OBES OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and itears During His Travels.

I have been requested to call attention to the necessity for the better preservation of order in the gallery of Forguson's theatre. The disturbance in that part of the house at the opening of each act Wednesday evening prevented the people in the lower part of the house from heuring what was said on the stage. There are other causes of complaint and it is hoped the management will try be stop the evils, even if it becomes necessary to gjeet the unruly people.

The construction of the electric railway between Girardville and Ashland has so far progressed that a car made a trial trip over the track yesterday with much satisfaction. There are many people at this end of the line auxiously awaiting for that branch to be declared open. Car No. 31 is being put in order for operation on the Gilberton valley

A slight misunderstanding between a citizen of town and his sou a few evenings ago almost resulted in the latter having the top of his head slown off. The son left his ome stating that he would work all night. Temptation seised the young man and instuad of remaining at work he sought the town. At about two a, m, he went home and not wishing to disabuse his father's mind on the night work schedule he concluded to effect an entrance through one of the windows. After some trouble he succeeded in releasing the window such from its fastenings he raised it. At the same time the carrel of a gun was shoved under his now and a voice in the darkness at the stock end of the gun shouted, "Up with your arms, sr rouge a dead man." The voice was that of ne fither and since that time the young man arries a laten key and works a full shift.
