A NARROW ESCAPE!

Mine Inspector Stein's Wife and Daughter Thrown.

THEIR CARRIAGE UPSET.

The Two Ladies Were Precipitated to the Ground and Beneath the Vehicle—Fortunately the Horse Did Not Run Away—Slight Injuries Sustained.

HERE was an accident at Ellengowan, yesterday by which the wife of Mine Inspector Wm. Stein, of town, and one of his daughters, Miss Agnes Stein, had an extraordinary escape. Miss Stein teaches school at Ellengowan and her mother sometimes drives over there about the dismissal hour to bring her home.

Yesterday the mother and daughter were seated in the buggy and Mrs. Stein held the reins. In starting from the school house a very short turn was made and the buggy upset, the occupants falling beneath it.

Fortunately the horse was a quiet one and did not start to run away, but the upsetting of the carriage and the screams of the frightened women made the animal nervous. In proceeding about it stepped upon the prostrate victims several times before assistance arrived.

Several men and women hurried to the place and while some held the horse others extricated Mrs. Stein and her daughter from their perilous situation and they were carried to the residence of Mrs. Corrigan, near the school building. It was found that they suffered principally from shock and had only suffered a few slight bruises, so far as outward appearances went, although Mrs. Stein complained of a pain in her side.

Messes, C. E. Titman and Gordon Clauser happened to pass the Corrigan house shortly after the accident and they took Mrs. and Miss Stein to their home on West Oak street, where medical attendance was summoned. It is said that neither lady suffered seriously from the experience and both will be all right again in a day or two. Their friends think they had a miraculous escape.

HERE IS AN INSTANCE.

Doesn't This Democratic Plea Work Both Ways?

Last evening one of the most prominent candidates on the Democratic ticket made a thorough canvass of the town in company with an ex-saloonkeeper. The candidate is a recognized total abstinence man and during his rounds last night he made temperance a special plea. This question he repeatedly put to people whose support he asked. "You do not wish to support a saloonkeeper for office, do you?" and it was directed against his Republican opponent.

Now it is a poor rule which does not work both ways. If voting for a saloonkeeper is against any law of morality or law of the land then the people who think so and are advocating it must also attack the Democratic ticket. But singularly enough the Democratic candidate who was making this plea last night made no reference to the saloonkeepers who are candidates on the Democratic ticket for two very important offices, neither did he seem to see the inconsistency of being piloted about by a gentleman who kept a sporting saloon in town for several years and is still a very intimate friend of most of the prominent men in that business.

Erption of the Skin Cured.

Ed. Vennay, Brockville, Ontario, Canada, says: "I have used Brandreth's Pills for the past fifteen years, and think them the best cathartic and anti-bilious remedy known. For some five years I suffered with an eruption of the skin that gave me great pain and annoyance. I tried different blood remedies, but, although gaining strength the itching was unrelieved. I finally concluded to take a thorough course of Brandreth's Pills. I took six each night for four nights, then five, four, three, two, lessening each time by one, and then for one month took one every night, with the happy result that now my skin is perfectly clear and has been so ever since."

The funny farce comedy by Will H. Powers, written especially for amusement and an evening's enjoyment will be at Ferguson's theatre Oct. 25th.

Passed Successfully.

George L. Hafner and Bernard J. Durkin, who stood a civil service examination before our local board, August 5th, for the position of letter carriers, passed all right, the former having a percentage of 82.13 and the latter 81.10.

OBEE'S OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and Hears During His Travels About Town.

"Ten minutes six times a day spent in in halting and exhaling the breath will improve the form," says a fashion note in an exchange. For the balance of the 1380 minutes in the day, the fair readers of the paper that prescribes this treatment for form improving, are expected to stop breathing.

Any party or society of town which will undertake to get up a genuine Kirmees, this winter will not only have a far better paying attraction than a fair, a supper, and like affairs, but will furnish the people with one of the most beautiful and delightful entertainments ever given here. In some towns no larger than Shenandoah a Kirmees has cleared from $2,000 to $3,000, independent of the expense of nearly $2,000. It is a unique entertainment and I may take occasion to give the details of it in this column shortly.

The ladies connected with the Presbyterian church have undertaken to raise money to help build a parsonage and for that purpose each will take turns holding "teas" at their residences and baking cakes, etc., to sell. One of the young ladies is soliciting original recipes which have been tested and found satisfactory. After a sufficient number have been collected they will be published in book form with the name of each contributor over each recipe and sold at a nominal figure. Miss Jennie Thomas, of North Jardin street, gave a successful "regular old-fashioned Welsh tea" with great success last evening. I believe the undertaking will be successful, and hope it will.

Some of the HERALD boys enjoyed a good joke at the expense of one of its oldest readers yesterday. He had never seen a telephone operator and had never held the receiver to his ear in fact he knew nothing at all about it and gladly accepted an invitation to walk down to the office and "see the old thing work." On the way down he stopped at Scheidt's and had a glass of beer, and snatched an apple during the remainder of the journey. While the visitor was looking over the premises one of the boys rushed in exclaiming, "Is Mr. — here?" "Yes, I am here," answered the old reader, and he was told that a gentleman was calling him to the phone. The visitor protested that he knew nothing about the darn old thing and anybody having business with him would have to write, telegraph or call in person." Upon assistance being volunteered our reader consented to go to the instrument, put the receiver to his ear and shouted, "Hello" into the transmitter. He had no sooner followed instructions than he was staggered by a vigorous, "Hallo yourself!" "Golly, there is something!"

