RUSSIA AND FRANCE.

RATIFIED BY THE SENATE

In Case of War We Will be Supported by Two Great Navies—With English Dared Object?

THE special Washington dispatches to the New York papers yesterday contained news of the highest international moment; news which will arouse intense interest in every European capital and which will exert a profound influence over the destinies of the Western Hemisphere. This is the first announcement that an agreement has been ratified by which the Monroe doctrine, which guarantees the supremacy of the United States in the New World, is to be enforced, if necessary, by all the power of Russia and of France. In return for the French and Russian extradition treaties, which have been approved by the United States Senate, the two great powers whose friendship for the United States has become traditional have bound themselves to support this country in the assertion of the right of Americans to rule America without interference from European governments.

Gorchakoff, the greatest of Russian Chancellors, declared that an alliance between the United States, France and Russia was "necessary for the universal equilibrium of nations." Such an alliance has now been formed. It does not entangle the United States in complications of war or politics in the Old World. It does secure to this Republic absolute freedom in working out its manifest destiny within the limits of this hemisphere; a destiny which demands the annexation of Hawaii, of Canada, of Cuba, and perhaps of San Domingo; which must result in the gradual expulsion of hostile European influences and the peaceful recognition of the United States as the natural head and the legitimate guardian of all the peoples of America. British fortresses at Kingston, San Lucia, Bermuda, Halifax and Esquimaux, bristled with the most destructive modern artillery and menaced both the Atlantic and the Pacific seaboard of the United States. They will be reduced to comparative insignificance if in resisting British aggression this nation can count on the active assistance of France and Russia, with their navies of more than seven hundred vessels and their armies of more than 7,000,000 trained soldiers.

The extradition treaty with France provides simply for the extradition of French embezzlers and swindlers, who have hitherto been safe from punishment on American soil. The treaty with Russia provides that the United States shall not be an asylum for Russian subjects who may be guilty in the future of the actual or attempted murder of the Czar or any member of the reigning family. As a safeguard against injustice to refugees, the treaty also provides that in every case where a Russian subject is arrested in this country on the charge of attempts against the life of the Czar or members of his family, his guilt must be proved to the satisfaction of a United States jury; before his extradition is permitted. Russia has been the firm friend of the United States since the time when the Empress Catherine, by joining the League of Neutrality, compelled the British King to recognize the independence of the thirteen colonies. The first Alexander defied the mandates of Napoleon, and refused to lead the power of Russia to the attempt of the Corsican conqueror to destroy American commerce; the second Alexander, when the fate of this nation trembled in the balance, announced that the recognition of the Southern Confederacy by England and Napoleon III, would be considered equivalent to a declaration of hostilities against Russia, and dispatched Russian fleets to New York and San Francisco with orders to their commanders to place their forces at the disposal of Abraham Lincoln in case of such an event. But for the generous and unwavering aid of France, the American Revolution might have had a very different issue. Our debt to the nation that lent us her fleets, her soldiers and her credit, that gave us Lafayette and supported the cause of the struggling colonists against the foremost power of Europe, can never be forgotten. France is to-day a republic, and it is not strange that her sympathies are with the Republican government of the United States.

The ratification of the treaties which fortify the Monroe doctrine with the strength of France and Russia is a signal achievement of American statesmanship. It adds one more to the notable list of diplomatic triumphs due to the foresight, energy and patriotism of the Harrison Administration.

The fourth week of the HERALD's popular public school teachers' contest closed Saturday with a poll of 1,579 votes for the day and a grand total of 16,223, or a fraction over 10,000 votes for each week since the contest started. There is little doubt that the grand total figure will be up to the 50,000 mark by next Saturday evening.

While several of the contestants polled a number of votes Saturday no one was advanced above another.

As encouragement to some of the contestants down the line we may say that the management is negotiating with certain parties whereby it will be enabled to offer some excellent inducements to teachers other than those who may secure first and second places in the contest. There is no certainty that the arrangements sought can be made, but if the negotiations are successful the competitors will be promptly notified. As the HERALD does not wish to make any promises that it will not be sure to fulfill no intimation as to what the negotiations are will be given at present.

MR. COYLE WINS.

A Board of Arbitrators Awards Him $1,000 Damages.

