Just before noon a band of 500 strikers, headed by a hundred women, which had been marching to the various strips, reached Clent's pit and sent in a commitee to persuade the miners working there o quit. This they refused to do, and when the committee reported the entire body of marchers moved on to the works to force them out. The strip men were ready for them, and when they passed the trespass line they were fired upon, and a general battle followed, in which Winchester rifles, pistols and clubs were used. Over a hundred shots were fired, and it is nothing short of a miracle that nobody was killed.

One man was wounded in the forehead, another in the leg, a boy in the foot, and ene of the women got a bullet through her arm. None of the wounds are fatal, and his believed that A is believed that none of them are danger-ous. A number on both sides were bully beaten up with clubs and clubbed guns.
