PENNSYLVANIA LEADS. There appears to have been a race between Pennsylvania and Oblo as to which could do the best in rolling up big Republican majorities this year. The Old Keystone, however, as usual, leads and carries off the banner with Ohio a good second. New York surprises Republicans themselves and the victory in that state is a remarkable one. Maynard's defeat was hoped for, but it is an overwhelming one, but the large majority for the rest of the Republican state ticket was not expected. The capture of both branches of the Legislature and the control of the Constitutional convention by the Republicans are results of the utmost and farreaching importance. With athorough re-organization of the Republicans of New York under good and competent leaders the party ought to be able to firmly entrench itself in that state and hold the state in the Republican column. The victories in Massachusetts, Iowa, New Jersey and other states are scarcely of less importance and are calculated to inspire Republicans with confidence and renewed zeal for the next great struggle next year for the recovery of Congress. This has

The opinions of leading men in different sections of the country are, briefly sum marized, as follows:

Congressman Hitt, of Illinois, who was chairman of the house committee on for-eign affairs in the Fifty-first congress, eign anairs in the Fifty-tiest congress, said: "I believe that the policy of inter-ference by our government in behalf of a monarchy, and a discredited one at that— one that went down in a violent attempt of the queen to overthrow the Hawalian constitution—is contrary to every tradition and impulse of the American people. Congressman Holman, of Indiana: "Whether we did right or wrong in helpment, it has made Hawaii a temporary republic and we ought not to act as dictator any further over the acts and opinions of the people, but we should let England and the whole world know that we want those islands, and intend to have them when the time comes that they are to pass under the control of any foreign government.
