AN INTRUDER SHOT.

Midnight Sensation on West Centre Street.

ALMOST A FATAL WOUND

Butcher Wurm Gives an Unwelcome Visitor a Hot Reception—When Arraigned To-day the Injured Man Pleaded That He Was Drunk at the Time.

N unannounced and unceremonious midnight visitor almost met his death at a home on West Centre street and it was not the fault of the involuntary host that the visitor is not in an ice box to-day for the shot which was given as a welcome was within exceedingly close range of a fatal point.

The house at which the affair occurred is occupied by Morris Wurm, the butcher. Mr. Wurm and his family retired shortly after nine o'clock last night, after securing fastening all the doors and windows. At about twenty minutes before the midnight hour, when Mr. Wurm was dreaming that he had just closed an excellent bargain with the weather clerk, by which the latter was to withdraw the cold snap and make to-day more pleasant for the butchers who would be obliged to drive about on wagons, a noise was heard at one of the rear doors of the house.

The butcher's dream vanished and the noise caused him to partly raise himself in the bed and listen. After a few moments' hesitation Wurm jumped from his bed and taking a lamp in one hand and a revolver in the other he left the bedroom, remarking to his wife that he would go and see who was trying to get into the house.

As Mr. Wurm noiselessly descended to the first door he could hear the fumbling at the kitchen door. Just as the butcher entered the dining room the door leading from the kitchen opened and the form of a man appeared. Like a flash Wurm leveled his revolver and fired. Only one shot was discharged, but it was a good one and staggered the intruder, who fell backward into a chair with a groan.

Mr. Wurm then rushed forward and pinned the intruder to the chair, but realized that the fellow was too badly injured to give trouble and Mr. Wurm's father was left to guard him while the son went out to look for an officer.

The injured man certainly looked like a case for an undertaker, at first glance. The blood flowed in a stream over the fellow's garments from wounds in the right cheek and right side of the head and was partly stopped. The ball from Mr. Wurm's revolver, a .32 short calibre, had entered just below the cheek bone and passed out about an inch from the opening of the right ear. Dr. Salinas attended the man and upon examination said the wound was not a dangerous one, but had barely missed the fatal spot.

The intruder was confined in the lockup for the night. This morning he was taken before Justice Williams, charged with wilfully and maliciously breaking into Mr. Wurm's house with intent to rob. He gave his name as Balro Strolus. He is a stockily built young fellow about 23 years of age, comfortably and respectfully dressed, and in his vest pocket carried a silver watch with a brass chain attached. He was accompanied by two respectable looking Lithuanians. The three reside in town.

Strolus presented a sorrowful spectacle. His head and face were wrapped in bandages supplied by Dr. Salinas, the front of his coat, vest and trousers were covered with clotted blood, and the eye which peeped over the bandages on the side of the face, which the bullet entered, was bloodshot and otherwise discolored. When told of the charge against him Strolus pleaded not guilty. He said that he was drunk last night and did not remember what he had done. The breaking into the house was a mistake and he would not have done it had he been sober.

Dr. Salinas was present. He said the wound in itself was not dangerous, but when he visited Strolus this morning he found the man had torn off the bandages and it would require a few days to determine whether the removal of the bandages had permitted cold to set in the wound. In such a case inflammation would follow and the case would be serious. Strolus tore off the bandages while in his cell and the act is taken as confirmation of his story that he was drunk.

After the hearing Mr. Wurm said that he felt the intruder had been sufficiently punished and as attendances at court require expense and loss of time he was willing to settle, providing Strolus would pay all cost and damages for the breaking of the door, soiling of carpets, etc. It was agreed that Strolus would go to Potsville and enter such bail as the District Attorney might require and then, if that official should consent, the case would be settled.

A single trial of Dr. Henry Berley's Man Drake Bitters will convince any one troubled with constipation, torpid liver or any kindred diseases of their curative properties. They only cost 25 cents per bottle.

OBV'S OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and Hears During His Trips About Town.

The officials of the Lehigh Valley road have posted "No Admittance" signs on all the doors of the telegraph offices along their road. The company urges their operators to eject any one who has no business in the office. It is said that the order was issued principally to prevent newspaper reporters from gaining any information along the line.

A physician has it that bicycling is very injurious, saying that on his machine the spine of the rider is bent to an arc, the chest bone affected by the pressure, impairing circulation and interfering with the operation of the lungs. No form of sport or exercise can be invented but some doctor denounces it, just as when a change or improvement of any sort in the methods of public affairs is made some lawyer denounces it as illegal or unconstitutional. There are men who spend long hours day after day through a long life bent over a desk and suffer none of the ills with which the bicyclist is said to be threatened. Between doctors and lawyers it is a marvel how civilized mankind gets through the world with any comfort at all.

It may be news to some of the sports of town to hear that "Jimmy" McElane, who met and defeated William Gibson, of this place, in a three-round "scrap" at Ashland last winter, was arrested at Philadelphia this week for participating in a prize fight with "Jim" Burge, the iron man of Australia.

