MANY OF OUR READERS, especially those who are in sympathy with the Citizens party, commended our article of last week on the organization of the Council and say it was wise and timely.

HAMILTON advocates are greatly encouraged by the action of the House Committee reporting favorably. Schuykill county kickers may as well give up the fight, for the new county is an assured fact.

The new Council will be organized on Monday, next, providing it does not show, as one Councilman expressed it several days after the spring election: "It snowed the day before, the same day and has snowed every day since, and we are hoked."

This ground hog has lost his prestige. Few of his old advocates have retained their former confidence in him. But give him another chance. All signs fall in dry weather, and possibly the animal was not aware that Jupiter and Mars were in close conjunction when he ventured outside his winter quarters.

The village of Union Springs, N. Y., is about to try a novel experiment in the way of temperance reform. A number of prominent citizens, including the village president and several clergymen, propose to take under their own control the sale of intoxicating liquors.

SMITH WHIPS GODDARD

The "Barrier Giant" Knocked Out After a Hard Fight.

EIGHTEEN ROUNDS WERE FOUGHT.

A Dispute Over the Gloves Delays the Opening of the Contest—Cries of Foul Against One of Smith's Blows—Greeney-Dawson Fight a Draw—Champion Challenge Smith.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—In the preliminary bout between Dawson and Greeney, blows were even. In the first and second rounds Dawson appeared to be playing with Greeney. In the third round there was some sparring and lively exchanges, during which both men went to grass. Then referee Duffy counted both out and so declared it. The men walked off arm in arm, amid derisive cheers from the crowd.

Then came the fight of the evening, the Goddard-Smith fight. Goddard entered the ring at 9:15. New Orleans time, with a confident air and a moment later Smith showed up. Both were greeted with cheers and the weights were announced as Goddard 135, Smith 155. Gloves were donned at 9:18, after a caution from the referee.

The men had a wrangle over the gloves. The weight, five ounces, was all right, said Goddard, but they were too short for his use. Smith protested against any change and after a while Goddard agreed to accept them. The men then shook hands and went to their corners. Time was called at 9:30.

First round—Goddard led and immediately clinched and then broke away. Goddard got in his work on Smith's neck, drawing first blood from his enemy. Smith took his full time to rise and before he was up the gong rang with Goddard in great favor.

Second round—Smith opened with a jab, but Goddard let him have it again on the damaged ear. Humors were easy in this round.

Third round—Goddard reached for Smith with his left and then let him have one hard on the stomach. Smith landed on Goddard's neck with his left and cries of foul were heard. The referee refused to allow the foul.

Fourth round—Goddard landed heavily on Smith's jaw. Goddard tried to force Smith to the ropes and a furious fight at once ensued. Both men were blowing like grampus at the close of the round.

Fifth round—The men came together and some lively exchanges ensued. Goddard had decidedly the best of the round.

Sixth round—Goddard landed a straight left on Smith's neck and the men clinched. Then came some terrific fighting. Smith was adjudged to have the best of the round.

Seventh round—Smith punched Goddard three times with his left and then knocked him to his knees, from which he arose just in time to save himself. Goddard landed hard with his left, landing with great force on Goddard's neck, when the bell rang.

Eighth round—In this and the two succeeding rounds the seventeen-time world champion was in the lead on both sides with honors easy.

Nineteenth round—Smith pulled himself together, started at Goddard wickedly and landed his right forcibly on Goddard's neck. Then Smith swung with his left on Goddard's neck and Goddard returned with his right forcing matters. Smith showed wonderful spirit and ability and the crowd cheered wildly for him as Goddard's second threw up the sponge and the referee declared Smith the winner in the eighteenth round.

Choyneki Challenges Smith. NEW ORLEANS, March 4.—Joe Choyneki announces that he will fight Smith before the club offering the largest purse and a side bet of any amount. The Crescent City club will hang up a purse of $10,000.
