THE MAHANOYS WON

Yesterday's Game Was an Indifferent One.

DID POTTSVILLE SCHEME?

The Mahanoy City Players Ran Away From Their Opponents Early in the Game—The Result is Viewed With Suspicion—Looking for Odds.

LARGE crowd of Shenandoah base ball enthusiasts went to Mahanoy City yesterday to see how the team of that place would show up in a contest with the Pottsville club, and returned home very much disappointed. Pottsville was looked upon as almost a sure winner by a large majority of the people on the grounds, but before the Shenandoah people started for the train they were forced to the conclusion that the county seat players had attempted a sharp game. They played as bad as any they have shown this season, and no doubt it was done to bring out some bets in favor of Shenandoah on the game that is to be played here to-morrow.

The Mahanoy City club won by a score of 15 to 7 and with "Kid" Williams and Brown as the battery. Day, the negro from Reading, pitched until Eagan and Moore got their bases in the second inning and then he called out to Manager Webber that he could pitch no more. He had complained of his arm before and during the game. "Kid" Williams was sent into the box after Setley and Reese, of Centuria, had been urged to go in and declined. Setley says he was offered $1.50 to pitch.

Fox, Pottsville's pitcher, was a great disappointment and after the fourth inning he retired and "Buck" McGettigan exchanged places with him. "Buck" filled the bill very satisfactorily and surprised many of his acquaintances.

During the game spectators remarked that there was something peculiar about it and yet they could not tell just what it was. Two good pitchers had broken down and two supposed novices took their places, the hits and errors were about evenly divided, and yet Pottsville was away to the rear in the scoring. Up to the fourth inning the score stood 14-0 in favor of Mahanoy.

In the second inning the Mahanoy City team scored five and added eight more in the third. After that the visitors appeared to realize that they were doomed to ignominious defeat until they put on their war paint, and they succeeded in holding the Mahanoyes down to two runs for the balance of the game.

The best opportunity Pottsville had in the game was during the seventh inning, when it succeeded in getting three men on bases twice, but the chance slipped through their hands and they only scored one run. Snyder started out with a hit and Hill brought him home with a three-bagger. Martin got his base on an error, and Moore took his base on balls, making three on bases. A good hit was needed, but Hill was then forced to run from third by Salmon's light hit and was thrown out at the home plate. Martin advanced to third and Moore to second. Again a good hit was required, but McGettigan was unequal to the occasion and was thrown out by Richards, the short stop, at first. This retired the side and Pottsville's chances for pulling up to the score of their adversaries was looked upon as lost.

In the eighth inning both sides were retired without scoring and then Pottsville threw up the game by refusing to play the ninth inning and retiring from the field.

The game by innings was as follows:
Mahanoy City..... 0 6 8 0 1 7 0 0-19
Pottsville..... 0 0 0 0 5 1 1 0-7

The Pottsville scoring of the game, as shown by to-day's Journal, is wide of the mark, as usual. The report of the game from the Pottsville point of view is, "Pottsville got the most hits. We outbatted them, but their fielding work was superb and herein they excelled us."

This is incorrect both ways. Mahanoy had 11 hits and Pottsville 12, and each side had a home run, a three-bagger and a two-bagger, so it is hard to see where the county seat club outbatted their opponents. Had they done some hitting in the seventh inning when the bases were filled twice there would have been some ground for the claim.

The result of the game is looked upon here as a trap for enthusiastic Shenandoah base ball people, but it is not likely they will fall into it. The Pottsvilles had Cavanaugh and at least two others on the bench at Mahanoy City yesterday afternoon and had they been desirous of putting up the game they intend to play here to-morrow they could have gone in after the third inning with Cavanaugh and another and made the tale a different one. But the Pottsvilles were not worrying about losing to Mahanoy City. They wanted to raise the enthusiasm of the Shenandoah delegation and bring out some odds on bets.

When it comes to sitting up a lame horse the "coal diggers" will take the dust from the "aristocrats" as no time. The Shenandoah will be prepared to see Pottsville put up one of its best games of the season and they can depend upon seeing it, barring accidents. Yesterday's game was only a blind and should the Shenandoahs get the idea that they will have a picnic to-morrow the Pottsvilles will come here smiling up their sleeves. But while admitting that yesterday's game was only a "feeler" and the Pottsvilles will play a game that will be hard to beat, there are excellent reasons for the belief that they will go home to-morrow night with another defeat on their backs.

Thousands walk the earth to-day who would be sleeping in its bosom but for the timely use of Dr. Williams' Elixir.

OB'S OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and Hears During His Travels.

When I get a time—
I know what I shall do;
I'll cut the leaves of all my books,
And read them through and through.

What is to be done with Main street between Centre and Coal? I have heard this question asked a number of times recently, and no one seems to be able to answer. Perhaps Council could decide the matter. If there is to be no paving done the street should be put down to grade, before winter is upon us.

