REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

CONGRESS AT LARGE, HON. GARDNER A. GROW, OF SHERIDAN COUNTY.

Election—Tuesday, February 20, 1894.

PREMATURE.

The criticism of the Sunday News upon Mr. Phil. Connell, chief clerk in the County Commissioners' office, seems to us a mistake. Mr. Connell is simply Commissioners' clerk, as the News says, and it is no doubt because he is such that he refuses to turn over certain books demanded by the County Auditors. He should not be held responsible or criticised, personally, because he obeys the instructions of his superiors. On the contrary, he should be commended if, after the Commissioners have decided to withhold the books pending a decision on a question of authority, the clerk should surrender them he would certainly be guilty of a gross breach of trust. In fact, we do not see that any one should be criticised in this matter at the present time. By advice of the County Solicitor, the Commissioners and their clerks have declined to surrender the books because there seems to be some question as to the right of the County Auditors to demand or take them. The latter officials say they have the right and in pursuance of their belief have carried the matter into the courts, and there it rests pending argument and decision. At the present time it is only a question as to whether or not the opinion of the County Solicitor is correct. If it is not the court will undoubtedly so decide and the Commissioners will most cheerfully surrender the books sought. If they should fail to obey the mandates of the court the Auditors will have their remedy and the Commissioners will throw themselves open to censure, but at the present time we think criticism premature and the personal attack upon Mr. Connell wholly uncalled for. Death is putting its hand on many great men these days and that may account for the anxiety of Brother Doyle and his colleagues to get hold of the books.

The coal miners are certainly a patient people. While the vicinities of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago are having the bread campaigns and the shrieks of the hungry fill the air we have hundreds of miners right here in these diggings who are, with their families, on the verge of starvation, yet the only murmur thus far heard has been the expression of a hope that the collieries will soon start up again and give them a chance to earn something for their families. But the miners are only human and patience may cease to be a virtue in their case.

The weather clerk is certainly on the side of the coal miners at the present time and he will soon have the coal barons in a corner, so that they will be obliged to put the collieries into operation, or admit that the inactivity is due to something else than mild weather.

THE Queen of Afghanistan has decided to adopt the European dress, and as she is fond of flowers, in the trimming will be figures of the fuschia, convulvulus and others, and as a rebuke to European court ladies, her dresses are to be high in the neck.

EXCITEMENT IN RIO.

Our Fleet in the Brazilian Harbor Cleared for Action.

TO PROTECT AMERICAN VESSELS.

However Indiscriminately Both Sides May Bombard Each Other's Property the United States Intends to Defend American Craft in Brazilian Ports.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 30.—This has been one of the most exciting days that Rio de Janeiro has experienced since the commencement of hostilities between the insurgents and the Brazilian government. The United States naval fleet stationed in this harbor has furnished the excitement.

Provoked beyond the endurance of patience by the continued carelessness of the admirals aboard the rebel warship Aquidaban, and tired by the indifference shown on the part of the revolutionary admiral to all his protests that American vessels entering and leaving the harbor were not afforded proper protection by the rebel fleet, Admiral Benham yesterday made a demand of the American war vessels under his command which has taught a much needed lesson to the insurgents on both sides, and which will undoubtedly have the effect, hereafter, of securing proper recognition of the rights of all vessels carrying the American flag.

The cause of the trouble was the treatment it which three American barques were subject to on last Saturday by the insubordinate fusillade from the insurgent warship. The American vessels were the bark Amy, the bark Good News and the bark Julia Rollins. The Amy sailed from Baltimore on Dec. 9, and arrived here last Friday. The Good News arrived in Rio harbor Jan. 3, from Bahia. The Julia Rollins arrived here on Jan. 29, from Baltimore, which port she left on Dec. 4. On Saturday last, while lying at anchor, all three vessels were endangered by the chance shots fired by the insurgents. Those whistled through the rigging and past the men at work on the decks. Many of the crews of the three vessels narrowly escaped being shot. After suffering a great deal of annoyance and running great risks in the hope that the insurgents would realize the folly of their action and put a stop to their reckless firing, the three captains held a hurried conference and determined to appeal to the United States warships, and to request that the barques be given an escort to the wharves.

