REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

CONGRESSMAN AT LARGE, HON. GALE S. A. GROW, OF SHENANDOAH COUNTY.

Election—Tuesday, February 20, 1894.

SHAKING Europe will be glad to shake that old wave.

Gov. McKINLEY said in his inaugural address that "we cannot hope to obtain the best results for the state voting singly and apart," that "there must be hearty co-operation between the Legislature and the Executive, and both must be in harmonious relations with the people."

To those of us who visited the World's Fair the story of this week's fire is (triflingly) sad. While the buildings stood the mind reverted to them as great white sentinels upon the lake front all pre-empting to all the world that here had art and beauty, science and skill, and the genius of man told the people of all nations the story of human progress and achievement.

ROYALTY'S HARD LUCK.

These are tough times for Kings and Queens. Isoborgin, His Majesty's Majesty, must have lost a good deal of flesh in the past few weeks keeping out of the way of the ice-bergs and the British troops.

Queen Lil, off the Sandwich Islands dynasty, is still of her throne, and has caused a lot of the American people to regard President Cleveland as off his base.

Behanzin, who used to be King of Dahomey, the cable tells us, is skulking in the brush somewhere to avoid a subpoena that the French want to serve on him, or perhaps it is a habeas corpus, or something more serious.

These things go to show that the person who made the remark to the effect that "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," had a think tank that was worth having. The plain every-day American citizen has no throne to lose, no crown to mislay, no sceptre to drop through a coal-hole grating.

VAILLANT SENTENCED.

The Paris Bomb Thrower Must Die by the Guillotine.

THE PRISONER COOL AND DEFIANT.

He Reads a Lengthy Declaration Which Brings Tears to the Eyes of Women Spectators, and Thanks the Jury That Convicted Him.

PARIS, Jan. 11.—The trial of Auguste Vaillant, the anarchist, who, on Dec. 9 last, threw a bomb which exploded in the chamber of deputies, took place yesterday, and at the conclusion of the proceedings Vaillant was sentenced to death.

Public Prosecutor Bertrand, as soon as the court was ready for business, asked Vaillant his name, and the prisoner, in a firm voice, replied, "Auguste Vaillant."

It was noticed during the reading of the indictment that Vaillant glanced at several pages of notes which he took from an inside pocket of his Astrakhan ornamented overcoat, and it was supposed by those present that the anarchist intended to read some fiery declaration to the jury.

After the prisoner had admitted that he had been in prison for theft, the prisoner explained feebly: "The unjust conditions of society were responsible for what you are pleased to term robbery."

In reply to further questions by Prosecutor Bertrand and Judge Cassé, Vaillant said that he effected the bomb did not have the effect he desired. The presiding judge turned to the prisoner and said: "Who did you particularly want to hit?"

Vaillant replied: "I did not aim at any one in particular, but I intended to hit some of the ministers. All the ministers are the same to me. Only the intended to hit the deputies, or the ministers, and I would rather see three or four ministers or deputies killed than have one spectator injured. I am not waging war against the people, but against society, and I aimed directly at these parasite deputies."

"I understand that you intended to make a speech to the deputies before or after you threw the bomb?" "Exactly," replied Vaillant. "I wanted to explain to those miserable deputies the reason for my action."

"But," said the judge, "your first endeavor, it appears, after the explosion, was to escape?" "No," exclaimed Vaillant indignantly, with flashing eyes and burning cheeks. "No, it was my last thought."

"When you found the windows closed," the judge then continued, "you broke a window in your endeavor to escape, and only desisted from jumping out when confronted by the crossed bayonets of the sentinels?"

"It is false," cried Vaillant, raising his hand above his head. At this stage of the proceedings the prisoner presented a remarkably animated and dramatic appearance, which caused the most intense excitement throughout the court room. He stood confronting his judges like a wild beast at bay.

His replies to further questions Vaillant said that he killed his bomb with nails, as he only wished to severely injure some of the ministers and deputies. After making this assertion Vaillant remarked that he would rather have seen two or three hundred deputies killed than a single spectator injured.

drawn up. Among the remarks made in this declaration were the following: "You who are to judge me, let me tell you that my act was borne of the misery of the people, whole families of whom are dying of starvation. Woe betide those who leave their fellowmen to die for want of bread, for then we shall see the bloody heads of the exploiters of the people carried aloft on pikes."

