Another new and exceedingly competent member of the Empire theater stock com-painy is William Faversham, whose acting panty is within reversion, whose sound as the villations Austrian could in "Ar-istocracy" was, in my opinion, the best bit of work contributed by any member of that really notable cast. Mr. Faversham is that really located cast, sol, revealant to conscientious to a degree, as any one who saw him while he was with Augustus Piton's stock company will readily attest. Mr. Faversham is one of the most promis-ingly "coming" of the younger set of American actors.

When Mr. and Mrs. Kenniki are in Lon-don, they invariably have all of their chil-dren they with them. They are assuttally "home bodies," and are never so happy as when surrounded by their interesting family at their charming house at 13 Portland

It might interest many persons to know how Mr. and Mrs. Kendul became stars, and joint stars at that. The lasty comes of the celebrated Hobertson family, famous in the annuls of the L.D.lish stage. It was therefore not surprising that she should have sought and obtained a position at the then addedited Haymericet theater under the management of John Baldwin Buck-
