PARTED TWENTY-ONE YEARS.

A Romantic Reunion Brought About by an Advertisement.

LANCASTER, July 27.—A letter was received here announcing the reunion of Squire John H. Morrison, of Snyder, Oklahoma, and his wife, who had been separated twenty-one years. The story is a romantic one. In 1866 Morrison married a Miss Fry, in York county, and five years later came to this city, where he met business reverses. He then went west, leaving his wife and four daughters here, and nothing more was heard from him until last March, when an advertisement for a wife appeared in a Harrisburg paper signed John H. Morrison. It was soon by Morrison received 817 answers to his advertisement, but replied only to the one written by his daughter. In the correspondence that followed their relationship was disclosed, and when he learned that his wife was still living he made arrangements to take her to his western home. The letter received states that they recognized each other on sight at the railway station in Oklahoma.

ABYSSAL DEPTHS OF THE SEA

Beauties Revealed by the Silt and the Bottom of the Ocean.

The new submarine world now explored and mapped out presents a very different picture from that painted for us by the poets. But a short time has elapsed since the bottom of the ocean was supposed to be the counterpart of the face of the earth above water, with hills and valleys, with precipitous mountains lifting toward the surface and profound gorges sinking to unfathomable depths. The ocean floor is far less diversified than the land. Here and there to be sure, islands in mid-ocean are the summits of enormous mountains, rising more or less abruptly from a generally level surface, and the sea lying over a narrow, depressed region in northwestern Pacific reaches its greatest depth. But this is the exception; in its general character the ocean bottom consists of vast flat or slightly undulating plains. An extraordinary circumstance that has been noticed with interest, and that always creates surprise when first learned, is the entire absence of foreign matters in the deeper part of the ocean's floor. Of all the vessels lost in mid-ocean, of all the human beings that have been drowned, of all the marine animals that have perished, of all the clay, sand and gravel left by dissolving icebergs, of all the various substances drifted from every shore by shifting currents—not a trace remains; but in their place water from one thousand to two thousand five hundred fathoms in depth covers the uniform deposit of thick, bluish, tenacious slime, called globigerina ooze. A bit of this ooze is a powerful lens is a revelation of beauty not readily forgotten. The ooze is composed almost entirely of the diatoms, most delicately beautiful shells imaginable. At depths greater than twenty-five hundred fathoms the bottom of the sea consists mainly of products arising from exposure, for almost incalculable periods, to the chemical action of sea water, of granite and other volcanic matters. This finally results in the formation of the red clay deposits that are considered characteristic of the profoundest depths of the ocean. Carbonate of lime, which in the form of the shells of foraminifera, makes up so large a part of the globigerina ooze, is here almost entirely absent. Sea water is very nearly a universal solvent, and before any shell, large or small, reaches the bottom of these tremendous abysses it is chemically eaten up, literally dissolved—a result which the enormous pressure of the water must materially hasten. At one thousand fathoms the weight of the water pressing on all sides of an object immersed to that depth is very nearly one ton to the square inch, or more than one hundred times that sustained at the sea level, and at the greatest depths the pressure is so increased that it would seem nothing could withstand it—in fact, heavy metal cylinders let down with the sounding apparatus are sometimes, on being drawn up again to the surface, found bent and collapsed; strongly made glass vessels which the metal in closed are shattered into fragments.

A Roadway Cattle Car.

LANCASTER, July 27.—A car loaded with cattle was being shifted on the Pennsylvania railroad at Mountville when the brake chain broke, and the car started down a steep hill side grade to Columbia. Brakeman James Crosswell was hurled a great distance and picked up unconscious and taken to Columbia. His leg was broken and he was badly cut about the head. As Columbia the roadway car ran into the rear of a shifting engine, knocking the boiler from the tracks and wrecking the cattle car.

"Blood and Thunder" Jenkins Laetel.

READING, July 27.—After working on a crew for a long time Chief of Police Cullen has ascertained the whereabouts of "Blood and Thunder" Jenkins, alias William Summers, a desperate character, who is wanted on the charge of burglary committed at Teith and Cotton streets two years ago. He is also wanted in Chester on the charge of murder, and in Easton for burglary. He is now in one of the west coast cities and will be brought on in a few days.

The Titled and otherwise aristocratic Europeans who pass the summer at the popular watering places have their being on much the same lines as America's fashionables. They ride, they drive, they walk, they bathe, they dine, they entertain, they gossip, and they do all manner of things fashionable.

How do the summer resorts of Europe differ from the American resorts, our own? Well, I don't know that they do differ essentially. There is more of the hotel and club-life and more gambling, perhaps, at the great continental resorts. But after all, human nature is pretty much the same the world over. And the swells of Europe who trace their genealogies back half a dozen centuries or more are not so very different from the American swells who figure out their pedigrees six or seven generations back and then have to give it up.

Are You In Business?

Do you desire success? All business men know that the only way of increasing trade is talking in print—Advertising! Where you make one customer by word-of-mouth argument or by displaying goods, you can make one hundred by bright, convincing advertisements.

Don't talk in a whisper—
No one will hear you.

Don't talk in thunder tones—
All noise and no facts.

Don't talk without listeners—
Place your "ad" where it will be read.

THE HERALD is the best medium for reaching the public, and profitable results are sure to follow all advertisements placed in its columns. Let us convince you of this fact by a trial.

POSITE: THE THEATRE.

THE Record of Philadelphia in discussing the business distress of the country, finds some consolation in the fact that "the Lord has not forgotten us," inasmuch as "we have fully 400,000 bushels more of corn and 80,000,000 bushels more of oats than were produced last year. The hay crop of the whole country, according to the report of the Federal Department of Agriculture, is likely to be an exceptionally good one." If the country must come down to eating oats and hay, after such promises made last fall of such good times, the outlook will be a gloomy one, indeed. How natural it is to call on the Lord for help, when no other means seem to be in sight. A full confession of sin must be made before any such help can be expected.—Melia Ledger.

"Of course," said Mr. Brown, a real estate agent, "terrible things happen in my business, just as in every other. Now, I fully expected to rent that top suite of rooms in the perpendicular building to a society that wanted to live some clubrooms, but it voted not to take them."
"What was the trouble?" asked a listener.
"There's no elevator in the building, and the members wouldn't climb the stairs."
"What did you say the name of the society was?" some one asked.

A Few Days Ago a woman was badly injured by a tiger in an exhibition in Chicago. On Sunday last a woman, the mother of three children, was bitten by a rattlesnake at a museum in New York, and her life is hanging in the balance. Both of these women were at the time engaged in giving a public performance with the creature which injured them. Quite a large number of people have been killed and injured while engaged in a similar occupation. It would seem that it was high time that all such performances should be put an end to by law. Aside from the dangers to the persons who enter a wild animal cage and put their heads or hands into the mouths of the beasts or have the slimy serpents twine around them, the effect on the spectators is distinctly bad. Such exhibitions might be all well enough for pagan Rome of the benighted ages, but in Christian America, in this enlightened and civilized era, they are distinctly out of place.
