THE VIGILANT CHOSEN

She Will Defend the America's Cup Against the Valkyrie.

THE COLOUTA FINISHED SECOND.

A Very Pretty Race, in Which the Superiority of the Centerheard Sloop Is Clearly Proven-But the Jubilee Met with a Series of Accident.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The third tetal NSW YORK, Sept. 12.—The third trial race for the honor of defending the Amer-ica's cup has been won by the Vigilant. For the third time the New York syndi-cate heat crossed the finish line first. Colonia, Jubilee and Pilgrim finished in the order given. The course was fifteen miles to the windard and return.

When the starting gun boomed across he water the Vigilant and Colonia were a little to the westward of the lightship. The former crossed the latter's bow close hauled on the starboard side, and then dashed for the line before the smoke of the starting gun had cleared away. The Vig-lland led, closely shaving the western mark. One length astern and a trifle to vindward came the Colonia, both of them ulling a little as till, crossed to flatten in their sheets. To the surprise of every one

VIGILANT. the Jubilee and Pilgram were two miles to be ward of the line, standing to the south-ward on the part tack and caring very lite for the handicap gun, then but two minutes off.

On atood the leaders now almost a rolle away, the others apparently unconcerned in the port tack. Not until the handlesp gun sounded did the Boston boats deign to go about and stand for the line, reaching there fully seven minutes behind the handlesp gun. The Pilgrim led over, with the Jubilse a trifle astern and to neward. Both of the laggards luffed up into the wind and shook their salis as they crossed. Tio restunin wind and shook their sails as they crossed, the Jubice going on the port tack immedistely and standing over to the south-vard. In the meantime there was a battle royal In the meantime there was a battle royal in the van between the keel and centre-board boats. The Colonia did her best to blanket the Vigilant, but finding this impossible passed to beward, boat of them going on the port tack and heading to the southward. At 1136 the Colonia went about and stood over in the direction of the Vigilant. The latter, after crossing her rival's how about 100 yards ahead, went about and stood over for Sandy Hook lightship. Far astern the Jubiles and Piligirm had also gone on the starboard tack grim had also gone on the starboard tack and were lighting it out two miles from the leaders. The Jubilee seemed to outpoint and outfoot the Pligrim, and was soon well to windward.

At 12:03 the Vigilant and Colonia passed Sandy Hook lightship, the former to the southward and well to windward, and the southward and well to windward, and the inter to the northward, far to leeward. At 12:24 the Vigilant went on the port tack, heading down the coast, while the Colonia held on to her starboard tacks, and ran over in the direction of Far Rockaway. At 12:45 both of the leaders had gone about again and were running in op-posite directions, the Vigitant crossing the Colonia's bow, one mile ahead. Far away to leaward the Jubilee and Pilgrim were attling hard.

At 1:44 the Vigilant went went on the starboard tack, followed by the Colonia a sloops went on the port tack and stood for the mark, a red flag upon a float. The 'igliant was leading by at least one mile, with the Colonia in line astern. Away off to the southward and west-ward were the Jubilee and Piggrin stand-ing for the mark on the starboard tack. The former displayed very poor judgment by standing nearly a mile too far to wind-ward. Both of the Boston boats were so far up to windward that they tacked in-stead of wearing around the line.

As soon as the yachts were well clear of the mark they began to get their topmasts on end, for the wind had lightened con-siderably, and the sea was not so high. The Vigilant was the first to hoist her spar, lowering the boom and setting her spinnaker. A few minutes later who see spinnaker. A few minutes later she set her balloon jib topsail. The Colonia fol-lowed the Vigilent's lead in holsting her toward the Vigitent's tead in holsting her topmast and breaking out her spinnaker, halloon jib topsail and later her club top-sail. Both the Jubice and Pilgrim got their topmasts on end and set spinnakers and balloon jib topsails, though they carried only working instead of club top-

'Ine Jubilee was handicapped by a series of accidents, and what she would have done had everything held is only conjecture. The laws of her gaff gave way just before the starting gun, and she started seven minutes and six seconds late, with her gaff poking several feet be-yond her mast and her mainsail sagging at the peak. Later she had trouble with her jib and staysail halyards, and ran with one foresail for some time. She would not give up the race, and crippled though she was she finished a good third. The members of the America cup committee are pleased at the performance of the Vigilant, and will name her us their choice to most Lord Dumaven's Valkyrie At the meeting of the America's com-mittee, held on board the flagship May, at Bay Ridge, after the race, it was formally decided that the Vigitant should defend the America's cup against the Valkyrie.
