HOW DARE YOU JUDGE?

The Pertinent Query Addressed to the Religious Congress

BY AN EMINEUT BUDDHIST PRIEST.

He Scores the Christians for Their Lack of Knowledge Concerning the Religion Professed by Four Bundred and Saventy-

Arrayed in robes of spotless white, which seemed all the whiter by reason of his swarthy countenance and wealth of jet swarthy countenance and wents of jet black hair, with arm and index finger ex-tended and every muscle of his body quivering with excitement, Dharmapala, the eminent Buddhist priest and scholar from Calcutta, stood upon the edge of the platform in the Hall of Washington yes-terday afternoon and thus huried deflance terday afternoon and thus huried defiance at the andience before him. A volley of cheers was the response. Beyond the striking figure from the Orient dwelling intently upon every word, sat the venerable Edward Everett Hale, who had just come from an adjoining hall. On his right was the negro prince from Africa, on his left Mrs. Ormiston Chant, the English Hadkeal. Next to her, his head encircled in a turban of white, Dakoyoshi Matuysama, the sidvocate of Shintoism, side by side with the negro Protap Chunder Masoomdar, the philosopher of the Brahmo-Homaj. It was a striking scene and a striking oceasion.

The Buddhist had been introduced after an address of remarkable liberality by an address of remarkable liberality by Rev. Dr. E. L. Rexford, of Boston. He eyidence in the court martial cases against Rev Dr E L. Rexford, of Boston. He expressed his gratification that an opportunity had been afforded him of crossing the water to participate in the parliament, and said that it mattered little what a man's dogma, or what his theology, if he was only sincere and true in the light within him. Then, surveying the audience, he suddenly demanded: "How many of you have read the life of Buddha?" Five hands, four of them belonging to women, were timidly held up.

"five ouly," said the Buddhist, with a tone and look of disdain. "Four hundred and seventy-five millions accept our religion of love and hope. You call yourself a nation, a great nation, and yet you do not know the history of this great teacher. How dare you judge?" and the audience cheered again and again.

"You complain that you do not make converts among ua," he continued. "You preach a God of love, but in your actions you are selfish. You make of an ignorant or unsophisticated man a perfect hypocrite. You have used the story of a life crushing bloody Juggernant to secure the means to save alleged heathens. Jugger.

crushing bloody Juggernant to secure the means to save alleged heathens. Jugger-naut has been popularized by Christian missionaries, and yet a commission com-posed of eminent Englishmen has declared that the Christian idea of Juggernaut was a myth, that death and blood were repul nive to our people. This Christian story has been exploded. It has gone into ob-

And so the Orientalist went on, scoring his hearers and defeading his own creed, He asked how many had read the life of Mohammed, the propiet of Arabia, and when four hands went up he asked why they should denounce Mohammedanism when they knew nothing of it or its founder. And with every sentence he carried his audience with him.

Quite as radical in its way was the address of Rev. Dr. Rexford, the Boston Universalist divine, and he took for his subject "The religious intent." He said he had no sympathy with the people who wanted to be separated from the bonds that bound them to the tragic past. He preferred to keep his share of the bond; that he could rejoice in the development of mankind, in glorying that evolutionary religion that brought them where they were today. He did not believe in talking of a fallen man, but of an undeveloped man. Revelation was never a divine message until it was understood.

vine message until it was understood.

Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbot was another of the leading speakers of the day, taking for his topic, "Religion essentially a characteristic of humanity." He spoke in his usually eloquent strain. Temples and priests, he said, were the creators of religion. They had made it. Christ came not to create religion, but to develop that which was already in existence. Science was thought of man trying to find the reality that lay behind the mysteries of nature. All life was a search after the infinite. Agnostics might call out to them to stop, but they had to go on because they could not help it. The blemishes and blurs of human handiwork were upon Christianity, but it was not Christianity concerning which they desired to tell their brothers from across the sea, but Christ.

Mrs. Lydia H. Dickinson in an address upon "The Divine Basis of Co-operation of Man and Woman" said that woman was not subject to man nor man to woman They were one, and that precluded the idea of subjection. Truth was masculine and love feminine.

Big Strike of French Miners Probable. Mix protested his innocence, but he is still detained. He has called upon Bartlett Tripp, United States minister, to interfers in his behalf.
