THE KIRMESS.

What it is and How it Can be Arranged With Much Specess. society of town take up a Kirmens for a series of benefits during the coming winter and a promise to dwell more fully on the nature of a Kirmess has created more interest than the HEBALD anticipated, and while interest is awakened it has been deemed wise to tell of the Kirmess without further delay. It is really a fair and series of entertainments on an elaborate scale. From fifty to two hundred and fifty young people may take a Kirmess has created more interest than the hundred and fifty young people may take part in it and can easily be trained for the entertainment within a comparatively short time. Wherever the Kirmess has been tried It has proved a wonderful success and in Shenandoah it would be a great novelty Robbins opera house would be well suited for a Kirmers. Around the end of the dancing floor the usual booths could be arranged. Then the secret of Kirmess would begin These booths and all unnightly places would be decorated by experienced hands. The decorations would be exceedingly brilliant and look as if they cost "a pile of money while in fact they would cost compara tively nothing. The chespest materials are used. The secret is in the blending of the colors and unique methods of arrangement. Then the entertainment of the Kirmess comes. It consists of pretty pageants Japanese, cymbal, harvest, flower, tarantella, matador, fisher's horupipe, minuet and a long list of other dances, with tableaux, and all who take part in them are dressed in the costumes of all nations. These costumes like the decorations of the hall and booths, are dazzling in effect, and like them cost very little, as it is the experienced hand which put them together, and not the materials which make the effect. The Kirmess is controlled by a copywright and can only be given by Heense of the owners. Should any society in town con-clude to try it communication with the lady holding the copywright may be opened by

EMMA WOODS CONVICTED

Lew Brown's Hardsome Murderess Will

Serve a Term in Prison. NEWARE, N. J., Oct. 30.—The charge of Judge De Pue in the Emma Woods case was very long, taking nearly an hour and three quarters to deliver. The jury retired at 2:55 o'clock, and at 6:05 last evening re-turned with their verdict. When the jury tried and found guilty was the killing of Lewis Brown in June last. She was Brown's mistress, and was jealous of the attentions which he showed to other women. Brown kept a saloon known as Tammany Hall, and he was a well known politician. Brown was shot in the heart and died almost instantly. Emma Woods has been a well known character in this city for some time. She is a very pretty woman, and has a fine figure.

What He Sees and Hears During His Travels About Town. According to a newspaper of that place urprise parties are not successful in Pottswille. Women and men, and young girls and young men dance, yell and sing, and send out for cans of beer, and the wild bacchanalian revels alarm the people. The Pottsville surprise parties are quitedifferent to those held. n Shenandoah.

The public school officials were content to ave the children celebrate autumn arbor day here to-day by simply indulging in anpropriate musical programs. The object of arbor day is a glorious one and one which will some time arouse the patriots, but at present it must be content with stinted recognition. A few years ago the people of Shenandoah celebrated it in a loyal manner. Children gathered in front of the school buildings and planted levely young trees which were to grow and some fine day throv their foliage-laden limbs over the play grounds. But a month or two after arbor day the stems and branches were found pro truding from the mouths of perambulating goals and the trees which escaped the on slaughts of the temate can flends became anguld, refused to grow, and the school directors concluded that a lot of consum; tive trees had been dumped upon their hands When better trees are put on the market and the school districts have more funds with which to protect them the people will take more interest in arbor day. Meanwhile we will seek nature's leveliness on the neighbor ing hills and ask the woodman to take a day

There fine autumn days bring life and mergy to a man, and could they be continued one would not care for aummer or for winter Here in Shensudeah, the autumn is the best part of the year. Of spring, Shenandoo has none. Last Night's Show.

William H. Power's Irish drama, "The Ivy Leaf," occupied the boards at Ferguson's theatre last evening before a large audience The play has been produced here so often that it has become, in the language of the "gallery gods," a veritable chestnut, and with each succeeding appearance the company is corres pondingly inferior. None of the characters are worthy of special mention, and at their next appearance here they will meet with a much smaller audience.

Political Points.

There is one thing that can almost be seen y a blind man; and that is, the prospects for the future never looked better than nowfor the Republican party.

Now that the Federal election laws are about to be repealed, having passed the For a Neat and Clean House recently, by 200 to 101, shot-guns will be in great demand in the South, in order to keep the colored people from voting. It is an ill wind that don't blow somebody som good.