"Listen, listen, ask what is wanted," said one of the bystanders.

Again the reader stepped forward and after shouting, "Who in— are you and what do you want?"

Like a flash there came back, "I know you, —; what bear is that you've been drinking?" It seems like Scheidt's. Even apples wouldn't disguise its trademark."

Our friend threw down the receiver, his eyes were as big as saucers and he seemed anxious for somebody to pinch him to see if he was really alive. He agreed that the "telephone" was a great invention and walked slowly out of the office homeward bound to tell his wife of his experience. When he reads this it will be the first intimation to him that the man at the other end of the line was posted.

SUIT OVER A MINE DRILL.

Two Miners Honorably Acquitted of a Charge—A Lehigh Valley Engine Disabled—Hess, the Injured Workman, is in a Critical Condition.

N innocent mine drill caused a law suit before Justice Toomey in which several miners employed at the Indian Ridge colliery figured as principals and witnesses. The complainant was Michael Byrne and the defendants were Thomas Hogan, John Wills and Patrick McCarthy. Byrne complained that he lost a drill in the mine and did not find it until several days after when he saw it in the blacksmith shop of the colliery. The next morning he went to the shop early and saw Hogan take it away. He followed and after they had walked some distance into the mine Hogan saw he was being followed and surrendered the tool. Byrne then had Hogan and the miners for whom he was working, Wills and McCarthy, arrested on a charge of larceny.

At the hearing Wills and McCarthy proved they did not know the drill was stolen and they had not claimed ownership of it, as it is customary for their laborers to furnish their own tools. This being shown the two men were honorably discharged, but Hogan was put under $300 bail for trial.

THE ONE ISSUE.

People of Ohio Want to Hear of the Tariff Only.

"We have everything in this country we had last year except prosperity, and we traded that for a Democratic Administration and a change; and now how do you like it?"

"We don't like it at all," was the answer that came from a thousand voices when Gov. McKinley asked this question the other night before the crowd that, unable to get into the opera house, in Dennison, Ohio, gathered before the hotel and clamored for a speech from the great champion of protection.

"This year politics is business and business is politics. Every man in Ohio is going to vote for what he believes will be best for him and for his family. And if you don't like free trade, now is the time to hit it and hit it hard."

The cheers which greeted these words of Gov. McKinley would seem to fully indicate the feelings and determination of Ohio Republicans in this campaign. Never has the Buckeye state witnessed larger or more interested outpourings of the people. At Cadiz that same afternoon 8,000 of the farmers of Harrison county turned out to hear McKinley. They have reason to be dissatisfied with the results of the change. With wool at 19 cents a pound the farmers of that, the chief wool-growing county of Ohio, are in no enviable condition. And their numbers, earnestness and enthusiasm are excellent indications of how their ballots will be cast in November.

Livery stable keepers should always keep Arnica & Oil Liniment in the stable, nothing like it for horses.

In a Critical Condition.

A message from the Miners' Hospital stated to-day that Samuel Hess, the telephone lineman who fell from a pole at Lost Creek on Tuesday, is in a critical condition and it is impossible to say what the result of his injuries will be. He sustained a fracture of the pelvis by the fall. Hess is a resident of Reading. He resided here some time ago and is still a member of Camp 112, P. O. S. of A.

Common Scold.

Eke Evange, a Hungarian, was presented before Justice Toomey last night and paid the fine and costs on a charge of being a common scold, preferred by Dora Schewerl. The parties reside at Yatesville.

GREAT ACTIVITY.

All Concerned in the Water Works on the Move.

It is quite evident that the injunction suits recently instituted to restrain the construction of a reservoir for the public water works on the Girard Estate and in proximity to the Kehley Run colliery workings are the most formidable obstructions yet thrown in the way of the undertaking, and it is also evident that all parties concerned realize that they have on hand what promises to be lengthy and bitter legal controversies. When the suits were first spoken of the water works people treated the reports slightly and said that the borough would soon bridge the threatened difficulties by filing a bond to indemnify the complaining parties against damages; but it now seems that the proposed indemnity plan will not work as smoothly as was expected. The Thomas Coal Company takes the ground that it is not so much the damage to its mine workings and the loss by suspension of operations by reason of floods which it fears, but loss of human life, and it is claimed that all the security the borough can furnish would not justify the placing of scores of miners in the jaws of death when there is no necessity for it. It is claimed that the borough can secure just as good a site with little additional cost at another place. Of course this is the coal company's claim and it proposes to establish it by many affidavits of citizens who work in the mines and those acquainted with them. The borough officials, on the other hand, claim that the suits have been instituted merely as a means to obstruct the project in the interest of the old water company people and they say, too, will have an abundance of affidavits on hand when the day for argument arrives.

Both sides are determined and none on either side are idle. Yesterday Engineer Andrew Cochran, of Pottsville, spent the day on Locust mountain, making surveys for the old water company, and incidentally made observations which the Thomas Coal Company may use in court. Last night Councilman James, Gable, Gallagher, Dougherty and others were in lengthy consultation with Contractor Matt Quinn and Borough Solicitor Pomeroy, and the fact that to-night's meeting of the Borough Council has been called for an extra early hour leads to the conclusion that something of importance may be communicated.

Engines Disabled.

Lehigh Valley engine No. 76 became disabled while standing on a side track near Emerick street at noon to-day, by the bursting of a flue. Engineer Charles Faust and Fireman Jacob Clemenens hurriedly drew the fire and prevented damage to the engine's boiler. Another engine was telegraphed for and upon its arrival from Delano the disabled one was sent to the shops.
