NEIGHBORING TOWNS.

HAPPENINGS OF A LOCAL CHARACTER BRIEFLY CHRONICLED.

The Men at Mahanoy City Express Themselves Upon the Order Issued by the Lehigh Valley Company.

Excitement among the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company's employes of the main line, over the action of the officials, has extended to the Mahanoy branch.

One of the men, in speaking of the matter this morning, said: "The employes, generally, regard it as a move of the company to avoid re-employing Brotherhood men, many of whom are over 45 years of age, but hearty and active. The new move also strengthens the belief of many people that the Lehigh Valley is yet a part of the Reading system, as the rule of size and many other newly adopted regulations are exactly like the Reading."

A representative of the main line employes was circulating among the men of this division yesterday, commending them to take no hasty action, as it was probable that the grievance committee sent to confer with the officials, would adjust the difficulty today. He also said that the sympathy of the road's former patrons was now stronger for the men, and that all the shippers will continue using other roads unless the Lehigh Company accedes to the strikers' fairer treatment.

Mrs. W. A. Bousinger, of the Grand Central Hotel, is a victim of the grippe.

Physicians and druggists are kept busy by the grippe epidemic.

CONCERT AT WM. PENN.

The Juvenile Choir's Excellent Entertainment Last Evening.

One of the best concerts ever held at Wm. Penn was that held there last night under the auspices of the juvenile choir which is composed of the favorite children of Shenandoah on Christmas Day. The attendance was quite large and a nice sum was attained to help defray the expenses which the choir will incur for the coming year. The following was the program rendered: Selection, Thomas King and family; address, Rev. E. Potts, chairman; selection, "The Border Land," Juvenile choir; duet, "Whispering Hope," Miss Kline and Basketfield; recitation, "Calfweil," Miss Lizzie Whitman; recitation, "My Grandmother's Chair," Miss Mary A. OBE'S OBSERVATIONS.

What He Sees and Hears During His Travels About Town.

I met our old friend Sollenberger, formerly of the Shamokin Dispatch, the other evening. He is now engaged in trying to resurrect a Birdsboro paper which has been left in the mire by the clerical Yelsley, who several years ago attempted to revolutionize the newspaper business in this town. As a revolutionizer Yelsley is not very successful, "Solly" is the same good natured fellow of old. He is a hustler and not afraid to work when it comes to "sticking" type, writing editorials or leads, kicking the press or washing rollers, or doing any other work which arises in the emergencies of a country newspaper office he is up to the scratch with any of the "all-round printers."

Although "Solly" has had the Birdsboro paper on his hands but a few weeks he is already getting it on its feet again. It is a case of make or break and there is sufficient in sight to warrant the prediction that "Solly" will "make." He isn't a bayseder and his independent spirit is winning friends for him. About two weeks ago a church in Birdsboro had bills for a supper printed at an amateur office and sent a notice to "Solly's" paper for publication. The notice was inserted and a bill sent in for it. The next day a committee called upon "Solly" and asked what the bill meant, at the same time stating that it was something unusual for the church to pay for such notices. The newspaper was straightened up in his chair, gazed at the committee in astonishment, and after satisfying himself that he was not dreaming said, "Gentlemen, without impairing your motives, I wish to ask if the ladies give us these premiums free of rent? Would you give me any dinner free? Do you think this paper is run on air? I must pay for paper, ink, coal, gas, labor, etc. The other day you had some printing done at an amateur office in town and now expect me to publish your notices free." The committee was dumfounded at first, but before leaving became convinced that there was logic in the argument and parted with "Solly" as good friends.

What is needed in this town—and needed very much—is a spirit of loyalty to Shenandoah interests, and a proper jealousy of all other towns. We should all seek to bloom the town, not only by word of mouth, but by favoring local interests in every possible way. That spirit of local pride and loyalty has been a prime factor in Chicago's phenomenal growth. Every citizen of that great city "pulls" for Chicago wherever he may be, and in every conceivable manner. They commenced it when Chicago was a very small town and kept it up ever since. We want a good deal more of that Chicago spirit right here in Shenandoah than has yet been exhibited.

The United States authorities have determined to suppress the land and investment companies which are operating all over the country. If they succeed it will be a blessing to more than one Shenandoah man who have been gulled out of more than enough to build half a dozen factories at home. The best office authorities at Washington have a list of over fifty concerns whose operations are said to be fraudulent. Most of the companies are said to be purely lottery ventures and the mails are to be closed against them.

The tenorial fraternity about the town do not like cold weather a little bit, when you see a barber that looks linc, do not ascribe too much to the weather as to the state of trade. According to the proprietor of a Centre street barber shop, the shaving business falls off about fifty per cent. in winter months, if what this same barber says is true, you do not care whether their faces are clean or dirty when the weather is cold. In winter, the man who shaves six times a week in summer, will visit his barber two or three times. Instead of getting his hair cut every month, he lets it grow long and never thinks of having it cut at all. Then there are sea foam innumerable and shampoos without end, which in the winter are not applied to men's heads. All in all, the cold months, are months of rest for the talkative barber.

"One of the strangest cases I ever heard of in all my experience," said a physician last week, "was brought to my notice recently. Every one has heard of morphia eaters and men addicted to the opium habit, but few persons have ever heard of the Jamaica ginger habit. There is a woman in this city who is a Jamaica ginger fiend. Other physicians have tried to break her of her terrible appetite, but with no result. The case has been turned over to me, but no remedy seems to be able to kill the awful craving that my patient has for the fiery liquid. I think that this habit is more terrible even than the opium habit. Several years ago this woman began taking doses of Jamaica ginger to relieve cramps. At first, as usual, when ginger is taken, it was diluted very much with water. After a while the water was lessened, and an appetite for the stuff was developed. Then she began to drink the ginger undiluted and now she is an abject slave to the habit. She cannot live without the burning stuff and threatens to kill herself if it is taken away from her. Of course the woman is a wreck. The use of the drug has made her melancholy. She eats practically nothing and her sleep is a stupor. This is the only case of the kind that I ever heard of and it is well for the moral welfare of the country that many people do not get a liking for Jamaica ginger."
