A BETRAYED HUSBAND

Mazalofski Gave a Judas Kiss and Embrace.

MONEY NEATLY STOLEN!

The Accused Might Have Escaped Arrest Had He Not Attempted to Carve His Wife. Who Took Revenge by Betraying Him to the Victim.

If Joe Mazalofski had not quarreled with his wife he would in all probability be a free man to day, but as it is he is in jail and a good term of imprisonment stares him in the face. Saturday night Joe and a fellow countryman named Anthony Simlignis got drinking beer at the latter's boarding house and the latter paid for a beer, taking the money from a well-filled pocketbook. When Joe was about to leave the house he threw his arms about Anthony's neck and coaxed him to go out. Anthony gave way to the expressions of affection and started out with Joe, but when he got to the sidewalk the boarding-mistress became suspicious and said she did not like Joe's looks, so she urged Anthony to return to the house. Anthony decided to comply and as he turned back Joe threw one arm about his neck and returned the demonstrations of affection. The men finally parted, each going to his abode. When Anthony got back into the house he found that his coat and vest were unbuttoned and the pocketbook he had placed in the inside pocket of the vest was gone. It contained $25. Naturally suspicion was directed to Joe Mazalofski and several boarders volunteered to go to the latter's house to make an investigation. They did so, but accomplished nothing. Mazalofski protested his innocence and a search revealed nothing.

At about two o'clock yesterday morning there was loud rapping on the door of Anthony's boarding house. A response revealed Mrs. Mazalofski standing at the door, and in excited tones she said that her husband had driven her into the street at the point of a carving knife. She also said that her husband had Anthony's money. A bee line was made for Justice Williams' office and at three o'clock yesterday morning Joe was hauled out of his bed. A red pocketbook was also found and Anthony identified it as his property, but the money and minor's certificate it contained were missing.

Mazalofski was arraigned before the justice and protested his innocence again. His wife could not be used as witness against him, but she repeated her story in the presence of the accused. Little odds and ends contributed by witnesses made Justice Williams feel justified in demanding $500 bail after a hearing last evening. Mazalofski was unable to furnish the security and was therefore committed. He claims that his wife is persecuting him, but the tall tale pocketbook and other circumstances seem to be very much against him, independent of the wife's part in the case.

BRIGGS REPORTED SHOT.

An Investigation Shows the Report Was a Hoax.

A passenger on one of the P. & D. trains that arrived in town to-day stated to the depot employes that John Briggs, who recently stood trial at Pottsville for the murder of James Farfit, at Giltberton, had been shot and killed at Girardville last night. An investigation by the HERALD showed that the report was a hoax. John Briggs paid a visit to Girardville yesterday and remained over night with friends there. This morning he paid a visit to Lloyd's Palace theatre restaurant in Girardville and said nothing of having had any trouble last night.

Low Her Hand But Saved Her Life.

Mrs. Edward Myers, of Athens, N. Y., had been treated for months in the usual way for erysipelas, without benefit. Her hand had become a mass of putrified flesh, the blood so poisoned that her life was despaired of. At this critical time Mrs. Myers sought the advice of Dr. David Kennedy, discoverer of Favorite Remedy. Dr. Kennedy found it impossible to save the hand, so he amputated the same, then gave her Favorite Remedy, which drove the poisonous disease out of her system, cleansed the blood, thus saving her life. Had Favorite Remedy been used earlier in the development of erysipelas, Mrs. Myers would have saved her hand. The worst cases of eczema, salt rheum and scrofula yield to Favorite Remedy. It is endorsed by the medical profession.

"The Wicklow Postman."

A new aspirant for stellar honors in a new play attracted a large audience to the Walnut last evening. Eugene O'Rourke was the star and Mark Price's new Irish drama, "The Wicklow Postman," the play. Both sprang into the favor of the audience immediately. Mr. O'Rourke has an attractive stage presence, a pleasing voice and is a good dancer. His portrayal of the honest and brave postman places him in the rank of the foremost Irish comedians.—Philadelphia Press. At Ferguson's theatre this evening.

THEATRICAL LICENSES.

A Decision in a Test Case at Reading Hearing on the Subject.

The first test case under the new law requiring theatrical companies to take out a yearly license in each county of this state in which they may appear, at the cost of $50 each, has been decided by Judge Endlich, at Reading, on a habeas corpus hearing secured by the manager of the "Span of Life" company. The decision was rendered on Saturday.

