The Constable is not used to ice water, and if he was, he would hardly indulge in it after so arduous an errand. He very naturally had a longing for some of Johnson's sparkling Lebanon, and to gratify his desire, stepped into the Cloud Castle, leaving his prisoner and her children in the parlor, while he repaired to the bar and ordered one of the biggest and freshest of schooners. This was the prisoner's opportunity—and, in a twinkling, she was out of the front door and cutting a lively gait for liberty. The alarm was sounded by a lady of the house, and Blake gave chase, and after a run of two blocks caught up with the woman. Had no one been watching the Constable would have had to indulge in another trip, perhaps with less successful results.

THE DAILY PAPER.

Brief Review of the "Herald's" History in Shenandoah.

For nearly a quarter of a century the HERALD has been directing its energies to the vital forces of the borough of Shenandoah and with pardonable pride it can say that it has been instrumental of helping to make the largest town in Schuylkill county out of a mere mining hamlet. The first copy of the HERALD was published on May 28th, 1870, with T. J. Foster, now proprietor and editor of the Colliery Engineer at Scranton, and H. C. Boyer, present editor of the paper, as its editors. Few people had the faith in the prospects of Shenandoah that the HERALD had. Many, though well-wishers of the paper, thought the undertaking premature. In its introductory editorial the HERALD said, "Knowing as we do, that Shenandoah is located in one of the best fields of the coal region, now being developed, perhaps more rapidly and extensively than any other, that its business prospects are second to no locality in the county, and that in spite of the depressing influences of the suspension, we see signs of improvement all around us, we are entirely confident of success."

This was when Shenandoah had a population of about 2,500, about the size of the Frackville of to-day. The slow-thinkers were here even at that early day and they shook their heads in reply to the word-painted picture of future prosperity which the paper placed before them.

True the paper had a hard struggle to get upon its feet and the slow-thinkers and moss-backed settlers frequently relieved their pent up sympathies with "I-told-you-so," but the HERALD stuck to its ray of hope which, in January, 1871, was brightened by the announcement that the Shenandoah valley was mining and sending to market more than one-sixth of the entire coal product of the county. There were 132 collieries in operation in the county at that time and but eleven of them were in the Shenandoah valley. This brightening of prospects made the HERALD jubilant and about that time the editors placed under the head line of the paper this motto, "To fear God, tell the truth and make money."

The HERALD devoted all its energies to impressing upon the minds of the people that the place was destined to become large, substantial and money-making and many have frequently said that had it not been for the enthusiastic predictions of the paper they would have left the place in its infancy and made investments in other sections of the country.

In pursuance of this policy of encouragement, enterprise and building up the HERALD devoted days and weeks to the collaboration and publication of industrial statistics showing the four first collieries in the county in point of amount of coal sent to the market for the year ending January, 1871, were the Colorado, Plank Ridge, Shenandoah and Kehley Run. They shipped an aggregate of 381,052 tons for that year, more than one-eighth of the entire product of the county.

The croakers were beginning to weaken on their first proclamations. The HERALD was meeting with success and its predictions about the town and region were being fully verified. But croakers will kick and these drones changed their line of argument to a prediction that the town would live but a short time; that the mineral deposits would soon be exhausted by the rapid development then in progress as shown by the statistics.

But the HERALD took a stand directly to the contrary and said editorially in February, 1871, "We may safely predict a future of business prosperity, wealth and improvement for our valley and borough such as has never before been equalled in the history of Schuylkill county." And in addition to this the paper said, "Our borough is destined to be one of the most important towns in Schuylkill county. We make this statement with a thorough understanding of what we write and because our belief in its truth is founded upon facts that nothing can gainsay. It is located in the richest deposit of anthracite coal yet proved in this country." In conjunction with this the HERALD opened a campaign for a general improvement of the town by urging the business men and property owners to petition for increased railroad facilities with a view to bringing trade to Shenandoah from Wm. Penn (then Griscom's), Lost Creek, Colorado, Connors, Mahanoy Plane and other patches. At the same time the HERALD urged the people to turn their attention to providing more school room. At that time there were seven public schools and seven teachers, with a total enrollment of 724. To-day we have 43 schools and a total enrollment of nearly 3,000.

Throughout its existence the HERALD has tried to do everything which it believed would be for the best interests of the town and its people. When times were hard and the collieries were idle eight months out of a year, with business of all kinds practically at a standstill, which was the case in 1871, the paper stood its ground and persisted in directing the attention of its readers to the bright side of the dark cloud. Its policy has always been to arouse the people to a realization of the truth that upon their enterprise, energy and public spirit depended their own welfare and that of the town. When not laying bare the true wealth and possibilities of the mineral deposits in and about the town, it detailed the advantages of additional highway and railway facilities; and in 1782 it was the first to direct the attention of the people to the fact that savings funds would build up the borough and it was not necessary for people to wait for riches before building their own homes.

But the HERALD was also very useful in another sphere. In the conspicuous part it took to wipe from existence the infamous blot that organization known as the "Mollie Maguires" placed upon society in the coal region of Pennsylvania it established itself firmly in the hearts of all law-abiding and sound-minded citizens. Its enterprise in that connection was so well appreciated that it acquired for the time a circulation exceeding that of any paper published in Pennsylvania outside of Philadelphia.