POTTSVILLE, Feb. 13.—Hon. J. J. Coyle, of Mahanoy City, and his attorneys, Charles Breckons and John E. Coyle, Esqs, were early on hand at the court house Saturday morning to appear in the arbitration of the standard suit of Representative Coyle against Thomas J. Morris, of Mahanoy City. The arbitrators, Joseph J. Moran, William Whitney and M. M. Burke, Esq., met for the fifth time. Attorney Breckons opened for the plaintiff and set forth all he proposed to prove, viz: That the defendant, on the 22nd of October, last, when the plaintiff was a candidate for public office charged him with being a "Mollie Maguire"; his father was a Mollie and he belongs to a society sworn to cut the throats of Protestants, &c. Mr. Breckons, aided by Attorney Coyle, proved the language to have been maliciously used by two witnesses. "Pall's" attorney, Mr. Reckel, did not appear and he conducted his own defense. Under Attorney Breckons' cross-examination Pall's convicted himself. Mr. Breckons made the closing speech in which he asked damages for his client. The arbitrators' award was filed at noon. It gives the plaintiff damages in the sum of $1,000 and costs. Representative Coyle has thus vindicated himself.

Obituary.
Miss Henrietta Carl, daughter of Frederick and Elizabeth Carl, of South Jardin street, died yesterday morning, aged 19 years and 5 months. News of the young lady's death was received with deep regret, as she had won a large circle of friends by her amiability. A little over a year ago Miss Carl contracted a severe cold which eventually led to consumption. The funeral will take place on Wednesday, 1:30 p. m. Services will be held in the German Lutheran church and the remains will be interred in the Odd Fellows' cemetery.

Death Doings.

William T. Carter, a well known and wealthy coal operator, operating in the Beaver Meadow region, died last week.

Charles Tomarus, an aged resident of Walker township, died on Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. Malinda Farrow, a former resident of Tanamqua, died at Audenried last week, aged 61 years.

Stable Destroyed.

The stable connected with the Gilbertson colliery, at Gilbertton, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Four mares were consumed by the flames and four were so badly burned it was necessary to kill them. Sixteen escaped. The building and all the hay and other feed it contained were destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

It has been proven by living witnesses that P. P. Dana's is a remarkable specific for the quick cure of the difficult and dangerous disease of the throat, the equal of the best. Cost 25 cents. P. P. Dana is sold at P. P. D. Kirin's drug store.

A PATRIOTIC DISCOURSE.

VETERANS AND THEIR FAMILIES ATTEND CHURCH.

A SERMON ON ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Rev. Haynes Delivers It—Rev. O'Boyle preaches on the Public School System and Says It Has Enemies.

CHURCH goes were treated to two sermons of special patriotic teachings at two of the local churches last evening—one by Rev. Robert O'Boyle, at the Trinity Reformed church, the fourth of his sermons to young men, and the other by Rev. Haynes, at the English Lutheran church. The former had "Our Public Schools," for his subject and the latter took the "Life of Abraham Lincoln."

Rev. O'Boyle took his text from the fourth chapter of St. Paul's book to the Galatians, "For ye are all one in Christ Jesus." "But it is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing." The public school system is a good thing, the pastor said, and we should hold on to it. We, as citizens of a common country, should strive to maintain that glorious institution which was established by our forefathers, which had its birth in the colonial days, and which is the foundation of one of the grandest governments on the face of the earth.

The sermon was not a lengthy one, but so timed that the leading points of the discourse were ably and sufficiently brought out. The discourse embraced three divisions, the aim, the scope and the influence of the public school system.

The system, Rev. O'Boyle said, is distinctly American. We may not have the universities of which the European countries boast, but a comparison of those countries with America shows the great advantages of our public school system, which educates the masses.

This country is distinctly peculiar and its educational system is peculiar. In this country we have no union of church and state and we cannot be too thankful for that. We have a free church and a free state. The church looks after the education of the heart and prepares citizenship for heaven, the state looks after the education of the mind and molds citizenship for this land. A Democratic Republic based upon universal suffrage of the people depends upon the intelligence of the people, and for that reason the state has a noble object in view in establishing and maintaining the public school system.

The scope of the system is to educate the young, regardless of nationality, color, race, language or creed. It means to educate the sons and daughters of the rich as well as those of the poor; it means to educate the Roman Catholic children as well as those of Protestants and no distinction is made. Its scope is universal and if we interfere with it we interfere with the system itself we weaken it.

The influence of the public school system has been such that it has made America the beacon light of the world among nations. But that system has an enemy and the enemy is such that if it could it would destroy every school house in this land. Why? Because the enemy claims the public schools of our land are godless. They say "we believe in education as you do, but the schools are godless. They do not teach christianity." They do not teach christianity and develop the heart and mind in the child that make it a noble and useful man or woman. Years ago the bible was read in the public schools; our enemies told us that it was showing partiality, we weakened and put the bible out; now they tell us the schools are godless. Put the bible in! Is there a more grander essay than the sermon on the mount by Christ? Return them all.

