DELIBERATE SUICIDE.
A Polish Miner at Anderson Ends His Life.

Stanislaus Marowitz, a Polish miner, committed suicide at Anderson yesterday in a most deliberate manner. He went to work in the mines yesterday morning, but complained of feeling unwell and left the place after working a couple of hours. Upon returning to his boarding house he went to his room and cut his throat with a razor. He then locked the razor in his trunk and put the keys in his pocket. The wound in his throat was a fatal one and death ensued within a few minutes. The body was discovered in the room about twenty minutes after. The victim had a wife and four children in the old country. He had been drinking heavily of late and it is supposed he was temporarily insane when he committed the deed.

The New "Ledger."
The staid old Ledger has made a new departure. On Monday it appeared in a new dress, enlarged and decidedly improved in form and appearance. The copy before us is full of general and local news and its much increased advertising space is so well filled that another page or two will be added to prevent encroachment upon the reading matter. We congratulate Mr. Childs upon the success which has attended this old and thoroughly established favorite. It is always a welcome visitor to the HERALD spectrum. A fac simile of the first issue of the Ledger accompanied Monday's edition.

GEORGE W. WEISS.

Schenck County's Able Superintendent of Public Instruction.

From the "School Journal."
The office of county superintendent is one of more influence and honor in Pennsylvania than in other states, and commands better remuneration; the officer receiving from $1,000 to $4,000 per year, according to the size of the county and the amount of labor required. Schenck county is one of the large counties of the state, and Supt. Weiss holds a position of much responsibility. He was thrown in his youth upon his own resources, and the early contact and struggle with the world, thus necessitated, developed in him the energy and pluck which has so largely contributed to his success in his after life. He began teaching a rural school at the age of seventeen, and has ever since, except during his years of student life, been actively engaged in public school work. He was educated at the Freeland seminary (now Ursinus college), at Collegeville, and at the State Normal School at Millersville, graduating from the latter in 1870. He labored as principal of the schools of Port Carbon for seven years, then as principal of the Schenck-Hill Haven schools for four years. In 1881 he was elected by a large majority to his present position as county superintendent, and has held this for four terms of three years each.

During these twelve years, Supt. Weiss has made a remarkable record for effective and progressive educational work. When he came into office, the school work all through his county was of the mechanical, traditional kind. The A B C was taught in the primary schools; instead of writing from the start pupils "printed" their lessons; there was an absence of all supplementary reading; the study of geography consisted of memorizing definitions and "studying maps;" the spelling was all from the spelling-book; clay-modeling and kindergarten methods in primary schools were absolutely unknown, and what little drawing there was consisted of needless copying of a picture from one page of a drawing-book to another.

Supt. Weiss has literally revolutionized the work in the schools of his county. To-day the schools in the villages, and in many of the rural and mining districts of his county, have in them more of the spirit and the methods of modern education than the schools of any other county in the state, and more than many of the cities of the state. Any one who wishes to see the principles of the "New Education" worked out under difficult conditions in rural schools, will find it done in Schenck county.

The old A B C method has disappeared. Arithmetic is taught objectively in the primary grades. Clay-modeling and drawing are taught in the majority of the schools, and most of the schools are supplied more or less with supplementary reading. The modeling board and rational methods of teaching geography are employed in most of the schools. There have been exhibits of school work at the annual county institute, in arithmetic, geography, history, clay-modeling, drawing, etc., which would do credit to the schools of many large cities, and much of the work of these exhibits was done by children in farming and mining districts.

The efforts of Supt. Weiss, at the outset to bring the schools into line with modern ideas were naturally opposed by conservative teachers and citizens; but he soon won the hearty support of the progressive people of his county; the changes proposed have been tried and approved.

As a means of aiding the advancement of education, Supt. Weiss divided his county into sections according to grades for part of the session, and employed experts to give instruction in methods of teaching. He also organized local teachers' institutes all over the county, at which the instruction is given by progressive teachers under his own supervision. For two summers he held a summer school in the county at which he had recognized experts from abroad to give instruction in methods of teaching. All this has made Supt. Weiss known throughout his native state among educators as possessing sound as well as progressive ideas, and caused him to be regarded as one of the leading representatives of the new education, that has taken root so strongly in Pennsylvania.

Political Paragraphs.
No more appointments for some time—Cleveland has gone to New York.
It begins to look as if a hall large enough to hold a Democratic County Convention will be hard to find, there are so many candidates.
Upon the surface one would think there was no one after the post office. Don't fool yourself—there is a scramble for it.
As soon as Cleveland returns from the naval review he will get down to work in real earnest and chop off the heads of Republican office-holders. Don't get weary, Democrats.

Grand Display of

FINE DRESS GOODS

DRESS GOODS is such a bewildering topic that we will not attempt a full description, but give a partial outline, which you can fill in by a personal inspection. There are the plain and changeable diagonals; plain, plaid, striped and invisible plaid serges; fancy mixtures in all sorts of odd weaves, dots, threads, cross-threads, hair-lines, lines here and there, many at a glance appearing alike, but upon examination are found entirely different. Our assortment of silks is complete—china silks, china surah, plain surah, bengaline, plain, figured and changeable silks, in all the new shot effects. Full line of fancy braids to match any color of dress goods.

....In Wraps

We find the most stylish and the prevailing mode to be the Cape, in some of its variations, single, double or triple capes. Some are plain, others very highly decorated, with fancy induscent braid, butterfly colors, or some full arrangement at the neck, so much approved this season by the feminine fancy. To some, coats only are the correct garment. To those we would say coats are equally fashionable and stylish, many of these having capes also attached—sometimes one, two or three, as the taste or inclination of the wearer may desire.

We have this season, for the first time, added a Millinery Department, and have spared neither trouble nor expense to make it a success. The result exceeds our most sanguine expectations. This department will be under the same management and conducted on the same principles that have always characterized our entire business. We shall keep everything in trimmed and untrimmed hats, novelties of every description. Having secured a trimmer noted for her artistic and skillful work, we are enabled to suit all tastes. We invite a careful inspection of our entire store. All welcome.