When I get a time—
I'll write some letters then
That I have owed for weeks and weeks,
To many, many men.

There has been considerable talk recently about organizing a coal region league for next season. This past season has demonstrated the fact that there are a number of towns that will support base ball teams handsomely, our town especially. Now is the time to act, if such a thing is to be done. Who will start the ball?

When I get a time—
I'll pay those bills I owe,
And with those bills, those countless bills,
I will not be so slow.

More bad news for our poorly-paid miners. Only three working days this week. Will they ever have full time again. I hope so.

When I get a time—
Oh, glorious dream of bliss!
A month a year, then years from now—
But I can't wish this—
I have no time.

A young married gentleman, residing on South Jardin street, tells an amusing story upon his wife. The latter has often admired "those dear, sweet creatures of fashion," as she terms them, the Eaton jackets, and when the gentleman and his wife were in Philadelphia recently, to carry out a promise previously made, the former decided that his helpmate should be the possessor of one of these much admired wraps.

And right here comes in the joke of the narrative. Completely wrapped up in the object of her search, she flitted along Eighth street, and at each dummy dressed with an "Eaton" a halt was made, and the textile and make-up underwent a most careful examination, but it seemed that they were all stamped with a cheap look. Deeper and deeper in thought the woman plunged, till at last she was about to give up all hope of being suited. She gently floated with the tide of shoppers, her "hobby" walking daintily by her side, until they came to a temple of fashion where passes a steady, unceasing stream of shoppers. It was here she espied the jacket she wanted. Too engrossed to pause for reflection, she began an inspection.

"At last here is what I want—fine fabric, well made, and such a fit, too." The sleeve was carefully turned out, the lining critically examined, with the comment that "this is nearly too good for ready-made," when the horrible discovery was made that the coat covered a living form and not a "dummy" at all.

Without taking the time to apologize or make an exclamation, the mortified woman dashed up the street as fast as possible, while her husband was enjoying the joke immensely nearby. The wife would dearly like to know, however, what species of humanity she was taken for by the supposed "dummy."

Health in Old Age.

Edward Colburn, Quaker, N. Y., says:
"I commenced using BRANDRETT'S PILLS over fifty-five years ago. I bought them in London, and have continued using them since I came to this country in 1836. I am now over seventy-five years old, hale and hearty, and attribute my wonderful health to the persistent use of BRANDRETT'S PILLS. Occasionally I have a bad cold or severe attack of rheumatism, indigestion or biliousness, but four or five doses of BRANDRETT'S PILLS always cure me. Whenever my children have been sick with scarlet fever, measles, acid stomach, disordered digestion or constipation, a few doses of BRANDRETT'S PILLS have restored their health at once."

Nanticoke Eldested.

A large choir has been organized at Nanticoke for the purpose of contesting for the $100 prize to be given at the Nanticoke Cambro-American Society eldested, on Thanksgiving Day. Philip Evans, formerly of town, has been selected as their leader.

Mrs. Flora Reese, who removed from this town to Steelton a year or two ago, has again taken up her residence here. The household goods arrived here yesterday.

THE COUNTY COURT.

Some of the Cases Disposed of at Pottsville.

The Grand Jury has found a true bill against Harry Mantrel, the Italian charged with murdering George Ochs at St. Clair.

Eva Miller sued Constable Tallies Phillips, charging him with assault and battery, which was alleged to have been committed while Phillips was serving a writ. The Grand Jury ignored the bill and put the costs on the woman.

In the case of James J. Walsh against Anthony Lubuski, the latter charged with nuisance and indecent exposure, the defendant was ordered to pay two-thirds of the costs and the latter one-third.

One day Moses Frasnaky called at Amanda Womer's place on Main street and bought a quantity of potatoes. After they were loaded on his wagon Moses disputed the price and when Womer attempted to unload the potatoes a fight ensued. Moses entered suit for assault and battery. Yesterday morning Moses said he would "let up" on Womer for $25, but when the case went before the grand jury the bill was ignored and the costs were put on the prosecutor.

John Barrett, of Lost Creek, was yesterday put on trial for beating and kicking his wife. He was found guilty and sentenced to 30 days imprisonment.

LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE.

Work on the Local Line Will Begin This Week.

W. C. M. Ryan, of Reading, special agent for the Pennsylvania Telephone Company, was in town to-day making arrangements for the extension of the company's long distance telephone system into town. Mr. Ryan stated that the company will begin the construction of a line of poles up Main street this week. The construction force will very likely arrive from Centralia to-morrow. The line will run from town to Mahanoy City, and through the exchange at that point have connection with Pottsville and Reading. It is expected the work will be completed within thirty days.

