PURGATORIES ON EARTH.

Where the Dead Can Wait to See If They Regain Their Breath.

As a mournful kind of set-off to its numerous and brilliant pieces of pleasure Paris is now destined to have a series of edifices called palaces of death. These palaces, de la mort, or as they are also styled, palaces mortuaires, are intended for the reception of dead bodies until the arrangements for interment have been fully completed. The object of the members of the organizing committee of the death palaces is twofold. In the first place, they desire to prevent hasty or premature burials, as it often happens in France that people are put into the grave alive; secondly, by the new method the danger of contagion would be minimized.

Nothing is said about attaching electric wires to the waists of dead persons temporarily deposited in these mortuaries, as is done in some German cities, notably Munich, the purpose of this arrangement being to arouse the attendant doctor should the supposed departed be only in a trance. In Paris the bodies, in the event of doubt as to death, would be kept until the first trace of decomposition appeared.

The committee of organization has been founded by Dr. Bergeron, who is aided by a hygienic specialist, M. Martin. These gentlemen have already forty thousand pounds on hand, and are only waiting the authorization of the new municipal council in order to proceed with the first mortuary which will be established in an old closed churchyard near the Montmartre cemetery, and special departments for the various classes of the community will be arranged. The project is strongly backed, and has every prospect of being practically carried out.

BOUNTYJUMPERS OF ALL KINDS

One Ohio Man Raised Crows So as to Secure Pay for Their Heads.

"Bounty grabbers are ever existent and ever will be, I guess," said Grimes Abbott, a traveling man, to a Globe-Democrat reporter. "People will be crooked and practice deception in everything, so that nothing can be done now without first laying plans to guard against first deception. Look at the bounties offered for the heads of certain pests in the different parts of the world. In Russia a ruble is paid by the government for the head of every wolf killed. In India a certain sum is paid for the bodies of the dead coolies. In Australia a shilling is given, in certain districts, for the head of rabbits. In New York, Chicago and other big cities of the world, a few pennies are paid for the heads of sparrows, and so on. In some cases certain persons have been caught defrauding the government. Instead of going out and endeavoring to rid the country of the pests and so making a living, these brilliant schemers have turned into raising the pests and selling their heads, finding it more profitable to do so. In my territory—southeastern Ohio—crows became so numerous that they destroyed most of the grain. A bounty of ten cents was offered for their heads and a number of people started into the crow-killing business. One deceptive gentile down there saw a quicker way to make money. This individual started an industrial enterprise that threatened for awhile to revolutionize the crow business and make him wealthy. His plan was to secure an incubator and raise crows by that system. Some one discovered the scheme and the bounty was abolished entirely."

The Seal Family.

There are over two thousand species of snails and they are found in all parts of the world. Some are even smaller than a pin head, while others, in France and Italy, for instance, are cultivated for food and are large enough to make a good mouthful. Snails are vegetarians, and have jaws and tongues of saw-like edge, the number of points on each running into the thousands. On the approach of cold weather the snail throws a film over the mouth of its shell, which tightens like a drum head. As it becomes colder, other films are added on the plan of storm windows. Extensive drought will cause the snail to close its doors in the same way to prevent the evaporation of its bodily moisture and drying up. These little animals are possessed of astonishing vitality, remaining active after having been frozen in solid blocks of ice, and enduring a degree of heat for weeks which daily dries vegetation.

Above the Clouds.

One of the sublimest effects in nature is occasionally seen by those who climb the tall and isolated peaks of the Rocky mountains in Colorado. The dryness of the air and the strong heat of the afternoon sun cause a rapid evaporation from the brooks, springs and snow banks on the mountain sides, and this moisture, rising on the warmer air, condenses as it reaches the cooler, thinning atmosphere about the mountain top. The traveler, looking down, sees clouds literally forming below him, and growing thick and black every instant, so that as they reached his level they roll skyward and in huge masses of vapor that eclipse the view and bury him in darkness. Lightning occasionally leaps from the clouds and a mountain top is a particularly bad place to be at such a time. The stone signal service station on Pike's Peak has been nearly wrecked by lightning more than once.

Scorpion Hunts in Mexico.

The scorpions have become so numerous in the city of Durango, Mexico, that the municipal authorities have offered a valuable prize, to be given to the person capturing the largest number. Two thousand of the deathly pests were killed at the hospital during the last day. For these scorpions the city pays sixty cents a hundred, and three times a week those collected are counted and killed at the hospital, and eighty thousand were thus destroyed last year. Persons who get permits to hunt the pests have the right to enter and search private houses for them.

STATE NEWS OF A DAY.

A Philadelphia Police-man's Fight with a Gang of Toughs.

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—Edward Boyle, a down town tough, walked into the butcher shop of Louis Fiorelli, an Italian, yesterday afternoon, and demanded ten cents for beer. He was told by the storekeeper to work for his money, whereupon Boyle struck Fiorelli in the face and ran out of the store. Fiorelli followed and Boyle took him with a brick, inflicting a compound fracture of the skull and breaking several bones in his face. A general alarm was sent out for Boyle's capture, and last night Patrolman McKee found him with five companions. The entire party sat upon the officer, who drew his revolver and pointed it through each of Boyle's legs. In his wounded condition Boyle fought like a tiger, but McKee, who is a young giant, landed his man, and two others of the gang. The physicians at the hospital say Boyle will die. Although Boyle is only 35 years old, he has been arrested twenty-seven times for various offenses. His wife died recently, and the police say her death was due to the constant beatings inflicted by her brutal husband.

