Thirteen Men Buried in a Mine at Plymouth.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY A CAVE IN.

As a result of the disaster there are eleven widows and thirty-six children robbed of their main support—pitiable scenes when hope was abandoned.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 13.—The mining town of Plymouth is in mourning over a terrible accident that occurred in the Gaylord colliery yesterday. Thirteen men, all of them citizens of this town, lost their lives while in the discharge of their duties. Their names are: Miss Foreman, Thomas Pieton, Thomas Jones, Richard Davis, John Morris, James Kingdom, Thomas Merriman, Thomas Cole, Joseph O'Neil, Daniel Morgan, John Hammer, Peter E. McLaughlin, Michael Walsh and Thomas Layshon.

All the victims with the exception of two leave families. One of these lost his wife only a month ago, and four little children survive them. Consequently the shaver throws eleven widows and thirty-six children on the world's charity.

The Gaylord mine in which the accident occurred is owned by Daniel Edwards, one of the wealthiest operators in the anthracite region, and is operated by the Kingston Coal company, of which Mr. Edwards is the president. The best coal in the mine was taken out years ago. Then it was abandoned because it could not be operated with profit. Three weeks ago the company decided to resume operations, and a party of expert miners was sent into the mine to make an examination. They found matters in bad shape. The last men at work in the colliery had "robbed" the pillars supporting the roof until they were very thin. A great many falls had taken place, the passages were blocked by the debris and the current was poor. Mining experts gave it as their opinion, however, that the mine could be put in good condition again with a small outlay of capital.

Monday morning a large number of expert miners, carrying safety lamps, entered the mine and began the work of clearing up the old workings and propping the roof. They had not been at work long until a "squeeze" came which compelled the men to retreat their steps. Foreman Pieton, with twelve picked miners, volunteered to go down the shaft and see what could be done. The descent was made at 10 o'clock Monday night. Pieton's object was to get as near as possible to the most dangerous part, or where the "squeeze" was the greatest, in order to stay its progress by heading the roof with heavy timber.

It seems that in this instance the efforts of Pieton and his men did not prove a success, as the cave extended far beyond the danger limit and a much greater distance than was expected. The cave was so safe, even though they retreated at the first indication of a heavy fall.

This is shown by the vast area of the cave in. As no one is left to tell the story the supposition is that the men were busy at work "timbering" when the rocky roof came tumbling down about their heads, crushing them out of semblance to humanity and putting a wall of debris between them and the mouth of the shaft 400 feet in thickness.

At first there was some hope that if the men could be reached in a reasonable time they could be saved. This was a false hope, however. The remaining party had been in the mine only a short time when they were obliged to retreat on account of further caving. A second rescue party under Superintendent James W. Davis went down the shaft last evening, but soon came back thoroughly disheartened, and all hope of rescuing the men alive was given up.

The news of abandoned hope soon spread, and the wives and children of the men in the mine who had assembled at the mouth of the shaft, expecting every moment to see their loved ones brought up alive, set up a most piteous cry of distress. Mothers wringing their hands and tore their hair, and little children wept bitterly. Two of the women fainted and had to be carried away by friends. Even stout-hearted men who had gathered at the entrance to the mine wept almost as bitterly as the fatherless children.

This disaster is the worst that has occurred in the anthracite region since 1885, when twenty-two men perished by a cave in in No. 1 slope of the Susquehanna Coal company at Nanticoke. Their bodies were never recovered, and a monument marks the spot where the men met their death.

The mine is now believed to be a total wreck.

Says He Led a Dual Life.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 14.—If the claims of Mrs. Martha Ballantyne, of Londonderry, Ireland, can be substantiated she late Thomas A. Harris, widely known in Kansas City as a real estate speculator and the projector of many important enterprises, led a dual life. Mrs. Ballantyne says that Harris' real name was Ballantyne, and that the fact of his second marriage and change of name was concealed from her. She has begun a legal fight to establish her former right of one-third of $300,000 worth of property handled by "Harris" during his Kansas City career. Mrs. Ballantyne has two children.

In 1864, at the invitation of Wagner, Von Bulow went to Munich, where, in 1872, he became director of the new Royal School for Music and master of the chapel of the court. Hans von Bulow visited the United States in 1876, and afterwards became chapel master in Hanover, later in Meiningen and lastly in Berlin. The dead pianist married a daughter of Liszt.

Jealously Guarding His Death.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The "Gypsy of Cherry Hill," Morgan Phillips, an old man of 75 years, lost his wife yesterday morning, and all day he remained beside the dead body moaning and bewailing the calamity that had fallen upon him. He lived in a big tenement house on Cherry street, in two small rooms. At midnight the police had to break down the door to get in, the old man refusing to open the door. The scene was intensely dramatic. There stood the old man across the body of his wife to guard it from the intruders. Finding that further resistance was useless the old man became sullen and morose. The woman had died of pneumonia.

Bretton's Capturer Honored.