Bombs Caused by Social Misery. Vaillant then proceeded to declare that it was the manifold iniquities of society which led brave men like himself to make themselves the mouthpieces of the demands of the working classes. According to Vaillant, the primary cause of bombs is social misery, and he continued explaining his ideas of the proper system of society, concluding by remarking: "In my duel against society I only wound my adversaries. Strike me in my turn if you like, but what little weight will your venial have in the history of the people's sensation?"

Vaillant was listened to throughout the reading of his declaration in the most profound silence and with the closest attention. The prisoner read the document which he had evidently carefully prepared, in the most fervid and dramatic manner, seemingly believing all his utterances to be true, and deeply moved by the excitement of the occasion. Several ladies were actually moved to tears by some of the most touching portions.

After Vaillant's statement had been concluded the public prosecutor introduced a number of witnesses, deputies and others. The taking of testimony was quickly concluded, and then the public prosecutor, in an able address, demanded punishment. Maître Labou, in an equally able argument, asked that a term in prison be the punishment.

Thankful for a Death Sentence. The jury were absent for about twenty-five minutes. They returned a verdict of "guilty without extenuating circumstances."

Upon hearing the verdict Vaillant sprang to his feet and shouted: "It is death I thank you for it!" He then turned with a smile to the people in the court room and passed his hand around his neck to signify that the guillotine would be his doom.

When the presiding judge announced the sentence which condemned him to the guillotine Vaillant shouted: "Vive l'Anarchie!" Vaillant has refused to sign an appeal to the court of cassation against his sentence.

THE WAR IN BRAZIL. Insurgents Preparing for an Assault on Niteroy and Rio Janeiro. BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 11.—Most important news has been received from Rio de Janeiro. According to dispatches just received the Brazilian insurgents have captured the islands of Mocangue and Engenho, and are preparing to make a landing in a force of 10,000 men.

It is also reported that Admiral de Mello, in command of the warship Aquidaban, has succeeded in re-entering Rio bay in spite of the active look-out kept for him by the government forces at the entrance to the harbor, and it is added that Admiral de Mello is personally supervising the land operations which, it is said, are to be undertaken at Niteroy.

Finally, it is asserted that if the rebels are successful in making a landing at Niteroy that a general attack upon the city of Rio de Janeiro will be immediately commenced, every available man on board the insurgent warships being utilized in the attack.

The dispatches received here also announce that President Píxoto is aware of the contemplated movement upon the part of the rebels, and that he is taking vigorous measures to meet the attack which, it is expected, will decide the fate of the rebellion, one way or the other.

I have done that, and have my burial clothes on underneath."

PETERSBURG, Jan. 11.—The Russian naval program for 1894 provides for the spending of 25,500,000, which is between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000 more than the total credits for the last two years. "The Black Crook" is coming in all its regal splendor, embracing a wealth of superb scenery, gorgeous costumes and glittering armor, together with a large number of lithesome dancers, and European specialty artists. The dramatic cast is unexceptionally strong, and in fact nothing has been overlooked. Over 100 people are engaged in this superb production, and scenic artists have been for months preparing for its tour. Manager Ferguson has positively arranged for its appearance here January 17, and his many friends and patrons can congratulate him in securing this grand spectacle. It is the same production that attracted world-wide attention last winter in New York at the Academy of Music, and that grand old structure was tested to its utmost capacity, so eager were the people to see it.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became a Girl, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

At the Theatre. "The Limited Mail," which comes to Ferguson's theatre, January 16th, is of the comedy drama order, and was written by Elmer E. Vance, a former Columbus telegraph operator, who has utilized his training to introduce many startling and wonderful inventions in stage effects, many of which are produced by the aid of electricity, and serve to work the spectators up to a high pitch of excitement. A railroad train two hundred feet long and twelve feet high dashes at lightning speed across the stage, occupying just six seconds to do it in. A wreck scene, a saw mill scene, and some unique features of telegraphic manipulations are among the other triumphs of realism.