Probably Killed by Lightning.

Nonnewaug, July 7.—Developments in connection with the death of William J. Kelly at Port Kennedy indicate that he was struck by lightning. Kelly was employed on a shifting engine between Bridgeport and Port Kennedy, and at the latter place was assisting in the capacity of a blind brakeman or flagman, when he was killed. Nothing was known of the accident until a few minutes past 5 o'clock, when the engineers of two freight trains, when the engines of two freight trains, were approaching the engine on the latter place. The three engineers then went back, and finding Kelly missing, instituted a search which resulted in the discovery of portions of his remains along the north bound track for a distance of over 300 yards. It is believed he was struck by lightning and his body then mangled by a train.

Homestead's Anniversary.

HOMESTEAD, July 7.—Yesterday was the anniversary of the bloody battle between the Carnegie mill strikers and the Pinkertons. There were rumors that an attempt would be made to burn the mill, but nothing exciting occurred. The streets, however, were thronged with excited people. There was a picnic at the Ninth street grove. A few singing women, male and female, were scattered on the graves of the victims of the riot. At the picnic grounds a fund was started to be used in the erection of a monument in memory of the workmen killed. Several hundred dollars were raised in a short time.

SCHEIDTKEIL HAVEN, July 7.

During the terrific hail and thunder storm that swept over the lower part of Schuylkill county George Reber, 12 years old, son of Joel Reber, of Friedensburg, four miles from here, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Mr. Reber and three sons were in a field taking in hay. All were on the wagon when a bolt descended killing the one boy and two horses and badly injuring the other boys. The wagon was immediately enveloped in flames, and the injured cows made a narrow escape from incineration.

Destructive Fire in an Oil Town.

PITTSBURGH, July 7.—The oil town of McDonald, on the Pan Handle road, narrowly escaped destruction by fire. Early in the morning flames were discovered in James Morgan's also store on South Bays street. The water supply was limited. There was, however, but little wind to spread the flames, and their progress was stayed by raising a number of dwellings and small stores. In all ten buildings, one of which was the Baptist church, were burned. The estimated loss is $25,000, on which there is but little insurance.

Congressman Muttler's Seat.

EASTON, July 7.—The Northampton county Democratic committee met here and named five conferees to the congressional convention to nominate a successor to Congressman Muttler, deceased. The delegates were instructed to support Howard Muttler, son of the late congressman. Northampton county casts nearly twice as many Democratic votes as the other counties in the district, and it is believed there will be no trouble in electing the son for the unexpired term of the father.

A Welshman's Mysterious Death.

SOLOMONTON, July 7.—Morgan Boston, a prominent Welshman, was killed on the Lackawanna railroad tracks. He had been seen walking with a strange woman, and was apparently under the influence of drink. It is supposed that the woman robbed him of a large sum of money he was known by his family to have carried, and just as a passenger train was approaching to have hurled him on the track. The police are on the woman's trail.

Child with an Oil Train.

SPRINGFIELD, July 7.—In the Northern Central railroad yard, this city, a shifting engine ran over a misplaced switch into a train of tank cars on the next track. The cars were filled with oil and naphtha, and several of them exploded, setting the burning oil in all directions. Seven tank cars were consumed, as were also seven refrigerator cars, which stood on an adjoining track. The shifting engine was also ruined.

New Companies Chartered.

HARRISBURG, July 7.—The following companies were chartered here: Middle-town Drainage company, of Middletown, capital $15,000; Auburn Wagon company, of Greenock, Franklin county, capital $20,000; York and Whitesville Electric Dr. Co., of York, capital $75,000; York and Manchester Electric Railway company, capital $20,000; York and Dover Electric Railway company, capital $20,000.

Closed by the Sheriff.

WILKESBARRE, July 7.—Fred Thors, a prominent bootler of this city, was closed by the sheriff upon an execution of $200. His liabilities were said to be $20,000. The undertaking establishment of P. M. Conniff was also closed by the sheriff at the instance of the Overweg Casket company.

A Twelve-Year-Old Burglar.

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—Joseph Hughes, who is only 12 years old, entered a grocery store near his home during the night and carried off a small amount of booty. He was arrested and brought before Magistrate Pele, who, owing to the lad's age, decided to send the case to court at once.

Danville Disbands.

The Danville base ball club disbanded at York yesterday and all its players have scattered, most of them going to their homes. Edward Walton, who was the short stop of the team, is in town and wants to play here. If he cannot get an engagement he will go to his home in Saratoga.

A Hatch of Suits.

County Treasurer Pepper yesterday instituted before Justice Monaghan thirty-six suits for the collection of mercantile tax from business men of town. Constable Toomey served the summonses to-day.

Family Disposition.

Several weeks ago the Carroll family left Turkey Run and went to Cincinnati, Ohio, and before leaving sold their household goods to a Polish family. Without consulting with the P. & R. company, which owns the house, the family making the purchase moved in. Yesterday nine C. & I. policemen went to the place and carried out all the furniture to the road.
