A TRAMP THRASHED!

An Audacious Fellow Meets With Just Punishment.

HE TERRORIZED A WOMAN

Mr. C. E. Titman Makes a Timely Observation and When a Tramp Threatens Mrs. Titman There is Prompt and Swift Punishment of the Offender.

HERE is one tramp in Pennsylvania who will remember his visit to Shenandoah for some time and who will take great care to see that he is beyond the reach of vengeance before he attempts to intimidate women again. This particular tramp was observed loitering in front of Mr. C. E. Titman's residence. His actions were of a very suspicious character and Mr. Titman decided to keep him under surveillance.

After scrutinizing the residence and apparently noting all the means of entrance the tramp crossed to the opposite side of the street and spoke to a woman who was standing in the doorway of her residence. The conversation was a very brief one and the tramp then walked away.

Mr. Titman concluded there was something wrong and he went across the street and asked the woman what the tramp had said. The woman replied that he had asked if the house on the opposite side of the street was Mr. Titman's residence. That was sufficient. Mr. Titman returned to his house and told Mrs. Titman that if a tramp should apply at the door during the day to treat him kindly and hold him in conversation until he could be caught. It was suggested that the tramp was seeking an opportunity to get into the house and make a haul.

An hour or so later Mrs. Titman responded to a ring of the front-door bell and met his trampish. Fortunately, Mr. Titman was in the house, and he got within hearing distance, unobserved.

The tramp had a furious scowl upon his face and in a blood-chilling voice told Mrs. Titman that he wanted something to eat and some money. "And be quick about it," he added with a threatening gesture. At that instant Mr. Titman appeared upon the scene and grabbed the tramp before he could make an effort to escape. The thrashing administered was as warm as it was deserved. The tramp pleaded for mercy, but Mr. Titman continued the punishment until he thought the rascal's cup of misery was full; then he let him go.

OBSE'S OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and Hears During His Travels.

It is much to be feared that we are to have another invasion of "la grippe." It has already appeared in alarming force in Europe, while in towns quite a number of cases have been reported. I advise everybody to make note of the fact, and upon the slightest indication of an attack to get medical advice. In no other disease is the ancient proverb that "a stitch in time saves nine," more directly applicable.

Newspaper men are not infallible. Their memories are like those of other men. They frequently omit the mention of things they promise to make note of, and when it occurs no amount of explanation can remove from the minds of some the impression that the omissions was purposely made. One of the pleasant things in the life of a reporter is to be assailed for a slip of the memory. It's too bad, but it can't be helped. The scribe reaches heaven as quickly, however, and that's one consolation.

The roset "Among the Pines" at Ferguson's theatre on Thanksgiving night provoked much indignation, but the people who were duped are avenged. The company, to be expressive, is "hated." There were some people who expressed regret that Myron Lettingwell and Adelaide Alexander had cast their lots with such bad company and will be glad to hear they have escaped from it. The company was well billed and those who went to the theatre expected a treat for their Thanksgiving, but when the curtain went up they saw disappointment staring them in the face. The fellow who played the part of a rich ship owner looked like a well known man who does not live a thousand miles from the HERALD office and deals in rags, bones and powder kegs. The fellow who was supposed to be an Irish comedian was very much like Barnum's fat woman playing Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He made the part a heavy one and his wit went up into the "floo"—at least it didn't get over the footlights. He thought he made a big hit in one of the acts and it was not until after he had responded to three courses that he realized the gallery gods were giving his singing, Poor Lettingwell! He struggled through the ridiculous scenes with a most ridiculous part. In two scenes he had every one on the stage an affectionate and long farewell and in a following scene he apologized to the audience for not going by saying, "Oh, why didn't I leave this place before, but this time I'll go sure?" Then the villain stepped in and shot him, and Lettingwell didn't go away after all. When the curtain fell several people in the audience shouted "Rats!" and as the company was gathering up the music to restore it to the company after the play I noticed that the words "Rats! Rats! Rats!" were written on one of the sheets. Undoubtedly some heartless musician in some other town had hurled the venomous dart and the conscience would not allow him to use an eraser. There was considerable delay in raising the curtain—hoisting the rag, as the boys say—on the first act, but the cause was not made public until yesterday, when one of the "hamsters" confidentially informed a friend of mine that the stage manager fell asleep in a strange room of the hotel and it took a long search to find him. It is also said several members of the company inhibited freely on Thanksgiving Day. Probably the unfortunate people who made up the audience recollect that the saw mill across mentioned on the program did not overtake him. It was not the fault of the company, but as I am informed, of some heartless creditor who resides somewhere between this town and Wilkes-Barre. If the creditor had bargained the company and sent on the scenery Mr. Ferguson's patrons would have had much to be thankful for, and would probably still be offering thanks. But actors will get through even if they have to spirit over railroad ties to do it. However the company had some money Thursday night, good hard earned Shenandoah money. Yesterday the company held a business meeting which resulted in a resolution to scramble from "Among the Pines" and seek the streets of New York. The manager did not intimate what his future plans were, but it is hoped that if he ever comes through this section again with "Among the Pines" he will bring a company of players that can set a little bit. But perhaps it would be better for him to come in disguise, if at all.