It was shown that John D. Mishler was the manager and lessee of the Academy, that the performance was given under his direction and that he sold the tickets, did the advertising and had control of the house and stage and employed the companies who gave the performances. It was also shown that Manager Mishler had taken out a license under the law.

After hearing the evidence Judge Endlich ordered the discharge of the defendant. In the opinion he says: "Mr. Mishler is the proprietor or lessee of the Academy, he had paid $50 license for his theatre and in point of fact the person who gives the exhibition and makes terms with various companies. When a theatre is under the control of a person who pays certain performers for their services, the exhibition is his and not that of the troupe. Requiring the payment of a state license for each performance would be an imposition amounting to a practical prohibition of entertainments, and would keep the revenue from the state that the act desires. The exhibition is licensed when the house is licensed by the express language of the statute. The necessary and reasonable implication is he who gives the exhibition pays the license, who, in this case, is the proprietor or lessee. The meaning of the law is to require the proprietor of a theatre to take out a state license for the year. The license fee chargeable for the Academy and authorizing the performance for which the relator, Calander, has been arrested, is paid, and the relator must be discharged."

MART. BRAILER DEAD

Supposed to Have Succumbed to Exposure.

HE MADE NO STATEMENT

Went Into Convulsions After Reaching His Brother's Home and Was at no Time Able to Make a Coherent Statement. Died This Morning.

Martin J. Brailer died this morning. He was one of the eccentric characters of the town, but the worst anybody ever said against him was that he was his own enemy.

Late Saturday night Brailer was found at the bottom of the stone steps at the rear of Ferguson's theatre. Two young men picked him up and helped him towards the lockup. On the way he was turned over to Chief of Police O'Hara. The unfortunate man's face was bruised in several places and he was unable to talk coherently. He was allowed to remain in the lobby of the lockup until 10 o'clock yesterday morning, when Chief Burgess Burns assisted him in walking to the residence of John J. Brailer, the victim's brother, on North West street. As soon as he was placed upon a lounge Martin went into convulsions. Dr. J. S. Kistler was summoned and he prescribed for the man, but said he feared there would be a fatal convulsion. There were a series of attacks all day and last night and at no time was the man conscious. At about seven o'clock this morning he died. It is believed that death was due, in a great measure, to exposure.

Brailer was 33 years of age. He was single and a painter by trade. As a sign painter he was looked upon as one of the best in the region and with control of himself could have become prosperous in that line of business.

There have been some hints at fool play, but all the circumstances indicate that if the unfortunate man died from the effects of injuries sustained by the fall they were accidental.

Broke His Thigh.

At about eleven o'clock last night the watchman at the Shenandoah City colliery found a man lying injured on the railroad track under the chutes of the breaker. The watchman hastened to town and returned to the colliery in company with Chief of Police O'Hara. The man had meanwhile been removed to the boiler house. He said his name was Paul Pedro and he resided at Wm. Penn. He and another man started to walk home and wandered in the darkness from the main P. & D. track to the one leading under the breaker. They became entangled and in groping about Pedro fell by slipping on the rail and broke his left thigh. His companion went on towards Wm. Penn and did not return. Pedro said he was single. He was kept in the boiler house until this morning, when he was placed in an ambulance and taken to the Lehigh Valley depot. There Chief Burgess Burns took charge of the man and accompanied him to the Winters' Hospital.

Caught in the Act.

Policemen O'Hara and Flaherty caught three men named Charles Sockolosky, William Ball and Enoch Feugler at 2 o'clock this morning in the act of rolling a half barrel of beer along South Pear alley. The men refused to give an account of themselves, or say where they got the beer, but the police learned that it was taken from the cellar under Leo Dominoski's saloon, on South Main street. The prisoners were kept in the lock up until this morning, when Ball and Feugler each furnished $500 bail, and Sockolosky was taken down to Pottsville because he couldn't get bail. Three other men have been held as witnesses.

COMMENDABLE CHANGE.

Uniform Railway signals and Boxes to Go into Effect.

On Sunday, February 11th, a new time table will take effect and will be issued by the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The proposed changes have not been made public as yet, but it is understood there will not be many changes.

On the same date a new system of train signals and book of rules will also take effect. The standard system of bell, hand and lantern signals will be adopted. They will also be used by the Philadelphia & Reading and New Jersey Central railroads. This is a good move, as it will avoid any error on account of conflicting signals being used by the various roads. As the trains of the different roads run over each other's lines the standard signal system will materially aid the trainmen.
