General Lloyd Bryce, His Magazine and His New Novel,

[Special Correspondence.]

New Youx, July 18,-General Lloyd Bryce, formerly a congressman from New York city and since the death of Allan Torrative Rice, owner and editor of Allam Thorndike Rice, owner and editor of The North American Review, has recently pub-lished a novel which has occasioned a good deal of comment among politicians as well as that exclusive social circle of which General Bryce is a member and which has be popularly characterized as the Four Hun dred. The interest which the story has fo politicians is due to the belief that Gener

Bryce has selected for some of his charac ters to play their part in Incidents which had actual existence in his own experience as a politician, while the characters them selves were suggested by certain politician whom he knew Society here is interested in the story be cause of its conviction that General Bryce has also drawn from similar experiences in that world. Therefore, whatever the merits of the story, the novel is being widely read where General Bryce is known and som what excitedly discussed.

It is not the first novel which General Bryce has written. He was elected to congress some years ago to represent one of th met side districts of New York. Hispolit cal constituency was in a world entirely spart from that in General which Bryce was reared and with which he was then associated. But he was the son-in-law of ex-Mayor Edward Cooper of New York, who gotwithstanding his great wealth and social position had attained remarkable political pop-ularity in the ularity in city, a popularity LLOYD BHYCE, which General Bryce was sure to feel the benefit of, whatever his own qualifications While in congress he wrote a clever sketch full of humorous episodes and sparkling dialogue, and it was said of him that he and Senator Ingalls were the only members of that body who had found relaxation from sterner political duties by taking up the pen of the romancer.

pen of the romancer. Ingalls' novel was never published. It was destroyed by fire, together with the senator's valuable library. After General Bryce retired from congress his friends reported it to be his intention to devote his life to literary work, especially the writing of fiction, and there was so much of promise in his first story and so much of realization in the second, which soon followed, that it was believed he might win a great name for himself as a story

FINE DRESS GOOD

Grand Display of

RESS GOODS is such a bewildering topic that we will not attempt a full description, but give a partial outline, which you can fill in by a personal inspection. There are the plain and changable diagonals; plain, plaid, striped and invisible plaid serges; fancy mixtures in all sorts of odd weaves, dots, threads, cross-threads, hair-lines, lines here and there, many at a glance appearing alike, but upon examination are found entirely different. Our assortment of silks is complete-china silks, china surah, plain surah, bengaline, plain, figured and changeable silks, in all the new shot effects. Full line of fancy braids to match any color of dress goods.

We find the most styliah and .....In Wraps the provailing mode to be the Cape, in some of its variations, single, double or triple capes. Some are plain, others very highly decorated, with fancy indescent braid, butterfly colors, or some full arrangement at the neck, so much approved this season by the feminine fancy. To some, costs only are the correct garment. To those we would say costs are equally fashionable and stylish, many of these baving capes also attached -- sometimes one, two or three, as the taste or inclination of the wearer may desire,

We have this season, for the first time, added a Millinery Department, and have spared neither trouble nor expense to make it a success. The result exceeds our most sanguine expectations. This department will be under the same management and conducted on the same principles that have always characterized our entire business. We shall keep everything in trimmed and untrimmed hats, novelties of every description. Having secured a trimmer noted for her artistic and skillful work, we are enabled to suit all tastes. We invite a careful inspection of our entire store. All welcome.
