OBE'S OBSERVATIONS. What He Seva and Hears During His Travels.

A funny story, hinging upon the stupidity f a Polish servant girl, was told the other evening. The wife of one of our prominent itizens was taken ill and her husband intructed the servant to scale a spange wall and take it to the sick soom. The girl put the sponge in a pot of boiling water and al-Many of the Voters at Work in lowed it to remain there for some time. When called to time the servant hastened to the kitchen, put the boiling sponge on a plate, and tendered it to the involid with a knife and fork.

his early managerial career in town. An taent wanted to book an "Unde Tom" for "only one night." but Mr. Ferguson would not listen to the proposition. "I won't take it, I toll you ; it's played out," he said. But the agent had come to stay and he was as orsistent as the manager was obdurate.

What do you want for the house, I'll rent it if I must, but I'll play that date," the agent ventured. Mr. Forguson told the man not to be foolish, that it would be throwing money away, and he didn't want to see that done. "Another thing," added Mr. Ferguion, "I have been obliged to pay the out-oftown fare of every 'Uncle Tom' company and that does not pay me."

"There is my $50 for the house," exclaimed the agent, " and you won't be asked for a cent when we come

Mr. Ferguson then insisted upon the agent taking $20 of the money back saying, "I won't be hard with you and we will be quits, whether you win or lose."

The company came and turned people away from the doors. The laugh was on P. J. and after the show the manager took him
