THE HUSBAND IN LUCK

Saved by the Wrath of a Conspirator.

SLATED TO BE POISONED

Two Boarders Had Drawn the Wife Into a Scheme to Secure Possession of Her Husband's Money and Farm in the Old Country.

It is seldom that the Polish or Hungarian people residing down the valley between Brownsville and Givardville bother the courts or justices with their troubles. As a rule they are people who seem disposed to suffer many indignities rather than waste their money in law suits and for that reason a greater proportion are better off than their countrymen in the towns. Anthony Kinslausk is one of those foregoing people. He resides in a comfortably furnished home near what is known as No. 2 with his wife and young child. He is a hard working miner and in addition to his income from the mines has a revenue from boarders.

Kinslausk claims that he is the owner of several acres of land in Galicia and it has been his intention to save money enough to warrant him some day in returning to the old country and tilling his farm. During the six years of his married life his wife has been most industrious and careful in the management of their little home near No. 2 and seemed to be inspired by the same hope for farm life in the old country, but on Tuesday last the husband made a discovery which has almost broken his heart and alarmed his friends.

Mike Bushock and Simon Maleski were two of the boarders at the home. They became acquainted with Kinslausk's private affairs, in fact the latter would frequently tell them of his plans for the future. By some perfidious methods the two boarders succeeded in inveigling the wife in a scheme by which the husband should be poisoned. After his death the two boarders were to go to the old country. Bushock was to marry the wife and Maleski was to become boss farmer on the homestead. The latter was to be given the position in payment for properly applying the poison to the unsuspecting husband. Bushock was the chief conspirator. Fortunately for the husband Maleski happened to hear one of their conversations between Bushock and the wife in which Bushock urged the latter to enter into a plan to dispose of Maleski after the husband would be out of the way. Maleski did not like this and sought satisfaction by resolving to abandon the whole scheme and making a clean breast to the husband. This he did and in a moment of excitement Kinslausk charged Bushock. The latter became alarmed and disappeared. He is supposed to have gone to Williamstown. Kinslausk spent last night in a law office of town with his wife making arrangements to have all the belongings of the couple placed under his personal control, in consideration of his forgiveness. Kinslausk, who speaks excellent English, said last night, "I am glad to be alive and will not bother the wretches."

Last Night's Show.
"An Irishman's Luck" at Ferguson's theatre last night succeeded in pleasing a good sized audience. The comedy is full of lively situations, bright dialogues and catchy music. Mr. Steve Maloy, as Devotee O'Dowd, was very good. His style is somewhat different from the majority of Irish impersonators. He disregards the ridiculous make-up and dresses an Irishman as he should. His singing and dancing earned repeated encores. The play is a highly amusing one. It opens with a mirth-provoking boarding house scene and is followed by comic situations which are supposed to occur at Rockaway Beach. Clog, jig and reel dances follow each other in rapid succession and are accompanied by vocal selections of popular and fetching songs. Irish, German and Negro comedians mingle with each other for about two hours and a half, and are continually at work provoking laughter. The company will appear at Frackville this evening.

ONE'S OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and Hears During His Travels.

Our Borough Council is not alone in complaining of electric light company charges. The property owners, architects and builders of several large cities are now engaged in discussing the wisdom of sole dependence on an electric light company for illumination. The discussion has been precipitated by an unfortunate predicament in which the tenants of a new office building in Boston find themselves. In the construction the building was only provided with electric light fixtures and since its opening the company furnishing the lights has increased its rates to exorbitant figures; the tenants must now either comply with the demands or use oil or candles, as the building is not furnished with gas pipes.

While a party of gentlemen were discussing the law suits over the public water works and incidentally touching upon the charges of corporations and the wide scope some of them have the other evening one of the party produced a time worn document which showed that water works and banking were mixed up in a curious manner when Aaron Burr obtained, in 1798, a charter for a "water company" in New York City. This charter was really procured to enable him to start a bank similar to those from which Alexander Hamilton and his associates were making money rapidly. Burr's charter enabled him to engage in the East India trade and the banking business as well as supply water, and under this charter the Bank of the Manhattan Company of New York City must be and is to day ready to supply to the city 450 gallons of water a minute from a well 191 feet in diameter and 14 feet deep. The water is pumped from this well to a tank 40 feet in diameter and 35 feet deep, and the pumps are tried every day to see that they can fulfill the conditions under which the Manhattan Company retain its charter.

The people who have recently been paying fifty cents for marriage licenses will be surprised to learn that no marriage license law is now in effect in this state, that none has been since May 1, last, and none will be until October 1, 1895. Loving young couples for the next two years need not flee to Canada to escape the sometimes reckless law. This is the bonum error in a date. A lawyer discovered the discrepancy while looking over an official copy of the laws of 1893. The mistake was discovered in that part of the amendment law which reads "That from and after the first day of October, Anno Domini, one thousand, eight hundred and ninety-three, no person within this Commonwealth, shall be joined in marriage," etc. The letters in Italics should have been three.

The Rhonda Valley Glee Club which came to this country from Wales to compete at the great assemblage at the World's Fair has been rapidly thinning out since its arrival on our shores. After sending five or six of their party home after the assemblage, the party started West. After a pleasant tour they turned their faces eastward, two several more were dropped at Chicago, two securing excellent musical appointments at leading churches, and three finding situations in iron works. One was taken sick at Youngstown and one of the party was left behind to care for him. Together with the conductor, pianist, harpist and manager, they only number twenty-one at the present time.

