STRELTON, April 12.—James Bell, a burly negro, murdered his mistress, Mrs. Ellen Miller, in their dingy and filthy little room here some time during Monday night by poisoning and choking her to death. The woman's dead body was found on the bed in the shanty by neighbors yesterday, and by the side of the corpse lay the murdered woman's sisters so drunk that it was hard to make her understand her surroundings when awakened. The murderer escaped, but officers are hot on his trail with a fair chance of capturing him. Mrs. Miller's sister is held in jail at Harrisburg as a witness. All of the parties were drunk when the horrible crime was committed.

A Receiver May be Asked For.

HARRISBURG, April 12.—A quiet struggle for supremacy, which threatened to develop into a first-class row, has been going on, it is said, for some time among the stockholders of the Bradford Old Exchange. Ever since the bull ring was relegated to the cellar members of the board have been asking for a dividend on their stock, but so far without avail. At a recent meeting a proposition was submitted by a representative of one of the largest stockholders to wind up the affairs of the exchange by selling the building either at private sale or public auction. This was agreeable to a large number of the minority stockholders, who readily signed a petition to close the business of the exchange. Some hitch in the matter has occurred, and it is now said the court will be asked to appoint a receiver for the institution.

HUNDREDS MAY BE DEAD

Fearful Explosion in a Mine at Ponty-Pridd.

MANY UNFOUNATUNATES ENTOMBED.

Over 300 Miners Still in the Workings With but Little if Any Chance of Being Rescued Alive—The Catastrophe Caused by Sparks From an Engine—Rescuing Parties Hard at Work.

LONDON, April 12.—A frightful mining accident occurred yesterday at Ponty-Pridd, Wales. A spark from an engine ignited the gas in the coal pit near Ponty-Pridd and caused the mine to explode. A large number of miners were at work at the time and the explosion caused terrible havoc. The exact number of lives lost is not known, but it is rumored that twenty persons were killed and many others were more or less seriously injured.

Later accounts from Ponty-Pridd show the situation to be more appalling than at first supposed. Over 300 miners are entombed in the mine.

The engine house is destroyed and there is the greatest fear that hundreds may have perished. The rescuers who went down were driven back without being able to bring up more than five of the dead and the fate of the others remains in doubt. The most appalling scenes are witnessed, and thousands of men, women and children, relatives of those below are crowding about the mouth of the coal pit.

Still later advices from Ponty-Pridd do not lighten the calamity, and the worst fate is feared for hundreds of miners. The pit is worked in sections, one section being above another. The fire resulting from the explosion broke out in the eastern section. From this section seventy men succeeded in reaching the surface through the main dip working, led by a miner who knew the track.

They had a terrible struggle to get out, forcing their way through fire and smoke. Many of them were scratched and all were terribly exhausted when they emerged to safety. They brought no good news, as to those who were left behind, but on the contrary expressed their dread that all those in the mine had perished.

Some of the Bodies Recovered.

LONDON, April 12.—At an early hour this morning it was impossible to obtain the full details of the accident at the Ponty-Pridd coal mine. The first alarm was given at 2:30 yesterday afternoon. The rescue party from an engine in a four-foot seam succeeded in having landed a pile of coal work. The rescue party from the main dip worked and finally landed the bodies of the miners in the seam. The rescue party from the main dip worked and finally landed the bodies of the miners in the seam. The rescue party from the main dip worked and finally landed the bodies of the miners in the seam.

One of the rescuing party who ventured too far was killed. The men who saved themselves immediately after the fire broke out were too much confused and frightened to observe the position of their fellow workmen. They are unable to give any clear account of the distribution of the miners and the work of rescue must therefore proceed under all the difficulties of uncertainty. There are numerous volunteers to further push the work of rescue as soon as it becomes possible. At present the flames and smoke would render any such undertaking vain, if not fatal to the party making the descent. There is little doubt, moreover, the most, if not all, of the men left below have been suffocated to death.

Could Not Reach the Bodies.

LONDON, April 12.—Hauling granules, barrels of water and pipes attached to fire engines on the surface are being used to extinguish the flames in the mines at Ponty-Pridd. In two sections of the mine the fire was put out. The extinction of the flames has been followed in each case, however, by the accumulation of gas, and it is feared that explosions may follow shortly. Another attempt to enter the seam in which the fire started has proved fruitless. Although the rescue party saw six dead bodies they were prevented by smoke and heat from reaching them.

INDIANA RAILROAD TAX CASES.

Justice Fuller Announces the Decision of the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Chief Justice Fuller has announced the decision of the supreme court upon the petition of counsel in the Indiana railroad tax cases to advance them on the docket. The petition was granted and the cases set down for argument on the second Monday of next term.

In these cases is involved the constitutionality of the new tax law of Indiana, the railroad holding that the law burdens and the tax officials exercise a practically confiscatory rate as applied to the property of the corporations. In the state courts the law has been upheld, and the railroads came to the supreme court of the United States for relief.
