She was 17 them cheap spectacles at high prices. In some places he represents himself as the assume places he represents himself as the assume places he represents himself as the assument of well known doctors and tells the purchaser that if the spectacles are not all right the doctor will make them so, and in consequence the offices of doctors are over-Tea. Coffee, Sugar, Butter, Eggs, Spices and some places he represents himself as the asinnumerable other groceries are of the best sistant of well known doctors and tells the inn merable other groceries are at the best quality? There is such a triffier difference in purchaser that if the speciacies are not all the prices of the best and the worst that it are right the doctor will make thom so, and in run with people who have hought inferior

> James O. Sampsell, who left this, place for employment at Providence, R. I., has returned horoughly disgnsted. He says the outlook in the New England cities is exceedingly due. The mill hands are working three days a week, eight hours each day, and have suffered in addition to the reduction of the working time, a cut of twenty per cent. in wages. The present schodule will be of short duration as, at the expiration of two weeks, the mills will shut down until after the Christmas holidays. Mr. Sampsell says starvation seems to be staring the New England mill operatives in the face.

> The long distance telephone is, in the eyes f some people, the greatest wonder of the nineteenth century. An amusing story i related about a certain young man who is unployed in an establishment that has the elephone service. The proprietor informed this bright youth that he had just witnessed he game of base ball between the Shenan doah and Pottsville clubs by telephone; that he could see the fine points of the game just as well as if he had occupied a seat upon the grand stand. After questioning his emdoyer upon the same he remarked : "Yes, herd dat man Edison had made a machin that you could see many miles midt." The following morning his employer approached him with beaming countenance and told him he had just received a glass of beer from Ynongling's brewery. "And do they only charge five cents a glass by telephone?" was the comment of this bright young youth.

"The hope for salvation maketh not ashame ecause the love of God Illuminates the heart," exclaimed Rev. Morgan A Peter's last Sunday evening in the midst of his sermon to a large congregation in the Reformed church, East Mach Chunk, and as he finished the sentence the lights went out. The conaregation was left in darkness thick enough o cut with a knife. In a few moments they dashed up brighter than ever. "The man ver in the power house, at Mauch Chunk is ot engaged to help me in my sermon," coninsed the clergyman, that his darkness was in exact picture of a human heart without ope. The light that now surrounds as is an flustration of that glorious and eternal light bat leadeth to the perfect day."

EMMA WOODS' DEFENSE.

Her Story of the Kill) g of Lew Brown. Her Paramour.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 18.—Emma Woods who is on trial for the murder of Lev Brown, was placed on the stand. She said

She had never carried a pistol. On the day of the shooting her son informed her that Brown threstened to kill her, and she se tured the revolver to prevent him carrying out his threat.

When Brown came home he met her with abuse, knocked her down, beat her and cursed her. He took the revolver from her and held it in one hand while he held her with the other. She described the tussel for the revolver in a graphic manner and told how the revolver went off in the struggle.

The witness spoke in a voice broken with sobs, but recovered presently and went on.
She told of awakening the boy, and him going to the salcon for help. "Did you shoot for Lew Brown?" asked Sanator Barret, her counsel, slowly and impressively. "Is the way you have just described the true way in which Lew Brown met his death?" "It is, before God and man," was the answer.

The Permented Juice Won.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 18.—The climax has been reached in the Preshyterian church here over the question of the use of fermented wine for sacramental purposes. About twenty members, including two elders, refused to partake of the wine on the ground that its being fermented rendered its use improper. The pustor Rev. William Laurie, advocates the use o fermented wine. The opposition to use of fermented wine comes largely from the members of the Society of Christian En-deavor. This question was up before the presbytery two weeks ago, and although 45 out of the 75 churches are now using unfermented wine for sacramental purposes, yet when it came to a vote here the advocates of the fermented juice won.

New Jersey Preshyterians BRIDGETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—The synod of the Presbyterian church of New Jersey began its seventy-third annual session in the First church last evening. In the absence of Rev. Dr. Rassau, the retiring moderator, the sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Henry F. Hickoka, of Orange The synod includes 411 ministers and on elder from each of the 319 churches in al atate. The attendance is nearly 500, repre senting 63,000 communicants. The Methodist Protestant conference of New Jersey is also in annual session here,
