LAZZIE BORDEN'S TRIAL

Examining the First Witness For the Prosecution.

KIERNAN ON THE STAND

The Jurors Returned from Fall River Last Evening—Mr. Moody's Opening Address For the Prosecution—Miss Borden Paints at its Conclusion.

Special to the Herald.
NEW BEDFORD, MASS., June 7.
LAZZIE BORDEN has at last been placed on trial to answer the charge of having killed her father and mother. The city is crowded with strangers who have taken an interest in the case.
Miss Borden has remarkable command of herself during the ordeal attending the opening of the court and selection of a jury. During the early preliminaries she leaned back easily in her chair and never moved a muscle, but as the prosecuting officer concluded his opening address the prisoner faints. The spell lasted but a moment.
When court convened yesterday the jury heard the indictments against Miss Borden read as Court was formally opened, and were charged as "good men and true, stand together and harken to your evidence."
Mr. Moody then stepped to the railing and opened the government's case. He said that on the fourth day of August last an old man and an old woman, without a known enemy in the world, were stricken down by an unknown assassin.
The prisoner's dock was a young woman, a daughter of the murdered people, a young woman of good social standing, charged with the crime of murdering these people.
It was his purpose to put the story of the crime in the easiest manner possible.
Mr. Moody got down to the early morning of the day upon which the tragedy was enacted. He told at what hours the different members of the household had arisen and what had passed between them immediately after that.
The speaker called attention to the discrepancies that existed in the stories told by the prisoner. In brief, they were that she told one story, in which she said that while in the barn she had heard a noise in the house, something in the nature of an alarm.
She rushed into the house and discovered the body of her father. The other story was that she had been in the loft of the barn and had discovered the body of her father when she entered the house to get her hat.
She had told, too, that she had gone to the barn for the purpose of getting some lead from which to make snipers. Another story was that she had gone there for a piece of iron with which to repair a screen.
Mr. Moody unraveled a bundle and disclosed the clothing Miss Borden had worn on the morning her father and mother were killed. He held them up for inspection by the jury. There was no trace of blood on any of the garments on except the front of the skirt, where there was a minute particle of blood.
Two axes and three hatchets were shown to the jury.
"There was no evidence of a struggle anywhere in the house," Mr. Moody said, "not an article anywhere in the house had been disturbed. The one who committed the murder was familiar with the premises.
From the middle until the end of the opening address Miss Borden leaned back in her chair and never moved a muscle.
She put the fan up over her face and holding her head forward, pressed it close against her forehead and held it there.
Her eyes were closed and she appeared as if asleep. Not by any motion did she betray that she was conscious of what was going on about her.
Just as Mr. Moody ceased to speak and takes one step toward his seat, there was a noise where Miss Borden was sitting.
She had fainted.
The Rev. Mr. Jubb hurried over to her and placed a bottle of smelling salts to her nostrils. Deputy Sheriff Kirby and another officer hurried after some cracked ice.
The woman's face grew white. The officers returned with ice in a moment, and a couple of minutes later Miss Borden began to recover.
The jury was allowed a recess of about five minutes, and when it had returned to the box she had recovered her usual manner and bearing.
When the jury returned the case was opened by the Government putting on its first witness in the person of Thomas Kiernan.
Mr. Knowlton then asked the court to allow the jury to take a view of the Borden premises. Gov. Robinson, who confronted Miss Borden in regard to accompanying the jury to Fall River, announced that his client waived her rights in the matter and would go with them.
Messrs. Hodges, Brown, Nickerson and Arnold of the Deputy Sheriffs were designated by the sheriff to look after the jury, and Messrs. Moody, for the commonwealth, and Mr. Jennings for the defense, were designated as representing counsel.

Under the half holiday law approved May 31, February election day, which occurs on the third Tuesday of February, and notes made after the passage of the law that are payable on acceptance or on demand, are deemed to be payable and to be presentable for all accounts on such half holiday, and are then protestable for non-payment or non-acceptance.

OUR FINANCIAL CONDITION.
What the President says is Needed at Present Time.
WASHINGTON, June 7.—At the close of the cabinet meeting yesterday President Cleveland among other things said: "I think that between now and the meeting of congress much depends upon the action of those engaged in financial operations and business enterprises in different parts of the country. Our vast national resources and credit are abundantly sufficient to justify them in the utmost faith and confidence.
"If instead of being frightened they are conservative, and if instead of gloomily anticipating immediate disaster they contribute their share of hope, before 12 o'clock they will perform a patriotic duty and at the same time protect their own interest.
The things just now needed are coolness and calmness in financial circles and study and reflection among our people."

THE BASE BALL FIELD
Season to be Opened Here
To-morrow
BY THE CUBAN GIANTS
The New Home Team Will Don Their New Suits and be Ready For Them—A Special Battery Has Been Engaged For the Occasion.
AFTER many weeks of various negotiations the Shenandoah Base Ball Club management succeeded in getting affairs in shape of a vigorous campaign and to-morrow the season will be opened at the trotting park by a game with the famous Cuban Giants. The game will start at 4 o'clock.
The board of directors of the home club say that the game will be a good one.
Gormley, the famous pitcher of Lansford, and Fulmer, the Tamagna catcher, have been engaged as a special battery and the rest of the team, who will be home players, intend to do some fielding and batting that will set the visitors thinking. The last game played cannot be taken as a standard by which to gauge the merits of the Shenandoah club.
The game was the first of the season, the players were stiff and out of practice, and the battery was one which had been called upon on short notice. For these reasons the battery was not in good working order and the fielding failed to find the ball, but the fielding was excellent. Since then the team has had practice and is now in good trim.
The Cuban Giants will find this out to-morrow afternoon.
In this connection the board of directors announce that realizing that Shenandoah is the best base ball town in the county they propose giving it a season of exhibition games to none outside the large cities and to that end engagements have already been made with several of the best teams in this and other states. The board will also watch the home team closely and strengthen any weak points that may be discovered as the season progresses.
The Cuban Giants played at Pottsville yesterday and at Jeannette this afternoon. The Pottsville game resulted in a victory for the dusky ball chasers by a score of 15 to 11. An unfortunate accident occurred in the ninth inning of the game. Salmon, the Pottsville left fielder, tried to get home and in sliding to the plate collided with Jackson, the Cuban catcher. When Salmon arose it was found that one of his arms was broken about two inches above the elbow. Aside from the accident the game was an excellent one and the people may expect a treat here to-morrow.
His Scheme Failed.
P. J., better known as "Giant" O'Neill, figured in a somewhat exciting event in the week's hour of yesterday morning. A few weeks ago O'Neill secured employment at Centralla and when he attempted to remove his household goods from this town to that place the landlord attached them. The goods have since been under the attachment and Constable Boland was to have sold them to-day. At about 1.30 p. m. on Tuesday O'Neill arrived from Centralla with a wagon and loaded it with his furniture, which had remained in the house on West Cherry street.
Landlord Maher hurriedly notified Constable Boland, who stopped the wagon as it was going along Centre street on its way back to Centralla. O'Neill settled the trouble by giving security for the rent and storage, Benj. Haakey becoming his bondman.
