POST OFFICE ROBBED!

MEDLAR, OF MAHANAY CITY, THE SUFFERER

THIS IS THE THIRD BURGLARY.

The Safe Was Blown Open—All the Postage Stamps and About One Hundred Dollars in Cash Carried Away.

POSTMASTER MEDLAR, of Mahanoy City, seems to be a special target for burglars. Last night his post office was robbed for the third time since he took charge of the office three years ago. The midnight visitors gave the office a thorough overhauling, but it is not believed the booty they secured amounted to near as much as they expected to find.

The post office of Mahanoy City is so located that it is a temptation to the crookmen. It is on the first floor of Kater's opera house building. This building has within its walls, in addition to a saloon and the theatre, a ballroom. It is remarked that each time the postoffice has been robbed a theatrical performance or ball has been given in the building on the same night. This has allowed the burglars to proceed with their lock and safe breaking without attracting attention by any noise they might chance to make.

The ball room is on the first floor of the building and has a door that connects it with the rear part of the post office. This door has always been kept securely fastened, but the bolts and bars have not been sufficient to balk the robbers. When Mr. Medlar and his clerks went to the post office in an early hour this morning they found it open. They also found the door of the safe open, the inner compartments and drawers open and empty, and the door about the safe was covered with papers and documents which were of value to the postmaster alone.

An inspection of the safe showed that the burglars had broken off the knob of the combination dial and immediately below the place where the knob was a hole large enough to admit a man's small finger was found. On the floor were chips of the steel and iron that had been made when this hole was drilled. The combination lock had been ruined by a blast of powder.

Everything of negotiable value had been taken from the safe, including all the postage stamps and about one hundred dollars in cash. The amount of stamps taken could not be learned and will not be known until Postmaster Medlar can go over his books. Not a postage stamp was left in the office and the postmaster was obliged to send to this town for a supply early this morning.

There is no clue to the perpetrators of the burglary. The authorities say they cannot even find anybody who heard the sound of the blast when the safe was blown open. This is a likely story, as the shoe company was playing "Escaped from Sing Sing" in the theatre last night and as there are several scenes in that play in which gun and pistol shooting is introduced and if people did hear a report when the safe was blown open they no doubt gave it no attention, supposing that it came from the theatre.

This morning the police at Mahanoy City arrested four tough looking characters and took them to the police headquarters. The men were searched from head to foot, but nothing that would connect them with the robbery was found and they were discharged. The only tool the burglars left was an iron instrument that resembled a punch.

Points.

The sewerage question is now on top.

Vegetation is pushing forward rapidly.

Llewellyn's street brigade is doing good work.

Look for "an eye opener" in to-morrow's HERALD.

Shenandoah is becoming headquarters for specialists.

Don't forget the "Old Soldier" at the theatre to-morrow night.

Many of our people are vigorously cleaning up. All should take a hand in the business.

It is predicted, says the Evening Chronicle, that when the spring schedule of the Valley train is made up and that goes into effect May 1st, that some of the trains will be discontinued. This is owing to the fact that the electric railway has practically abolished all the passenger traffic between Ashland and Shenandoah. From Saturday afternoon up until noon yesterday, but two tickets for Girardville and one for Shenandoah were sold at the Reading station.

Coughing Leads to Consumption.

Kemp's Balm will stop the cough at once.

Special Announcement.

The trustees of the Primitive Methodist church announce that as Rev. J. Prindle, the pastor, will be absent for several days, they have made arrangements for Dr. J. S. Callen, of town, to take charge of the services in the church next Sunday evening.

Said a noted man of 60 years, "my mother gave me DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills when I was a boy."

"Admiral."

Judging from the enormous sales since the introduction of this brand of cigarettes the "Admiral" is far superior to any other in the market. "Admiral" is not made by the trust. For full particulars call on or address B. Labows & Co., Mahanoy City, Pa.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

It is when an attempt is made to gather together the thousand varied threads of interest, wonder and grandeur of the World's Columbian Exposition and weave them into a web of words that shall but faintly show the marvellous beauty and coloring of the pageant of industry, science and art to which the people are bidden this summer, that its vastness becomes most apparent. Where to begin, is a question that seems unimportant compared with that other, where to end! For on every hand new themes of interest present themselves, and new fields of wonder tempt the visitor to wander from others whose fullness he is but beginning to comprehend.

