Washington, Sept. 9.—Speeches from Democratic senators in the senate rester-day on the repeal bill were made by Mr. Faulkner, of West Virginia, Mr. Tur-pie, of the state of Indiana, and Mr. Jones, of Arkansas. All of them were in favor of the repeal of the Sherman act, but coupled with the condition that silver should be restored to the position which it occupied prior to the demonstration.

After Mr. Jones, the last speaker, had taken his seat there was an awkward pause. No senator rose to continue the discussion, although it had been arranged that Mr. Teller, of Colorado, was to be the next speaker. Then, as a suggestion was made to proceed to executive business, Mr. Hale, of Maine, made a short speech, in which he suggested that Mr. Voorhees should rot consent to so early an adjourn-ment (it was 3:40), but should require sen-ators to go on with the discussion, until a stors to go on with the discussion until a reasonable hour of adjournment. This speech aroused the indignation of the Indiana senator. He regarded it in the light of an impertment lecture, and resented it in strong and incisive language. Mr. Hale protested that he ind spoken only in the interest of Mr. Voorhees, whose fidelity and earnestness he recognised, and of the Little Liver Pills are puttent, of Colorado, had also something to say, taking sides with Mr. Voornees and egainst Mr. hate. After the incident the emate processed to executive busslness, and, at 4:50, adjourned.

The Measure Overwhelmingly Defeated by the Peers.

THE VOTE STOOD 419 TO 41.

The Announcement of the Result Received with Laughter and Some Cheering-Lord Salisbury Delivers the Cleaing Debate Against the Bill-

LONDON, Sept. 9 .- Although it was genwould reject the home rule bill last night, the house did not fill up until after the filmer hour, popular interest centering in the speech of the Marquis of Salisbury, who was not expected to rise until toward midwight. In the meaning the last the filler is the marginal of the filler in the speech of the filler in the speech of the filler in the fil midnight. In the meantime Baron Hals-bury, Baron Herschell, Baron Monkswell and the bishop of Ripon had spoken to half filled benches. After 9 e'clock the scene outside and inside the house livened up as members and visitors began stream ing in. The archbishop of Canterbury, the hishop of London, the bishop of Oxfore and every notable church dignitary were present. The lobbles held so many people that they were impassable until the police received orders to clear them.

Outside of the parliament bonses organized bands from Conservative working-men's clubs, specially formed to incite a jubilant demonstration on the rejection of the house rule bill, began to assemble at 10 o'clock. Some hint of their intention hav-ing reached the Radical workingmen's ciubs and Irisi societies, small detachments of these soon appeared on the scene. As a brawl was feared, the police, having been re-enforced, broke up the different groups and kept them moving.

The debate in the house reached the aeme of diffiness in the Earl of Morley's a Ind., Dec 5, 1992

setzing a chance during a momentary pause, rose at 10:30 o'clock amid rapturous

theers and began his speech.

Lord Salisbury said he felt that there was satisfaction in occupying the position he did—that of the last person to speak against home rule in the course of the present session. But, although it was a position of much distinction, it had many inconveniences. In particular, the ground of debate had already been so fully occu-pied that there was little new left for him to say. Throughout the debate one ques-tion constantly present in his mind was Why had the government introduced such a bill? On this point the house had received no sufficient enlightenment. Some peers who had defended the bill had made able speeches without much reference to the real nature of the bill. The lord chancellor, Lord Herschell, had virtually told them that he did not quite believe with the government on one subject. In dealing with the retention of Irish members at Westminster—which was an outrage on England so enormons and so grotesque that it was sur-prising that it had ever found a place in a proposal emenating from a responsible government—the lord chanceller had de-clared that he was not inclined to asso-ciate himself with so desperate a clause, but would prefer some other arrangement. Then, in dealing with the abandonment of the landlords, the lord chancellor had ad mitted that their fate would be terrible, but said they had brought it on them-

Finally the lord chancellor had finished his account of his own intellectual posi-tion by protesting with a vigor thoroughly sincere against anybody desiring to know the real opinion of any cabinet member upon a cabinet bill. The secretary of for-eign affairs (Lord Roseberry) also had avoided the burning subjects underlying the government's policy. The problem which the foreign secretary seemed to have set himself to solve was how in an hour's speech to avoid giving piedges that might be inconvenient in the future, and he has solved the problem with absolute

Lord Salisbury spoke for an hour and a quarter. His conclusion was marked by quiet eloquence. Some signs of waning vigor were noticed in him, but these are, in part at least, attributed to the op-pressive heat in the chamber. The Earl of Kimberly, lard president of the council and secretary of state for India, briefly reand secretary of state for india, briefly replied to Lord Salisbury.

The lord charcellor then put the motion for second reading of the bill. He caused some mariment by crying: "I think the 'contents' have it." Very lond and determined was the rival cry "the non-contents have it." The house divided at midnight and the result was the rejection of the motion by a vac of 419 to 41.

The Marques of Waterford voted sitting and the Earl of Galloway voted while lying at full length on a beach. Lord Headley returned from a hunting expedition on the Zambesi river in order to be able to vote. All the bishops went with the ma jority. The announcement of the result was received with laughter and some tators and adjourned immediately.