In response to the suggestions made some time ago that silver dollars of the same fineness and weight as those made by the United States Government could be made and passed at a profit of from thirty to forty cents on the dollar, some enterprising individual has gone to work and is now circulating them. The dollar was a little over weight, had a perfect ring, felt all right to the touch, but was a little larger in diameter than the dollar of the government. It would not pass through the bankers' gauges, and was found to be a little inferior in the milling on the edge, although this latter defect was not noticeable except to one accustomed to examining such things. Since their first appearance it is probable that 2,000 of them have been passed and people elsewhere seem willing to take them, knowing that they were not made in the United States mints. There is no clue to the persons who are passing them, and they seem to have come in the course of natural trade. They have been noticed at many points recently, and several of them will be sent to the Treasury Department by bankers who are not positive of their ground in condemning them.

A VERY NARROW ESCAPE

Max Supowitz, the First Ward Merchant, Has an Unpleasant Experience With a Railroad Engine—Two of His Ribs Broken by a Toss.

HERE was an exceedingly narrow escape from death at the Centre street crossing of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad last evening. Max Supowitz, the East Centre street merchant, was the victim. He was driving home after a day's tour through Mahanoy township and on nearing the crossing failed to notice that a passenger train was at the depot. It is customary, after the trains stop at the depot, for the engine to be released, run up to the switch north of Centre street and then run back to be switched on to the other end of the train. Mr. Supowitz drove upon the tracks and before he could get off the engine started. It struck the wagon with such force as to topple both the vehicle and horse over. Mr. Supowitz was found under the wagon apparently pretty badly injured. He was taken to his home, 235 East Centre street, and attended by Drs. Callen and Hochreper, who found two ribs on the left side fractured, but said the injuries were not very serious. The horse was considerably bruised by the toss and the wagon damaged. Mr. Supowitz intimated to-day that the railroad company would be held responsible for damages. He claims that the crossing is a dangerous one and should be supplied with safety gates and a tender. Mr. Supowitz certainly had a very narrow escape. He has an extensive clothing and gent's furnishing good business in the First ward.

Pains and Aches.
We all have pains and aches, but they needn't last long—not any longer than it takes to put on an Alcock's Porous Plaster. The only thing to look out for is that you get the right plaster. There are others, but you don't want them; take our word for it, for when you need a plaster you need it, and there's no time for experimenting and finding out mistakes then. Ask for Alcock's Porous Plasters and see that you get them. If they say that some other is just as good, tell them that only the best is good enough for you. Alcock's Porous Plasters are quick and sure, and acknowledged by the highest medical authorities and everybody else to be the best outside remedy for pains and aches of every description.

Ferguson's Theatre.
"The Fairies' Well" should be witnessed by all lovers of refined Irish drama. It is pure in tone, refined in sentiment, enlivened by sweet singing and excellent dancing, while the scenery is a magnificent reproduction of Ireland's picturesque beauties. The play is a tribute to the worth and dignity of the Irish character which every descendant of the Emerald Isle can point to with pride, in comparison with the hideous burlesque so often seen on the stage to-day. A company of more than usual excellence will personate the characters in the drama. Will appear at Ferguson's theatre on Monday, Oct. 30th.

AT IT AGAIN.

Democratic Campaigners Are Treading on Dangerous Ground.

A number of north-of-the-mountain Democrats have been "doing" the lower districts and working among the German farmers with flimsy arguments against the Polish candidates as their chief ammunition. The Democrats are steadily making a deeper pit for themselves and do not seem to realize it. They tell the farmers that to help elect the Republican ticket they will do so at their own peril; that the success of the Republican party means the putting of the Poles into power and in a few years they will become strong enough to control all the offices. It is hard to see what weight such an argument can have with the Germans, especially when it comes from the people who have been continually shutting out the Germans. The Irish have been holding elections and offices for the benefit of the Irish, and other nationalities beside the Germans have had ample proof of it. But it seems strange that these same Democrats do not use the same arguments in the Polish districts. They dare not. They have courted these people for years and noted upon them while they stood by the Democratic ticket. The Polish citizens have had their eyes opened. They see that the Democrats have been making tools of them on the "you may vote, but not hold office" principle. The Polish people will vote for a change this fall, Mr. Democrat, and don't you forget it.

THE BURNED CHILD.

Little Ellie Longolous Still Survives Her Injuries.

To the great surprise of people acquainted with the details of the case, little Ellie Longolous, the four-year-old child which was so badly burned at the home of her parents on West Line street yesterday, is still alive. The poor little victim's body was almost entirely roasted, its head, face, neck, arms, abdomen and legs presenting such a terrible sight that even the attending physician felt that death would result within a few hours. When the physician, Dr. Strunk, called on the little patient to-day he found her still conscious but very weak from the strain upon her system on account of her sufferings yesterday and last night. The physician is still of the opinion that the burns are fatal. This case should make parents at all times see that matches and other inflammable materials are kept beyond the reach of small children.

How to the Judges.

EDITOR HERALD:—At every election there are numerous disputes over what constitutes a tax receipt to entitle a man to vote. The law reads, "To entitle a man to vote, he shall have paid a state or county tax within two years, which was assessed two months, and paid at least one month, before the election." Now I have heard lawyers declare that under this provision a man paying taxes for 1893 within two years of the election of 1893 is entitled to vote, and that it has so been decided in election contests. This suggests that the Judges of Election write to the Attorney General at Harrisburg for information on the subject so that they may know how to act at the coming election. CURTIS.