During the past ten years the HERALD has brought to the front many things which the people would never have undertaken but for the agitation. Several years ago it urged public sewerage. An election was held and the project was killed, but the HERALD, convinced that a system of sewerage was what the people wanted and should have, persisted in its agitation and to-day property owners in all sections of the town are applying to the Borough Council for permission to put in sewerage lines. The electric illuminating plants were first hinted at by the HERALD and years ago people laughed at the paper because it urged them to pave streets. And when the HERALD suggested that the town ... [illegible] ... yesterday. She was escorted ... the "Old Guard." The avenue was lined with people anxious to get a look at the princess.

borough financial condition will allow. There is really but one thing the HERALD has advocated for years which has not become a thing of existence and a joy forever, and that is a city charter. But there are hundreds of people who voted against that progressive idea would vote for it to-morrow. We ask no applause or credit for any of the advanced measures we have referred to, we simply mention these facts showing that we have tried to be of some use to the town as a daily paper.

MAHANOY PLANE.

Local Events as Described by a Correspondent.

Miss Maggie Donnelly and Mrs. McAnnany, of town, visited friends at Summit Hill during the week.

Miss Lulu Phillips was tendered a very pleasant birthday party at the residence of her father, Luke Phillips, on Wednesday. The young people enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

Mrs. Isaac Day, of Watsontown, and Mrs. Krecker, of Ashland, visited Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Morgan this week. The former have not met before for 20 years.

Miss Doomady, of St. Clair, and Miss Martin, of Shenandoah, visited the family of Michael Goff on Sunday.

Messenger George Cook, who has been on the sick list for several days, returned to duty and is acting in the capacity of night operator at Lost Creek Junction.

On Sunday while Engineer Bailey was hauling a special to Coal Dale a peculiar accident occurred while passing through Girardville. The train was traveling at a pretty lively gait when a report like a cannon, and the sudden slowing up and the stoppage of the train, brought the whole town to the scene under the impression that the engine had exploded. An investigation quieted the excitement, it being found that one of the eccentric straps had broken with great force. The engineer disconnected one side of his engine and succeeded in pulling the five loaded coaches to Mahanoy Plane, where engines were changed.

G. M. Israel, R. H. Metz, of town, and Burges Dowden, of Frackville, visited Locust Mountain Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Ashland, on Tuesday evening last.

Misses Donovan, Walsh and Devers, of Shenandoah, visited Miss Julia Farrell on Sunday.

Thursday was pay day, both on the railroad and at the collieries, consequently our merchants were unusually busy.

The crew on Shenandoah passenger train consisting of Hanlon, Sobey, Dougherty, Castle and Leshy are very popular with the traveling public.

Walter Murphy, of the Merchants', will take in the World's Fair during July.

The many friends of Mrs. D. J. Connors throughout the county will be pleased to learn of her complete recovery from a serious illness.

James O'Brien, formerly ticket agent at the P. & R. station, now of Kaighn's Point, N. J., called on friends in town on Sunday.

Miss Hannah Brosnaham, of Branchdale, employed as operator in main office at Pottsville, and Miss Mollie Ferguson, daughter of A. Ferguson, foreman at Elmwood colliery, were the guests of Mrs. J. A. Flynn on Thursday.

John Goff, who has been on the sick list for the past two weeks, returned to duty on Monday last.

This most beautiful of Odd Fellows' mysteries was grandly illustrated by the visiting brethern. Gilberton Lodge returned the fraternal visit on Wednesday evening and speaks very highly of the kind treatment received while in Ashland.

The Maizeville High School is making great preparations for the commencement exercises which will be held in Foley's hall, June 14th. Our people very naturally manifest a deep interest in the success of this innovation, and Prof. A. J. O'Conner is to be congratulated on the step he has taken, as it most undoubtedly stimulates the pupils and creates a healthy interest in school affairs in the community.

On Thursday evening Miss Emma Sutter, formerly of Gilberton, now of Wadesville, was married to Frank Miles, of Georgetown, the Rev. Mr. Devine, of St. Clair M. E. church, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Miles were married in their own home, erected and handsomely furnished for the occasion. Mr. Miles is foreman of one of the collieries south of the mountain.

Our people are manifesting a lively interest in local politics this year—a course highly commendable. This promises some lively work at the primaries, and the number, and standing of citizens prominently mentioned, promise a worthy representation to Pottsville.

FINE DRESS GOODS

DRESS GOODS is such a bewildering topic that we will not attempt a full description, but give a partial outline, which you can fill in by a personal inspection. There are the plain and changable diagonals; plain, plaid, striped and invisible plaid serges; fancy mixtures in all sorts of odd weaves, dots, threads, cross-threads, hair-lines, lines here and there, many at a glance appearing alike, but upon examination are found entirely different. Our assortment of silks is complete—china silks, china surah, plain surah, bengaline, plain, figured and changeable silks, in all the new shot effects. Full line of fancy braids to match any color of dress goods.

.....In Wraps We find the most stylish and the prevailing mode to be the Cape, in some of its variations, single, double or triple capes. Some are plain, others very highly decorated, with fancy indescent braid, butterfly colors, or some full arrangement at the neck, so much approved this season by the feminine fancy. To some, coats only are the correct garment. To those we would say coats are equally fashionable and stylish, many of these having capes also attached—sometimes one, two or three, as the taste or inclination of the wearer may desire.

We have this season, for the first time, added a Millinery Department, and have spared neither trouble nor expense to make it a success. The result exceeds our most sanguine expectations. This department will be under the same management and conducted on the same principles that have always characterized our entire business. We shall keep everything in trimmed and untrimmed hats, novelties of every description. Having secured a trimmer noted for her artistic and skillful work, we are enabled to suit all tastes. We invite a careful inspection of our entire store. All welcome.
