Its war and literature Solomon Yowell, well known as a writer as "Sold," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. B, 2d N. Y. Cavalry and of the 8th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

Several of our old veterans here are using Dr. Allen's Restorative Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used any other medicine that compares with them. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and true to the system whence they fully. We say to all, try these remedies!

WRECK ON THE P. F. W. AND C

Three Trainmen Receive Injuries That May Result Fatally.

LIMA, O., Oct. 23.—A bad wreck occurred on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago road, in a dense fog, early in the morning. West bound vestibule train No. 28 was running in several sections, and the second one was standing at a switch near Mountsville awaiting the arrival of the second section of east bound passenger train No. 4. The fog hung so heavily that it was impossible to see further than a few feet ahead of the engine. The west bound train was standing close to the switch and was in charge of Conductor Plugg and Engineer Day.

The train was standing at a slow rate of speed, but owing to the fog and the engine's inability to see where he was Engineer Cowan had commenced to stop as he thought it was about time for him to reach the switch. Suddenly there loomed up in front of him an engine, and before he could jump he was crushed into the other train and both were derailed in a wreck.

HONORS TO MACMAHON.

The Nation's Tribute of Respect to the Soldier-Statesman.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL SERVICES.
Mingling Funeral Oration Over the Body by Ministers Dugan and Lonsellon.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—April all the pomp of France and war the services of Marshal MacMahon, ex-president of France and Duke of Magenta, were conveyed yesterday from the church of La Madeleine, across the river Seine, to the Hotel des Invalides, there to rest until the great revolution is completed by the heavenly trumpet. When the guard of honor had cleared the necessary space in front of the church, countless beautiful wreaths, crosses and pillows of flowers were placed upon and around the casket. Among the floral offerings were beautiful displays of lilacs, violets and roses sent by Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales.

In the line of march were large detachments from each of the European nations, presided by the fleur-de-lis of the French army as a guard of honor. Representatives of the different diplomatic corps were present in force. The latter were headed by the Italian ambassador, Count Tessan, and by the German ambassador, Count von Münster.

Russia's Admiral With the Diplomats.
An Admiral Avellan walked with the diplomatic corps, and the other Russian officers were at the head of the delegation representing the French army. The latter portion of the procession included officers from every branch of the army. Large numbers of members of the Chamber of Deputies and civil leaders, including the Italian colony in Paris, followed.

At the Hotel de the Invalides, the funeral procession passed down the Rue Royale and made its way toward the Hotel des Invalides. At the latter building a double file of pensioners, with mourning bands around their arms, was standing on either side of the central avenue, opening on the Grand Cour.

The body of Marshal MacMahon was on its way to the Hotel des Invalides, the chapel of the Invalides was filling up with notabilities. Among the first arrivals was Marshal Canrobert, now the only surviving marshal of France.

At the conclusion of the religious services the coffin was conveyed to the court of honor. While the body was in the court of honor M. Dupuy, minister of instruction and General Loubet, minister of war, delivered stirring orations over the body of the veteran soldier. A most impressive march past of the troops at the Hotel des Invalides followed. The members of the diplomatic corps witnessed the soldier's march from a position which they took up on the right side of the entrance to the Esplanade, and the Russian soldiers witnessed the same ceremony from the left side of the entrance.