Upon being appealed to by the captains of the barques Admiral Benham sent one of his officers to the Aquidaban with orders to acquaint Admiral da Gama with the facts in the case and to ask him to have an end put to the reckless gunning. Da Gama was apparently in a very bad humor when the American officer arrived on board the Aquidaban, and with many exclamations of indignation he listened to the recital of the American captain's grievances. When the American officer had finished making his statement Da Gama, with a shrug of his shoulder, said in a very sharp tone, "It is not my fault. The American ship captains should know enough to keep themselves and their crews out of the range of our guns. I shall not take any notice of this matter."

This curt response to his message annoyed the ire of Admiral Benham, and he determined to make such a show of force as would produce a lasting effect upon the insurgents. Yesterday, however, the greatest activity prevailed on board the fleet. Shortly after daybreak the decks of the flagship New York, of the Newark, of the Washington, Detroit and other United States war vessels here were cleared for action and their anchors were raised.

Admiral Benham then sent word to the captains of the Good News, Julia Rollins and Amy that he was prepared to keep his promise to them, and that as soon as they were ready to proceed he would escort them to the wharves. At this juncture Captains Kitchin, of the Julia Rollins, and Merick, of the Good News, weakened, and despite their vigorous protestations and urgent demands of Saturday, they retraced their steps and they did not care to submit the insurgent admiral by putting themselves under the escort of the United States naval fleet. Captain Blackford, of the Amy, however, showed himself of sterner stuff and announced that he would get ready at once and accept the protection which Admiral Benham had offered him.

Accordingly the Amy took her position in the ranks of the United States war vessels and the formidable procession started on its way up Rio harbor. The news that something important was taking place about the American warships rapidly spread both on shore and aboard the ships of all the foreign fleets represented at this port. The fleet as it approached nearer to Rio came quite close to the shore causing intense excitement among both soldiers and civilians on land and the soldiers on board the various vessels. The Amy proceeded on her way to the wharf and was safely moored there.

Complaints in great number have been made to the home government by foreign merchants and ship captains, and the commendable performance of duty by Admiral Benham in affording safety to the owners of American craft will doubtless result in similar orders being issued for like action on the part of the commanders of other foreign fleets at this port. Admiral de Mello is now at Curitiba, capital of the state of Parana and has organized a provisional government in Sarana. He proposes moving north immediately. General Saraya, with his troops, is on the frontier of Sao Paulo. The insurgents occupied the island of Bon Jesus, which commands a portion of the north of the city, and seized some artillery and a few prisoners. The government warships Netheroy, Aurora and Parahyba are now at Bahia and the remainder of the fleet is expected there.

The inactivity of the government is causing discontent among its partisans on shore. A heavy artillery fire between the forts continues daily. The British warship Sirius left yesterday for Parana and Desterro in order to ascertain the position of the insurgents.

THIEVES BURN ARCHIVE.

Burglars Break Into the American Legation at Bonn.

ROME, Jan. 30.—Burglars during the night forced an entrance into the American legation, No. 13 Via Nazionale, by breaking the locks. The thieves broke open the safe and desks of the minister and the consul general, and then set fire to all the papers in the office. A number of the archives were completely destroyed, and others partially burned.

The burglars, it appears, did not notice a rich collection of ancient medals, which was kept in the same room as the safe, which was broken open. All the rooms of the legation were strewn with debris, broken furniture and burned papers, but the actual damage done, so far as money value is concerned, is not great, being only about $800 according to the estimates made by the destruction of the archives is complete and irreparable, and this causes considerable suspicion as to the motives of the burglars.

The work of investigation is greatly hindered by the systematic manner in which the burglars worked while destroying the archives, and little hope is expressed that the authors of the outrage will be discovered.

The foreign minister has expressed to United States Minister Potter his deep regret at the burglary.