PECULIARLY MADE.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are made of refined and concentrated botanical extracts. They are different from the large old-fashioned pills for these Pellets are as tiny as mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They're made in an improved chemical laboratory under the direct supervision of scientific men. Everything else being equal, the smaller the size of a liver pill, the more correct. They do not shock the system, but regulate, cleanse and tone up the liver, stomach, and bowels, in nature's own way. They're put up in sealed glass vials, usually carried in the vest-pocket.

In Bilious Disorders, Sick Headaches, Constipation, Indigestion, Dizziness, or for breaking up sudden attacks of Colds, Fevers, and Inflammation, "Pleasant Pellets" are prompt and effective in action. Peculiar in the way they're sold, too, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

SHEEHAN INDIGNANT.

New York's Lieutenant Governor After Newspaper Critics.

AN INVESTIGATION TO BE MADE.

The Judiciary Committee of the Senate has the Matter in Charge, and Will Probe Journalistic Insinuations of Corruption.

ALBANY, Feb. 14.—Just before the gavel fell in the senate yesterday Lieutenant Governor Sheehan addressed the senate as follows:

"Since the beginning of this session it seems to have been the settled policy of some correspondents representing certain New York journals to misrepresent, pervert the truth and to deliberately lie with reference to your presiding officer. He has without complaint submitted to these calumnies, believing that personal rancor and dislike would soon disappear before the apparent justice and cowardice of the attacks. But the height of these calumnies was reached this morning when, for the purpose of influencing and prejudging the minds of senators, certain of these papers published sensational and baseless charges connected with certain proposed Buffalo legislation, insinuating in a most cowardly and contemptible manner that he was attempting improperly to influence senators on this question.

"There are honorable exceptions to this rule, among them the representatives of some of New York's leading journals, and the rural papers as well, and I want to pay publicly my respects to those honorable reporters who record in their journals the proceedings of this body impartially and truthfully.

"Finally, I want to characterize in the strongest possible manner as false, untrue and venomous all those articles which charge me directly or indirectly with having in any improper manner attempted to influence or prejudice the judgment of senators or members on this or any other subject."

When Mr. Sheehan finished there was silence for a moment, and then Senator O'Connor arose and said:

"I agree with what the president has said, and it also seems that senators upon this floor might make the same complaint. There are none of us who object to honest criticism. I object to the cowardly sneak who has no basis for the charges he makes. How much are we going to submit to? Are we going to permit men who are on this floor by the courtesy of this body to insult its presiding officer and impugn the motives of our colleagues? I believe the time has come for members of this body to assert themselves. I move this matter be referred to the Judiciary committee, with power to take such action in the premises that it think meet and fit, and to advise some way to protect the members of this body from attacks of this kind."

The motion of Senator O'Connor was adopted. At the hearing before the senate Judiciary committee Lieutenant Governor Sheehan appeared to give his reasons for attacking the newspaper press. He read the head lines of articles in certain New York papers declaring that money was to be used by him to defame the Buffalo bill.

"If," he continued, "the charges are true my place is not here before this committee, but before a court of impeachment. I have no quarrel with newspaper men, but they seem to have a serious quarrel with me. It is time for the senate to make an example of the people who formulate these charges without any basis."

At today's session the Judiciary committee presented a resolution allowing them to investigate all phases of the question. The resolution was passed.

A tramp escaped with him.

Guichard was elected president of the board.

Shot His Wife and Child.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 14.—Dr. Duestrow walked into a police station last evening and surrendered himself, stating that he had accidentally shot his wife. He refused to make any further statement. It was learned later that the doctor had shot both his wife and 5-year-old boy. The child was killed, but the wife is still alive. Dr. Duestrow is a son of the late Louis Duestrow, the Granite mountain millionaire. It is surmised that young Duestrow, who had been separated from his wife, entered the house with the intention of taking away the child, and, meeting with opposition, shot both mother and child. Mrs. Duestrow cannot recover.

She Kissed a Murderer.

DUNQUEEN, Pa., Feb. 14.—Mrs. May Fanning, a widow employed in the sheriff's office, was dismissed for publicly kissing a murderer. He was brought here to testify for Haley. As he was passing from the court room to the jail Mrs. Fanning handed him a bank note and a basket of fruit and tenderly kissed him. In the bottom of the basket was found a note "Dear Hugh," telling him that he had a friend who could never forsake him, and signed "Your Loving May."

An Unknown Vessel Lost.

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 14.—A letter received here from Miss Surpris, of the schooner Josephine, which left this city early in December last, tells of the loss of an unknown vessel about 600 miles at sea, on route for Honolulu. The letter gives no description of her nor the exact place where she sank. The unknown vessel was seen to fly rockets, signaling that she was in distress. The Josephine was immediately started to her rescue, but before she could reach the vessel she had sunk, and all those on board were lost.

Rode Through the Hurricane.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Feb. 14.—The steamer Roanoke arrived after a terrible voyage through the hurricane from Milwaukee. As the spray dashed over her decks it froze, and when the Roanoke arrived she was covered with tons of ice. Her sties, decks, cabins and even the pilot house windows had ice coverings several inches thick. During the height of the storm it was hazardous to venture on the deck, and there were several narrow escapes from being washed overboard. The vessel was not injured.

