Doubting Suffering Women! ECHOES OF THE FIGHT.

THOUSANDS OF LIVES ENDANGUET

Buri g the Fight a Crowd of Rous . . Fire to the Building-A. Serious for Averted by the Timely Advice of the Headed Speciators.

CHICAGO, Ang. 16 .- Very few of the 9.5 In more speciators of the Cresion (is gains mill at Roby Monday night wo unless they he of that two of spec-element that knows no frac-forget in experience for a goodly time to me Seven thousand men of all dagrees of re spectability and social standing from the millionaire and the prosperous tradesmar down to the board of trade clark and thence down to the genins tough cooper up like rats for over three hours in a monster wooden barn, dignified by the Same of an arona, having only two exits, of a width of only four foct, and on the suitside like a besieging army a mob of nearly a thousand brawny stock yardsmen, iron workers and milroad hands de termined on securing free admission or of getting satisfaction by violent methods. From almost the moment that the first Prin lead of spectators had found their gents the bestegers commenced a bom-baniment of the wooden walls and roots with rocks that had evidently been brought there for the express purpose, and the bombardment was kept up to the very end, stones sometimes failing as thick as hall and the echo drowning the excited shouts of the partisans of the contestants. Ever and anon one of the contestants, Ever and anon one of the outsiders would manage to work his way in, either under the flucting of theorets hole in the wall, only to be spotted by the Pinkertons on duty and thrown again into the darkness after being clubbed almost into insensibility.

Eccess of the latter character were enacted during almost every hour, and at one time when a dozen or more of the belincrease has managed to work their way in in a body, and the officers found them-serves unable to cope with the numbers, the spectators in that corner of the ball annahed their chairs and nthized the pieces as clubs with which to defend them-The most -ritical moment boyover, was furing the twelfth round, when the mob-set are to the tuket office which was situated but a few feet from the main en-trance. One of the bliots favariably in attendance on such occasions yelled "fire," and like a flash half of the people on the inside were on their feet or standing in their seats, while hundreds made a break for the door. Only the yells and appeals of the cooler heads to sit down, and the fact that the men kept on fighting pre-vented what might have been one of the most awful paules on record,

A moment or two more of the prevailing suspense and thousands of men would have been struggling at the two narrow axits and the lives of half of them might the mob would attack the spectators as they left, but it was evidently afraid of superjor numbers. Nevertheless the apectators breathed a sigh of relief when the trains finally landed them in the center of the city.
