THIRD EDITION
CREDITABLE EXHIBITION.

Tenth Annual Exhibition of Mrs. H. Tempest Jenkins' Pupils.

On Thursday evening last the tenth annual exhibition of the work of the pupils in art of Mrs. H. Tempest Jenkins closed at Philadelphia. All the newspapers of that city mentioned very favorably upon the exhibition and as Mrs. Jenkins was formerly a resident of this town and has many relatives and warm acquaintances, abstracts from some of the comments may be interesting to many of the HERALD readers.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger said: "It is a rare treat, ranging from canvases of high merit to dainty bric-a-brac, illustrating the most exquisite decorative art, and throughout it is marked by boldness of execution that shows conscientious work united with versatile talent of no mean order. The whole exhibit represents the work of the pupils from October last to the present time. That hours as well as heads have been in earnest study is evident at a glance. Modesty put aside in an obscure corner of the studio is a small canvas which attracted much attention at the Paris Salon of 1889. It is the work of Mrs. H. Tempest Jenkins, and is what the French call a study of 'Laughing Potatoes,' a study so realistic and delicate that it calls to mind the best pieces of the late Michael Hartnett. The same lady is evident, at a glance, in some landscape studies, whose authorship, but for inquiry, would go unmentioned. The exhibit of decorative art is, on the whole, exceptionally good, and occupies a large place in the studio. Mrs. Jenkins' theory, in this particular branch of study, is that a good decorator must necessarily and primarily be a good figure and color artist. With this axiom in mind she first graduates her pupils from the pencil and brush, and the soundness of her principles is amply justified in the result."

REV. FOWICK'S SERMON.
The Discourse in the M. E. Church, Sunday Evening.

The sermon in the M. E. church on Sunday evening was from the words of Christ to Nicodemus, John 3:3. "Verily, verily I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." The New Testament doctrine of the new birth marks a decided advance upon the teachings of the Old Testament. Even Nicodemus, that master in Israel, was surprised at it. He had learned to look no farther than outward rites for deliverance from sin. But the Saviour directed his thought to an inward change of so radical a nature that he called it another birth for the secret of deliverance from sin and participation in the kingdom of God.

To be born again is to receive spiritual life. By nature man is dead in trespasses and sins. His chiefest need in life. The process by which he obtains it is called a "birth," a birth from above. Speaking of believers John says "they were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." Hence they are partakers of the divine nature, children of God, he gotten again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ. They were dead, but they heard the voice of the Son of God and they now live. Such expressions are surely more than empty figures of speech. The adoption into God's family, of which we read in the bible, is more than a piece of legal legalism by which the alien stranger is invited with the rights and privileges of sonship. It is an act which carries with it, in addition, communication of nature—a transmission of life—even the life of God by which we "are made partakers of the divine nature" as the Apostle plainly declares. In the account of the unutterable mystery of the incarnation of the Son of God the angel said to Mary: "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee and that which is to be born shall be called the Son of God." This may help us to understand what Jesus meant when he said to Nicodemus: "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God."

One therefore who is born again may be expected to have new affections—new plans and purposes in life—new powers of endurance and achievement. The things he once loved he will now hate and the things he once hated he will now love. Old things will have passed away and all things become new. He will no longer regard religion as offering a convenient provision for the flesh by which he can fulfill the laws thereof and yet escape the penalty. Jesus proposes to save us from our sin not by the constraint of outward law but that of an inward principle—not by the law of a carnal commandment but the power of an endless life. In response to the prayer of penitence and faith He offers to forgive our sins and renew our souls in His own image.

Jesus makes the new birth the test of spirituality and the supreme condition of entrance into the kingdom of God. Men and churches may draw the line somewhere else but Jesus draws it at the new birth. We may observe the forms of worship, bow as penitents at the altar of prayer, confess our sins and receive priestly absolution, receive the sacraments of the church and be inscribed as members of the same, but Jesus says "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." He may be a good citizen, and have enough religion to pass current among men but if he is without the life of God in his soul, whatever his position in church or state, he cannot enter the kingdom of God. Such truth may be humiliating and displeasing, but it is not my word but that of the Son of God. I am not responsible for the truth but for declaring it. If this truth is not to be relied upon the Bible is worthless, if it is, then much that passes for religion is worthless.

Grand Display of

FINE DRESS GOODS

DRESS GOODS is such a bewildering topic that we will not attempt a full description, but give a partial outline, which you can fill in by a personal inspection. There are the plain and changeable diagonals; plain, plaid, striped and invisible plaid serges; fancy mixtures in all sorts of odd weaves, dots, threads, cross-threads, hair-lines, lines here and there, many at a glance appearing alike, but upon examination are found entirely different. Our assortment of silks is complete—china silks, china surah, plain surah, bengaline, plain, figured and changeable silks, in all the new shot effects. Full line of fancy braids to match any color of dress goods.

.....In Wraps
We find the most stylish and the prevailing mode to be the Cape, in some of its variations, single, double or triple capes. Some are plain, others very highly decorated, with fancy indented braid, battery colors, or some full arrangement at the neck, so much approved this season by the feminine fancy. To some, coats only are the correct garment. To those we would say coats are equally fashionable and stylish, many of these having capes also attached—sometimes one, two or three, as the taste or inclination of the wearer may desire.

We have this season, for the first time, added a Millinery Department, and have spared neither trouble nor expense to make it a success. The result exceeds our most sanguine expectations. This department will be under the same management and conducted on the same principles that have always characterized our entire business. We shall keep everything in trimmed and untrimmed hats, novelties of every description. Having secured a trimmer noted for her artistic and skillful work, we are enabled to suit all tastes. We invite a careful inspection of our entire store. All welcome.