HEROIC LIFE SAVERS.

Their Attempts to Rescue the Crew of a Wrecked Schooner.

A DAY OF FRUITLESS EFFORTS.

Again and Again the Rescuers Put Off to the Vessel, Only to be Driven Back by the Heavy Sea—The Men Finally Rescued.

SCITUATE, Mass., Feb. 14.—The three masted schooner Mianic Rowan, Captain St. John, of Bridgeport, Conn., with 1,100 tons of Cumberland valley coal, from Baltimore, for the West End Street Railway company, of Boston, went ashore of the second cliff at Ocheidate yesterday, and she lies in a very dangerous position.

All day long the crews of the Massachusetts Humane society lifeboats and the United States lifeboat at fourth cliff tried to rescue the crew of the schooner. The vessel was first seen off the first cliff about 7 in the morning. She had anchored during the night to prevent her going ashore, but the heavy north-east gale caused her to drag her anchor, and she was swept in upon the cliff. She struck about 11 o'clock.

The crews of both the life saving stations were summoned, but it was not until noon that the first line was fired across the bow of the schooner. The line fell far short, and the next half dozen lines also fell short or were hopelessly snarled. Then one from the mortar of the government station went across the vessel, between the fore and main masts. The crew seized it and made it fast to the foremast, but it got fouled and was rendered useless. The men were constantly washing across the vessel at this time.

Half a dozen of the crew were in the rigging, and the captain himself tied up in blankets, was securely lashed in the main shrouds. From appearances it was believed that he had been injured, and this proved to be the fact. About noon Captain Stanley, of the government lifeboat, decided to attempt to rescue the crew in his boat. He put off with a crew of ten, but was unable to get within a hundred yards of the vessel. The heavy wind and current, combined with the awful sea, drove the boat off, and it was forced to return.

An hour later Captain John Smith, of the Humane society's boat, which had been dragged two miles over the cliffs, set out to make a second attempt; but he met with as little success. About 6:30 p. m. the government boat again put off through the surf. After a perilous passage, in which the boat was several times half filled with water, it got under the bow of the schooner, and preparation was made to get the crew into it.

Captain St. John, who the crew of the schooner said had broken his leg, was lowered by a rope over the side. A line from the lifeboat had also been made fast to him. But when he was almost within reach of the men in the boat the vessel's crew refused to let go their end of the line, and pulled the captain back on board again. Just then a heavy sea swept the boat away. She struggled to get back alongside, but the crew of the schooner made no further attempt to get into it. The lifeboat then returned to the beach.

This morning the sea had somewhat abated, and the men were brought ashore. It is feared, however, that the vessel cannot be saved.

A Successful Rescuer.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 14.—Receiver George Wilkinson, who has been engaged since 1871 in winding up the affairs of the Newark Savings Institution, which failed in that year, has announced that there will be another small dividend payable to depositors within a short time. When the bank failed there were a few assets in sight, but the receiver has paid one hundred cents on the dollar, and the next dividend will be a portion of the interest which would have been paid depositors had the bank not failed.

HE COMMITTED SUICIDE!

The Cause and Its Lesson.

Why did he commit suicide? Oh! for the same reason that thousands of others are on the verge of the same sin, or in immediate danger of insanity, paralysis, idleness, or some other equally unfortunate result of an nervous ailment. He knew he was afflicted with a nervous disorder, but was careless, apparently indifferent to the outcome, or he may have lessened his chances for recovery by treating with physicians who had little or no knowledge of such affections, or by deluging himself with worthless so-called remedies. His case was a sad one, but no worse than that of any other nervous sufferer, who has nervous or sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, irritability, melancholy, failing memory, hot flashes, fainting, sleeplessness, nervous dyspepsia, sexual debility, epilepsy, etc. The same or similar consequences are likely to result to any one who has any of these advance symptoms of an awful end. Do not hesitate in getting rid of them by intelligent treatment. Dr. Franklin Miles, the celebrated specialist, has studied nervous diseases over 25 years, and has discovered the only reliable remedy for them. Thousands of voluntary testimonials prove the virtues of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

Alonzo Barker, of Clinton, N. Y., writes: "I was so afflicted with extreme nervousness that I was on the verge of insanity. My hands trembled as I could scarcely hold a pen. I used twelve bottles of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and was cured. It is with pleasure I recommend this wonderful remedy for nervous troubles."

"I had been a great sufferer from chronic headache until I began, about four months ago, to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Pills, since which time I have not had a headache. Several of my friends are using Dr. Miles' Restorative, and find them, as I did, to be more than you claim for them."—Mrs. Mary Kister, Los Angeles, Cal.

W. H. Capwell, Editor Tribune, Piquette, Pa., writes: "My wife was cured of sick headache in many years standing by the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. She has recommended it to her friends, and they all praise it highly."
