Little Stir Over Prices Fixed for Stone Breaking.

It was decided last week that the borough authorities should employ a number of men to break the stone required for the bed upon which the Main street paving is to be done, and the price fixed for the work was 75 cents a ton. There are a number of men in town who are anxious for work on the streets, but will not break stone at such a price. Some of them have been very outspoken in the matter and have given the Borough Supervisor and several Councilmen an overhauling for offering men such a low price for the work. On Saturday Supervisor Llewellyn said that he was not responsible for the price, and anyone who wanted to work for it should apply to the street committee. Last night Councilman Oakley asked a HERALD reporter to state that he wanted it distinctly understood, although he is a member of the street committee, he had no hand in fixing the price and would not ask anyone to work for it.

DELANO DOINGS.

What is Going on in and About the Shops.

Engine No. 542, which exploded near Shenandoah last November, has been turned out of the shops again with new fire box and new boiler.

When the Lehigh Valley railroad first went under control of the Reading system many of the cars were painted the same color as the cars of the latter company. Now all cars that go into the shops to be repainted are painted on the old Lehigh Valley style.

Engines Nos. 387 and 388, which were doing duty on the Wilkes-Barre division, have been sent to the shops for repairs.

There are many empty houses at this place now. Many of the mechanics have moved away since the Reading system has had control of the shops, which caused a reduction of the working force.

Birthday Party.

Miss Ellie Barlow was tendered a surprise party at her residence on Union street Monday evening. Games and vocal and instrumental music made the evening pass very pleasantly, and at 10 o'clock supper was served. The guests were Misses Ida Jenkins, Katie McAndrew, Eliza Jenkins, Lizzie Lemm, Annie Gradwell, Cella Matze, May and Sarah O'Neill, Maude Gradwell, Alice Coyle, Amelia Rosewell, Annie McAndrew, Bessie Barlow, Maggie Parker, Katie and Esther Breslin, and Thomas Gradwell and George O'Neill.

A Reception.

Last February Michael Latuski, a Lithuanian, was arrested on a charge of adultery. While the case was being heard before Squire Monaghan the accused slipped out of the Justice's office and made his escape. He left the town and remained away until a few days ago. Yesterday Constable Toomey met and re-arrested him on East Centre street. The prisoner furnished bail for trial.

A Grand Success.

The May ball held in Robbins' opera house last night, under the auspices of the Schoppe orchestra, was a splendid success. It was attended by large numbers of people from Mahanoy City, Girardville and Ashland, all of whom expressed themselves as thoroughly pleased with the affair. The music was furnished by the Schoppe orchestra of fifteen pieces.

A May Party.

Many people in town have received invitations to attend a May Party to be held in Allen's opera house, Tamaqua, on the evening of the 29th inst., under the auspices of the Columbia Club, of which E. M. B. Shopp is president and H. D. Leopold secretary. The music will be furnished by the Schoppe orchestra of town.

REV. POWICK'S SERMON.

His Discourse in the M. E. Church Sunday Evening.

The sermon in the M. E. church on Sunday evening was in commemoration of the fourth anniversary of the Epworth League. The text was from I Corinthians 9:22: "I have made all things to all men that I might by all means save some." Paul's fertility of resource and power of adaptation seem to have known no limit. He was ever ready to brush aside prejudice and trample upon tradition and custom for the sake of saving men. We need more of the same spirit to-day. While holding as tenaciously as Paul to what is essential we ought to be as ready to sacrifice what is merely whimsical and traditional if by so doing we can the more effectually save the people. If Methodism means anything it means vital Christianity seeking the best methods whether new or old of saving men. That child of Providence, John Wesley, the founder of our church, was like Paul in at least two respects: intensely conservative at first and intensely radical at last. They were both high churchmen of the straightest sort, but when the light of Christ shone into their soul what things were gain to them they counted less for Christ.

This explains why Paul circumcised Timothy and refused to circumcise Titus, and why when preaching to the Jews he took his texts from the Bible but when preaching to the philosophers of Athens he took his texts from their tomb stones and altars and led them from the unknown God to him whom he declared unto them. It was the same spirit that led Wesley to organize the class meeting, notwithstanding the objection that it savored of the Roman confessional—which it does not—and to institute the office of local preacher—one of the most useful in the church and which has afforded exhibitions of consecrated heroism unsurpassed in the annals of human history and to establish the itinerancy which survives to day, although it is an anomaly in our civilization and out of all harmony with its genius. The Epworth League, the youngest child of our church, is the outgrowth of the same spirit which ever seeks by new adaptations to meet the needs of the present hour.

This organization of our young people in a supreme effort to "look up and lift up" is clearly in the line of providential institutions. It shows that the church is beginning to realize, as never before, the possibilities of youth. It is high time, for the church of to-morrow is to-day the church of the young. They are coming to the front in the business world as never before. The demand is all the executive branches of commercial life is for the energy of youth. Young men of thirty are older than they used to be at fifty. Why should it not be so in the religious life? The church has a right to expect more of her young than was ever before expected of youth. Yet it is to be feared that they are developing more rapidly along other lines than those which are religious. There are perils in organizations as well as advantages. There is a tendency to substitute membership in an organization for the performance of those activities which belong to the individual. It must be remembered that there is no substitute for old fashioned duty-doing. And then, not belonging to the society is sometimes made an occasion for shrinking one's duty. The cross for organization has become so marked that there are some who would not think of rescuing a drowning man unless they belonged to the national society for the preservation of human life, nor of feeding the hungry and clothing the naked unless they are identified with the department of mercy and help. As one recently said, "It will not do when we stand before the great white throne to plead as an excuse for neglected duty, 'Lord, I wasn't on the committee.'" The end of all our methods and organization should be to uplift fallen men till they take hold upon God and are saved from sin here and hell hereafter. This after all is the true test of all our organizations and all our methods.

FINE DRESS GOODS
DRESS GOODS is such a bewildering topic that we will not attempt a full description, but give a partial outline, which you can fill in by a personal inspection. There are the plain and changeable diagonals; plain, plaid, striped and invisible plaid serges; fancy mixtures in all sorts of odd weaves, dots, threads, cross-threads, hair-lines, lines here and there, many at a glance appearing alike, but upon examination are found entirely different. Our assortment of silks is complete—china silks, china surah, plain surah, bengaline, plain, figured and changeable silks, in all the new shot effects. Full line of fancy braids to match any color of dress goods.
We find the most stylish and the prevailing mode to be the Cape, in some of its variations, single, double or triple capes. Some are plain, others very highly decorated, with fancy indented braid, butterfly colors, or some full arrangement at the neck, so much approved this season by the feminine fancy. To some, coats only are the correct garment. To those we would say coats are equally fashionable and stylish, many of these having capes also attached—sometimes one, two or three, as the taste or inclination of the wearer may desire.
We have this season, for the first time, added a Millinery Department, and have spared neither trouble nor expense to make it a success. The result exceeds our most sanguine expectations. This department will be under the same management and conducted on the same principles that have always characterized our entire business. We shall keep everything in trimmed and untrimmed hats, novelties of every description. Having secured a trimmer noted for her artistic and skillful work, we are enabled to suit all tastes. We invite a careful inspection of our entire store. All welcome.