Rev. O'Boyle exhorted his listeners to stand by the public school system and see that only God-fearing people are put in charge of them. In closing the sermon he said there are rumors of barring in connection with the public schools. "Men who will barter the system," said he, "put on the same plane with Benedict Arnold, or any other man who would sell and betray a cause of freedom. Here is your opportunity; here is the test; will you be men among men and citizens among citizens. You have a good thing in the public school system. Keep it."

In the large attendance in Rev. O'Boyle's church there were many people who are connected with public school work, but are not regular attendants at the church. Rev. Haynes also had a number of special attendants at his church, including members of Watkin Waters Post, No. 146, G. A. R., Henry Horncastle Camp, No. 49, Sons of Veterans, and the Women's Relief Corps and Ladies' Aid societies connected with the first named organizations. Rev. Haynes treated the subject, "Abraham Lincoln," with true patriotic spirit and in an able and convincing manner. It was an interesting and impressive discourse, and thoroughly appreciated by all who heard it.

COURT NEWS.

Cases That Were Disposed of at Pottsville To-day.

POTTSVILLE, Feb. 13.—Judge (Hobbs) was alone on the bench this morning in motion court and handed down a number of opinions. In the case of W. H. Bright vs. Catherine Grady, returned to Justice of the Peace, Service of summons declared insufficient, and proceedings of Justice set aside.

McManis vs. John Toole, the charge of court was filed.

In case of Medlar vs. Wadlener and Schmidt, bill for judgment in default of sufficient affidavit of defense, Rule made absolute.

In Hoppen vs. Richardson, Attorney Wadlinger for defendant, in which fi. fa. and set. fa. had been issued, an order was made placing set. fa. at head of trial list and preserving list of fi. fa. pending trial.

Robert Schwank and George Dyson were admitted as members of the bar.

The license of H. E. Palmer, of Shenandoah, was transferred to Anthony Yarkus.

Monday next was fixed for argument in the case of Robins vs. Rogers on a rule for judgment.

A rule to open judgment in case of Levine vs. Titman was refused, pending preparation of defendant's affidavit.

Thomas Richardson, applicant for new union stand in Mahanoy City, and witnesses were heard. Also Mrs. Rose Medico, of Robinson township, William F. Bradburn, of Union township.

CENTRALIA.

Misses Ella and Katie King, of Mahanoy City, are visiting their cousin, Miss Mary Carney, of this place.

William Jones, a student at the Bucknell University at Lewisburg, is spending a short vacation with his parents here.

Lewis Davis, our popular young druggist, attended a party at Girardville Friday evening, in company with his sister, Miss Laura.

George Troutman, one of our bright young men who has been working in Philadelphia, is here visiting his parents.

Miss Lettie Spurr is seriously ill.

Mrs. Joseph Southwood, of Mt. Carmel, was here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Williams.

Miss Mary Irvin has a severe sore throat and is confined to her home.

Mrs. James Darrah, who was visiting her daughter, Mrs. James Lynch, has returned to her home.

Miss Edith Gewinner attended the funeral of a friend at Pottsville on Wednesday.

Miss Cassidy, of Shenandoah, is the guest of her cousins, the Misses Mary and Dora Maley.

Political Points.

One of the next County Commissioners should come from Tanamqua and the Republicans would add strength to their ticket by selecting one of the present County Auditors, Charles F. Allen. He is fully qualified for the position and has hosts of friends in the eastern end of the county.

The election of the Citizens' borough ticket is a foregone conclusion. It is but a question of how large a majority it will have. Make it decisive enough.

There is scarcely a day passes now but that a candidate or two for a county office does not visit Shenandoah soliciting support. The woods are unusually full of patriots this year.

The News is still undecided to keep up its course. "The Germans are all right"—in a horn. Tally from that quarter has little cheer for the sturdy German voter this year. The attempt to make it appear by the News, that the Welsh voters in town are disgruntled over the Citizens' borough ticket, should be taken with due allowance. The Welsh are not built that way and, with a few exceptions, will vote for the exceptional Citizens' ticket to a man.

From next session Shenandoah Democrats will have at least two candidates for each county office to be nominated next fall.

Constiveness can be permanently cured by the use of Mandrake Bitters. In

Will Continue.

Revival services will be continued every night this week in the Methodist Episcopal church. As a result of the meetings already held over forty persons have been received into the church. The Rev. J. F. Kerlin, of the Central Pennsylvania Conference, will preach to-night and to-morrow night. All are invited.

Sent for Your Picture.

Robert J. Stephenson, who has been working the cheap crayon picture scheme in Syracuse, N. Y., was ordered held for the grand jury for grand larceny. There are 2300 photographs from New York and Pennsylvania in his possession, which can be reclaimed by the owners.