They Shot the Dog.

The dog that bit Fred, Hooks, one of the circulation agents of the HERALD, is dead and will not sink his teeth into human flesh any more. But the dog died young. He was a big, black, savage animal and no stranger dared enter the yard which he protected. A constable and two men gave him his death, but not without some trouble. Although it was snatched the constable and his assistants were unable to take the animal out of the yard and the shooting was done on the grounds.

Plasters.

If you are thinking about buying a plaster, remember that you will place it upon your body and cannot get a plaster that will be too good for you. Alcock's Porous Plaster is the best plaster made. Your druggist may have some other plaster on his shelves which he is anxious to get rid of, or else some worthless imitation purchased at a low price for the purpose of substitution. Do not accept his "Just as good" plea, insist upon having the genuine. Alcock's Porous Plasters has no equal.

Two Young Men Convicted on a Serious Charge.

THE SHOUPS ARE GUILTY

A Jury Convicts Them After a Deliberation of Several Hours—It is Quite Likely the Case Will be Appraised—Young Men Arrested for Burglary.

THE jury in the case of the Commonwealth against Frank and Robert Shoups handed a sealed verdict to the court at Pottsville. It found the defendants guilty of assault and battery and aggravated assault and battery. The jury went out early last night and did not agree upon a verdict until nearly midnight.

The verdict was a surprise to the friends of the accused, who are brothers and residents of this town. The Shoups told a story which seemed to bear heavily against the man who accused them, Anthony Kerlavage, a Pole residing at Gilberton, but the evidence produced by the other side had been quite convincing in another light. The Shoups do not bear a reputation for being the desperate characters the verdict make them.

Kerlavage, the complainant, swore that one night in September last he and some friends were on their way from town to their homes in Gilberton and had reached a point near Turkey Run on the mountain south of town when the Shoups made an attack upon them. In the fight Kerlavage received a (rightful) knife wound in the back which confined him to the Miners' Hospital for several weeks.

The Shoups story was that they had been to Gilberton to collect their pay at a colliery and between 8 and 9 o'clock at night started for their homes in town. On their way over the mountain they were attacked by four or five men, one of whom was Kerlavage. The attack, the Shoups said, was made for the purpose of robbery.

Kerlavage produced several of his countrymen as witnesses who swore they were in the fight and that it had been provoked by the Shoups, who taunted the Poles who were singing as they walked along the road.

It is said the convicted men will appeal the case.

THE LAKESIDE ROAD

The construction is progressing very satisfactorily.

Mark Bowman, the civil engineer of Mahanoy City who is supervising the grading of the Lakeside electric railway, was in town this morning making measurements at the Centre street crossing of the Lehigh Valley railroad. Mr. Bowman says there will be no trouble in making a crossing at this point. The grade for it has arrived.

Mr. Bowman says the road is graded to within half a mile of Mahanoy City and in a few days will be finished with the exception of the building of two small trestles and the wiring.

Men are at work putting the binders on the rails in town. They are under instructions to push the work as rapidly as possible so that the wiring can be made complete and the road put in operation by January 1st.

Out on Bail.

Baltro Salma, the man who was shot while making a burglarious entry to the residence of Morris Worm on West Centre street, was admitted to $1,500 bail by the court at Pottsville yesterday. Mr. Worm was at first disposed to settle the case upon payment of the costs, but he changed his mind after hearing that Salma had a bad reputation and had been under arrest several times for various unlawful acts.

Birthday Party.

A very pleasant affair was held at the residence of Mrs. L. Schurz, on North Jardin street, Thanksgiving evening, the event being the celebration of the 30th anniversary of George L. Hafner, Mrs. Schurz's brother. Among those present were Mrs. Basler, Mrs. Dornisch, Misses Mary and Fannie Grubler; Caroline, Annie and Pauline Bierman; Annie Kimmel, Lizzie Lehn, Florence, Grace and Bonnie Schurz; Martin and Fred Grubler and Mr. F. Zeitz.

Bell's Museum.

The above first-class museum has opened at 112 South Main street, which will afford the amusement-loving portion of our population an opportunity to witness a first-class show at moderate rates. Mr. Bell will locate here for several months, and his show will cater especially to the young folks as well as ladies, being of a refined order in every respect. The selection of animals and birds are of a great variety. A first-class performance is given in the afternoon and evening, from 1 to 8 and 7 to 11 o'clock. This is not a cat-in-the-hat venture but one with a substantial backing and managed by people who are experienced in the business. A change of program will be given in both the museum and theatre twice each week and will embrace all the leading attractions in the vaudeville line. In order to avoid the rush in the evenings ladies and children should take advantage of the afternoon exhibitions and performances. They are equal in all respects to those of the evenings. The management come here highly recommended by the leading papers of the country and their museum and entertainments are especially commended for the amusement of ladies and children.
