MAY NOT GO TO THE FAIR

An Extra Session of the Legislature Possible

AFTER THIS SESSION ADJOURNS.

Our Lawmakers May be Called Upon to Sit in the Legislative Halls Instead of Attending the Columbian Exposition-The Business to be Transacted in Case of an Extra Session.

Hammmung, April 25.-There is talk here of an extra session of the legislature, and those who have had their ears to the ground profess to say that the call will come immediately upon the adjournment of the present session, and that the old, old cause will be assigned—failure to pass apportionment bills that are acceptable to all the state:

There are congressional, fudicial and legislative apportionment bills now on their way through both houses, but all are partisen, and, in the eyes of some legislators, none are fair, so that if they reach the governor they may not receive his approval.

As the governor is, and always has been, a strictler for fair play in the matter of apportionment, this dailying with apportionment matters by the majority it is thought will lead to a matural result—a veto. It cannot be learned in administration circles that an extra assion has been con-sidered, yet it is in the air, and it is said that quiet kints have been dropped that legislators need not prepare to go to the World's Fair as their services will be needed by the state. Should Governor Pattison call an extra session it will be the third time he has issued his proclamation for that purpose. The first was in 1888, when the republicans failed to "carry out the maintaies of the constitution" and did not pass apportion-ment bills. That session lasted from June to December—the bouse being democratic and the senate republican, and ended without result. It was an exceedingly costly

The governor's second call was in the fall of 1891, the reason for it growing out of the Bardsley affair and the alleged connection with it of the state's financial of ficer. After a weary drag of several months the senate concluded it did not have jurisdiction and that ended the seaalon.

It would hardly be expected that an extra session, with both branches republican, would last very long. Apportionment hills would probably be passed just as dictated by republican leaders, they would be voted by the governor, the legislature would fix a near date for size die adjournment and then the matter would end. ment and then the matter would end.