For, if it were possible to build up an exhibition worthy the event it is designed to commemorate, that task is surely being accomplished. There have been other expositions, here and in other lands, but none of scope so ambitious, nor of fulfillment so magnificent and complete. Everything of human interest finds its exemplification here. Its projects have "built, wiser than they know." Apparently no plan is too vast, no detail too insignificant to daunt their enterprise or escape their care. Not that mistakes have not been made, or that everything connected with their labors will work with perfect smoothness and with satisfaction to all who may visit it. That were too much to expect of mere men and women. But, taken as a whole, regarded in its entirety and grandeur, the Exposition itself will be the highest and greatest honor that could be paid to those whose efforts have made it what it is to be.

SEWERAGE A CERTAINTY

THE BOROUGH DADDIES HAVE TAKEN ACTION.

PERMISSION TO APPLICANTS

Granted on Condition That the Parties Laying Pipes Shall Assume Responsibility for the Streets.

THE inhibitory steps towards giving the borough a perfect system of sewerage are now a certainty. When the matter was brought up at the last Borough Council meeting citizens and property owners asked permission to put in sewerage on the east side of Main street from Lloyd street to a point below Cherry, and also on West Centre street from Pear alley to a point near the Kohlnor colliery.

The Borough Council in no wise discouraged the movements, but in order that they should be relieved from any responsibility in case the paved or other sections of the streets should sink after the settling of the earth about the sewerage pipes, the matter was referred to the Borough Solicitor and the Roads and Highways Committee.

Last night the solicitor and committee met and prepared an agreement whereby the parties wishing to lay the sewerage pipes guarantee that the streets shall in no wise be impaired by the laying of such pipes, or subsequent settling, and if they should be impaired the streets will be put in proper condition at the expense of the parties desiring the sewerage.

The steam heat company will be required to sign a similar agreement before it will be allowed to extend its pipe lines.

The agreement has met with the approval of the Main street property owners who desire to put in sewerage and they will begin their work at once. Messrs Grant, the digging contractors, would have started their laying the trench for the sewerage pipes to day had the weather permitted. The work will be started to-morrow morning.

An Explanation.

Andrew Rose, one of the young men who were arrested for assaulting Peter Gredzievitz at West Shenandoah colliery Saturday afternoon, has asked an opportunity to explain the case. He says the costs were paid and the case settled because his brother and himself wished to avoid litigation, but that they were not the real offenders. Rose says that his brother lost a hammer and Gredzievitz became angered when asked if he had taken it. A dispute followed and Gredzievitz raised an iron bar to strike Eubank Rose, Andrew then jumped forward and struck Gredzievitz blow in the face with his fist that caused him to topple over. Andrew says no other blows were struck and that was only given to save his brother from being struck with the iron bar.

Abandoned Her Children.

A notice published in yesterday's HERALD by John Welter, of North Jardin street, to the effect that his wife had abandoned his bed and board and he would not be responsible for the debts she might contract in his name. The notice has caused some talk and has led to the development that Mrs. Welter has not only abandoned her husband, but has also left four small children upon his hands. Before inserting the notice Mr. Welter telegraphed to several places where he thought his wife would go, but received no replies. He does not entertain any fears for her safety and says she took a good supply of money with her.

The Froude Funeral.

The funeral of Rev. Froude's young daughter, Beatrice, took place this morning from the Primitive Methodist parsonage on West Oak street. The service was attended by a large number of the congregation and pastors of other churches, including Revs. Powick and Havico, of the Methodist Episcopal and English Lutheran. Rev. Froude and wife left on the 10:30 a. m. Lehigh Valley train with the remains for New York. The interment will take place at New Bedford, Mass., to-morrow.

Fair Next Week.

