

A Weak Digestion

strange as it may seem, is caused from a lack of that which is never exactly digested—fat. The greatest fact in connection with appears at this point—it is partly digested fat—and the most weakened digestion is quickly strengthened by it.

The only possible help in Consumption is the arrest of waste and renewal of new, healthy tissue. Scott's Emulsion has done wonders in a Consumption just this way.

THE LAW IS SATISFIED.

Preacher Hamilton Electro-cuted at Sing Sing.

A CRUEL MURDERER PUT TO DEATH.

The Negro Preacher Bids Farewell to Warden Brown and Takes His Seat in the High Wooden Chair Executed. The Frenzied Voltage Used Causes an Instantaneous and Painful Death.

SING SING, N. Y., April 3.—Once more since electricity has been employed as the means of taking the lives in New York State of criminals convicted of murder in the first degree, the law has been satisfied and today James L. Hamilton, the brutal and cowardly Long Island wife murderer, was put to death in the dismal death chamber within the walls of Sing Sing prison.

After passing what seemed to be a few hours of painful sleep on the little cot in his cell, Hamilton was awakened at an early hour this morning and told by his warden to prepare for the doom which awaited him as he had but a short time to live, and that within a few hours at the most, he would be called upon to march to the death chamber where he was to pay the penalty for the crime of which he had been found guilty.

Shortly after the condemned man had been awakened Warden Brown appeared at the door of Hamilton's cell and read the death warrant in a low voice, at the conclusion of which the prisoner, with tears streaming down his cheeks, knelt by the bedside and delivered a lengthy prayer, in which he invoked forgiveness for his unwarranted crime.

When Hamilton had finished his prayer Rev. Father Creden, his spiritual adviser, was admitted to his cell and spoke words of consolation to the condemned man, telling him to bear up bravely under the trying ordeal, and to meet death like a man and a Christian. Hamilton then declared his willingness to die and said he was ready to go at any time. A new suit of black clothes was handed to him which he quickly donned and all was in readiness for the march to the execution room.

Soon after the warden and newspaper representatives had been escorted to the execution room Warden Brown ordered the two guards on watch at Hamilton's cell to bring the condemned man to the room. Hamilton was quickly obeyed and soon the garb, prisoner and spiritual adviser stood in the presence of the warden and in full view of the chair in which Hamilton was to pay the penalty prescribed by law for murder in the first degree.

Hamilton twice glanced at the chair and looked at the warden with a forced smile on his countenance, but uttered not a word until ordered to sit down, when he simply said "All right," and walked peacefully unimpeded to the instrument of death and took his seat in the high and uncomfortable looking wooden chair.

Hamilton submitted quietly to the placing in position of the electrodes, and to being strapped in the chair, and made good bye to Warden Brown, the guards and minister to a firm voice, after which the signal was given by the warden and the current in the little closed-lid room off the death chamber was turned on and the current of electricity had passed through the murderer's body in the twinkling of an eye. The body arched and strained at the straps that bound it to the chair about the same as has been noticeable in previous executions, although the greatly increased voltage seemed to produce little or no effect, for in less than half a minute from the time the current was first turned on Hamilton was dead and the law was satisfied.

In less than an hour from the time the warden and newspaper men arrived at the prison they had witnessed the execution, seen the body removed from the chair and filed quietly out through the warden's office into the open air.

The victim was only given one shock but the current was kept on until it was a sure thing that Hamilton was dead, the voltage being reduced to 500 before it was shut off entirely. There was no burning of the flesh as has been the case in nearly all previous executions.

When the black flag was run up over the prison announcing that all was over, the small crowd which had congregated on the outside of the walls dispersed quietly and went to their respective homes without having seen a thing of what had just been going on in the cell.

The general public pronounced the most successful execution ever witnessed since the electric chair was first used. After the autopsy Hamilton's remains will be interred in quick lime in the prison cemetery. The crowd about the prison was about as large as usual when an execution is taking place on the inside.

The voltage used in Hamilton's case was 1,600 at the start, which was increased to almost 4,000. The idea of the increased voltage is said to be original with Warden Brown and its success to-day will insure its adoption in all executions in the various state prisons in this state in the future.

THE SENATORIAL DEBATE

To be Continued at Washington this Week.

THE WESTERN CASES TO BE SETTLED

The Little Business Yet to Come Before the Senate—The Ranch Investigation to be Called Up by the Republicans—The Russian Treaty Not to be Withdrawn—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Some of the resolutions of the senate deny the statements that the inquiry into the charges made against Senator Bland, of North Dakota, is to be discontinued. It has been decided by the chairman of the party that resolutions will not be introduced until after the investigation and upon close scrutiny of the evidence that was used to effect the election of Mr. Bland.

They say, in view of the fact that Mr. Bland, the republican speaker of the House, was re-elected for Bland and then, left his seat and did not return until after the election, that his committee would be likely to find some evidence in all cases for the republican candidate. It becomes apparent that there is legitimate scope for investigation in connection with the election.

When asked about the matter Senator Chandler said he understood it to be the intention of the republican members of the senate to discontinue the investigation of the election of Senator Bland.

Opposed to the Draft. WASHINGTON, April 3.—Little messages from a senatorial source indicate that the republican members of the senate are generally opposing the ratification of the Russian treaty, of which the republican members of the House are a strong supporter. A republican member of the House, however, has been reported to have called the Kelly incident of a republican's previous administration in connection with the war.

Gresham Makes a Deal. WASHINGTON, April 3.—In view of the statements which have appeared during the last few days concerning the possibility of a deal between the republican members of the House and the republican members of the House, the secretary of state has sent to the congress of the United States in Paris, a dispatch from which the following is reported: "Whether the state for the treaty depends upon the ratification of the treaty by the House of Representatives, the administration will do everything in its power to maintain the treaty of the United States and to support the treaty and control before the ratification of the treaty."

To Break the Debate This Week. WASHINGTON, April 3.—The ending week in the senate will witness the continuance of the debate on the cases of the senators appointed from western states with the probability that before Saturday the vote will be taken. There now appears to be little, if any reason why the senate cannot adjourn as soon as it is called by the president that he has no further communications to send in.

Easter Celebrated in New York. NEW YORK, April 3.—With all the pomp and splendor of ceremony, with all the fragrance of excitation, with the fragrance and beauty of spring flowers, with joyful and glad jubilation, Easter Sunday was celebrated. The day was clear and the weather grew colder as the day wore on, and the flurry of the morning was soon exchanged by the weavers for their warmer winter clothing. The services in all the churches were on an exceptionally elaborate scale.

Elizabeth, N. J., Visited by Fire. ELIZABETH, N. J., April 3.—The Temple opera house was entirely destroyed last night by a fire which started from an explosion of gas in the property room. The building was frame and was owned by a stock company and managed by A. H. Stinson. The loss is $55,000; insurance, $25,000.

Griffin May Have Been Murdered. TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 3.—The coroner's jury in the case of Walter Griffin, of Detroit, found dead in the woods here, has not reached any verdict. There are some suspicious circumstances in the case, and H. D. Wright, the dead man's companion, was held in default of $500 bail as witness.

Valuable Property Goes up in Smoke. NEW YORK, April 3.—The seven-story brick building, 300 and 312 Second avenue, was destroyed by fire yesterday. James B. Duke placed the total loss at $95,000. The loss is wholly covered by insurance. Between 200 and 300 girls were employed in the building.

An Ex-convict Instantly Killed. CHICAGO, April 3.—D. J. O'Brien, an ex-convict, was shot and instantly killed by Harry McVey, at the latter's home on Dearborn street, as the result of a quarrel.