The advantage of the long distance system will be the opportunity to converse from Shenandoah to Pittsburg or Chicago more easily than from one point to another in the same town under the old system. Subscribers will be charged from $60 to $70 per annum and have the privilege of conversing with any point in the county, but an additional toll will be charged for each conversation of five minutes to points outside of the county. The Mahanoy City line is open and the Tanquas line will be opened within ten or twelve days. Twenty-seven poles were put up in Ashland last week.

"New York Day by Day."

McVie and Thompson's beautiful production, entitled "New York Day by Day," is charming in its conceptions, and a true picture of life in the great city of New York. It is a realistic picture of lights and shades in high and humble life. The company is excellently headed by the popular favorite, Mr. Geo. W. Thompson, an excellent character actor who was amusing as Moses Yopp, the German sausage vendor. The scenic and mechanical effects are matchless in originality and true to nature. Miss Emma de Castro scored a hit as Bess, the street genius. Mr. Alex Vincent was unusually good as Joe Harris, the footpad. Amongst the beautiful scenic effects presented were the Battery N. Y., in 1868, the Harlem bridge in a blizzard, the Outcasts' home, etc. The caricatures are amusing, and the whole chaste and unique, void of any unnatural absurdities.—Philadelphia Record, Aug. 30, '92. Will appear at Ferguson's theatre on Friday evening, September 8.

A Bad Cut.

Oscar Goho, of East Coal street, cut himself severely on the left ankle with an adze yesterday afternoon while at work at the Indian Ridge colliery. Dr. Kistler put several stitches in the wound.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS

Regular Monthly Session Last Evening.

HAD A SPIRITED MEETING

The Question of Heating the Main and Centre Street School Buildings Occasions a Lengthy Discussion—The Old Plan Finally Decided Upon.

SCHOOL Board held a regular meeting last night and directors Conroy, O'Hearn, Burke, Gallagher, Brennan, Devitt, Manley, Hanna, Muldoon, Oplen, Reddell, Lynch, Titman and Treasie, the members in attendance, had a lively time for a while over the question of having the heating system of the Shenandoah Heat and Power Company in the Main and Centre street school buildings.

Mr. Wilkinson appeared for the company and made a lengthy statement showing the advantages of the company's service and said that the charge was but little more than what the board had been paying for coal; that it made the chances of fire less, and consequently the board will not be obliged to carry so much insurance, which would bring the actual cost below the sum paid for coal.

After saying that his company would heat the Main and Centre street buildings for $550 a year Mr. Wilkinson withdrew.

Messrs. Lynch, Burke and Gallagher attacked the proposition and maintained that the company's figure was high above reason. They maintained that last year the heating of the White street building cost $158 and the Main street $162, or a total of $320 for both buildings, including the cost of repairs and hauling away ashes. They also stated that with an increased use of pea coal this year the cost will not exceed $300, or $248 less than the sum asked by the company.

Mr. Titman thought it would save considerable on the expenses for janitors' services and declared that the company would sign a contract for heating the two buildings and keeping them clean for $100 more than the price asked for the heat, or $650.

Again the proposition was attacked, some members arguing that there was no use paying an exorbitant price for steam heat to satisfy a few stockholders and disatisfy a large number of taxpayers. Others expressed themselves with the proposition to do away with the janitors and said that the janitors would be required in any event, because a janitor cannot do what the men are obliged to do about the buildings in the winter.

A vote was finally taken and it went against the acceptance of the offer. Under the decision the board will heat both buildings with the old apparatus in each, and the connections made with the Main street building by the heating company last May will not be used again. Mr. Titman made a special plea to have the Main street connections retained, claiming that they were put in only as an experiment, had given satisfaction, and that the company spent nearly all it received to put them in. The board would not alter its decision under the veto.

The committee on text books and supplies made the following report through Secretary Hanna: "The work of executing the new text book law has been done so far very satisfactorily. All the schools have been supplied with the necessary books and supplies for the present. The people have responded to our request in regard to continuing the use of the old books in the hands of their children in a manner very gratifying to us. Nearly all the pupils who were reported at the close of the last term as having books fit to use have brought them."

The contract for furnishing the schools with coal was awarded to Owen Brennan at the following prices: Egg, $2.05; stove, $3.24; chestnut, $3.14 per, $1.71.

The case of John Dougherty, of the Fourth ward, was referred to the exoneration committee upon motion of Mr. Muldoon.

The case of Mr. Kelly, watchman on the Grand Estate, was taken up. He has two or three children going to the High school, and a couple going to the lower grades. Although the family lives in Union township the Shenandoah schools are the most convenient and Mr. Kelly claimed exemption from payment of tuition fees. The board decided that he should be exempted and the secretary was instructed to send a bill for the tuition fees to the Union township School Board.

The Superintendent reported as follows: Enrolment in High school, 102; second grade Grammar, 120; first grade Grammar, 202; fourth grade Primary, 284; third grade Primary, 333; second grade Primary, 464; first grade primary, 500; Turkey Run, 58; total, 2,162.