The Grand Army fair opens in Robbins' open house on Wednesday next, and will continue for several days. The articles that will be on exhibition and sale will cover every thing conceivable, nearly all the handwork of fair ladies. Don't forget to patronize it. Extensive Alterations.

On May 1st the work of making extensive alterations and improvements in the Evangelical church building on West Cherry street will begin. All the pews will be taken out and replaced with new ones and an improvement will be made in the arrangement of the pulpit. The interior of the church will be re-papered and the exterior repainted.

OBBS OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and Hears During His Travels.

Supervisor Llewellyn had a large gang of men at work on the streets yesterday scraping the mud together and carting it away. Centre, Oak, Jardin and White streets received the treatment and they now present a very much improved appearance. The Supervisor's work thus far is winning the applause of both the people and the Council. Let him continue in the good cause.

Squires Dengler and Monaghan and S. A. Beidall spent yesterday viewing a road in the Catawissa valley which passes through the farm owned by Nathan Manbeck and which Mr. Manbeck wants closed on the ground that it is no longer useful as a public highway. The real reason, it is said, is that the road runs under a shed connected with Mr. Manbeck's barn. Mines pass under the shed at night, and from work, with lighted mining lamps in their caps and Mr. Manbeck fears a spark from the lamps may some time set the barn on fire. If the road should be condemned the owner will then be in a position to keep off trespassers.

Speaking of farms reminds me that a number of Polish, Lithuanian and Hungarian families of town are reaching out for acres in the Catawissa valley. They are principally people who owned or worked farms in the Catawissa valley. The other day John Onuszek, of town, purchased for $1,000 a farm at Brandonville that was sold two years ago for $1,000. Yesterday deeds were drawn up for a farm to be purchased by another family of town.

I chanced to meet a couple of theatrical men yesterday and in the conversation that followed one of them was bemoaning the discouraging reports agents of other companies had given them of the patronage in some of the towns in this region. He could not understand why the shows (all of which he vaunted for as good ones) failed to draw good houses. At the same time the speaker said that he intended giving a production on two days notice. He was asked why he was making such a sudden appearance and explained that the advance man of his company had been taken ill and he was obliged to leave the company and move ahead to do the "bitting" and make other arrangements. The man who wondered at the failure of companies to draw unconsistently furnished the explanation. The people have not yet become so enthusiastic over theatricals that they can be drawn into the theatres on ten minutes' notice. The first thought, the first cost in a theatrical venture is advertising, and it must be timely and abundant. The people must first be informed of the proposed coming of a theatrical company, the merits and reputation of the play and company must be placed before them, and then they must have time to reflect and assure themselves that the representations are worth while and they are not being hoodwinked by some barn storming combination. Advertising is invaluable in all classes of business, and especially in theatrical circles. The majority of managers appreciate this, but there are a number who do not. Barnum, Forepaugh and like men admitted time and again that their successes did not hinge solely upon the merits of their shows, but were brought about principally, and in many instances wholly, by the printed matter on the bill boards and the advertisements in the newspapers; and the theatrical man of to-day who thinks he is smarter in his line of business than Barnum or Forepaugh were is playing hide-and-seek with his own common sense. The manager who hides his light under a bushel and springs his "greatest show on earth" at the eleventh hour must not blame the people if he fails to pull in the shekels. This rule also applies to merchants.

It has been remarked that it is a rule when one man of a group pulls out his watch to note the hour all others present do likewise, sometimes involuntarily, and the time indicated on the dial is found to differ that even two watches of a number do not correspond. The rule is not infallible, although I will admit that I discovered it for the first time the other evening. While I was sitting in a barber shop one of the five others present pulled out his watch. "Twenty minutes of eleven," said he. Another looked at his watch and said, "That's it, exactly." The other four, including myself, pulled out their chronometers and great was the surprise when they shouted in chorus, "That is the time by my watch."

Quite a discussion followed the incident, during which the barber was coaxed to open a box of cigars under the representation that the discovery of an exception to the ancient rule would bring luck to his place. The barber will upon a box after Cleveland satisfies the office seek re.