A few days more and then Thanksgiving and turkey and cranberry. There was a deal of worldly wisdom in associating religious celebrations with good eating, as Christmas, New Year's, Easter. The celebrations might be selected if they stood alone but there is no danger of that when they are associated with fine dinners.

The services in the churches Thanksgiving day are simply attended, but everybody is present when the turkey and cranberry are set out. The Puritans did not like this sort of thing and regarded Christmas as a little better than a heathen festival. That is one reason why Puritanism was doomed from its birth. Occasionally as Christmas draws nigh one hears of discussions in the meetings of certain preachers concerning the propriety of recognizing it. But the discussions are all in vain. Whatever the preachers say, the people have their Christmas jollification. And their Thanksgiving feast too. The Puritans tried to maintain Thanksgiving as a fast, but it was no go. The preachers could fast all they wanted to, but the parishioners would not.

Now-a-days when a man wants to go to Shamokin, or any point east on the main line of the Lehigh Valley railroad, he has a regular catch as catch time with his own judgment. He swagers into the depot, scans the time table, asks the ticket agent a dozen questions about the strike and the running of the 2:28 p. m. train, looks the agent straight in the eye to see if he answers the truth, and finally slaps down his money and says, "Give me a ticket. I'll try it, and if I don't get through to Joyville I'll sue the company for damages." After receiving his ticket he again struts about the waiting room, walks back to the ticket window, asks what time the train will leave half a dozen times, pulls off his hat and mops his forehead, curses the strikers and finally walks out to the depot platform in time to meet a friend he had left in town two hours before and who had walked leisurely to the depot to catch the 4:10 train for Joyville. After a wait of about an hour and a half both men boarded their train. There is no rapid transit in these days.

Downs' Balm will cure any cough or cold no matter of how long standing.

Miss Bailey Bordered.

The funeral of Miss Edna Bailey, who died of consumption at Denver, Colorado, last week, took place to-day. The remains were taken from the residence of her parents in Delano to Tanagers, where interment was made. Miss Bailey was the attractive 15-year old daughter of J. Taylor Bailey, one of the engineers on the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Expensive Economy.

Some people begrudge the little money that an Alcock's Porous Plaster costs and then when they are racked with pain from a lame back or from the soreness arising from a cold, they will spend any amount of money to relieve the pain. If they only had one of those world renowned plasters on hand they would be saved a vast amount of suffering and be considerably richer. At the first sign of stiffness of the joints apply one of these plasters without any delay. The soreness will be greatly relieved at once and soon disappear entirely. It will be money saved to have them on hand, to say nothing of the comfort they bring.

Brandreth's Pills contain no irritating matter.

Columbian Kitchens.

The Kitchens, on a small scale, although elaborate enough to make it a novelty, will be produced by a certain church in town within a short time. The young ladies having it in charge, have not yet fully arranged the details nor fixed upon a date.

THE RAILWAY STRIKE

No Important Changes Have Been Reported To-day.

SOME SIGNS OF A BREAK

But the Railroad Men Say They Have No Bearing on the Main Line Strike—Several Local Freight Cars on the Move To-day. One Comes in From Jersey City.

G-DAY'S developments in connection with the Lehigh Valley Railroad strike were such as to give the impression in this section that the trouble is nearing an end, with the men on the bottom and the company on top still it is difficult to see any important change in the situation.

All the passenger trains were running regularly through this section to-day with the exception of the mail train due here from New York at 2:28 this afternoon. This train has been late every day since the strike and had not arrived up to the time the Herald went to press.

A man who has had quite an active part in connection with the strike was in town to-day and admitted that the men who went out on the Mahanoy branch are evidently weakening and several of them have returned to work during the past twenty-four hours, but he added that their weakening had no true bearing on the matter. They cannot break the tie up on the main line and the men on the latter line are as determined to-day as they were last Sunday.

For the first time in a week there was considerable activity among the freight crews on the Mahanoy division to-day. At 8:30 this morning a train of five local freight cars piled west and was followed at 9:15 by a train of thirteen local freight cars.

A car of freight made ready in the Jersey City yards last Saturday arrived in town this morning, which is an indication that the railroad company has succeeded in getting some freight moving on the main line. A car load of Chicago beef arrived here from Sayre last night, over the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Do not suppose that because it is recommended for animals that Arnica & Oil Liniment is an offensive preparation. It will not stain clothing or the finest skin.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Mutual Guarantee Building and Loan Association.

Recently we called attention to the fact that the later years of a National Building and Loan Association were proportionately much more profitable than the early ones. Practical experience of thirty months' duration has demonstrated the correctness of this position, as our profits to-day are proportionately far in excess of what they were in the early months.

We also stated that stockholders would very materially secure their own interests by remaining in the organization long enough to enable it to make their investment profitable to them. We are now able to announce that after thirty-six monthly payments have been made, stockholders desiring to withdraw will receive a rate of 12 per cent, per annum on the amount paid into the Loan Fund.

What we believe it would be much better for the stockholders to remain in until the maturity of their stock, yet we recognize the fact that there will always be some withdrawals, and this being the case, it is our purpose from time to time to deal as equitably and fairly with those withdrawing members as it is possible, and to adopt as liberal a withdrawal feature as is consistent with absolute safety to those who remain.
