MINE SPIES.

A mine official stated the other day that, having received a notice that one of the collieries was not respecting the mine laws so far as it applied to hoisting men on the cages, he went to the mine one afternoon and watched at the top of the shaft to see how many men would come up on each cage at quitting time. The official says he refused to allow anyone to descend until some of the cages could be hoisted, so that the men at the bottom of the shaft could not be notified that there was a watch above. Notwithstanding this vigilance a stable man, after several unsuccessful efforts, succeeded in getting down the mine by a roundabout course and put the men at the bottom of the shaft on their guard. The official concluded his statement with the declaration that he would not undertake to play detective The prisoner, according to the police, un-again. GET THE VOTE OUT.

Inasmuch as the approaching election, so far as it relates to the state, is a special one, it becomes necessary to summon all Republicans to their post of duty and warn them against discovered the post of duty and warn them against discovered the original Narrow Gusge company and the city that the rate should give special elections. It is important that Mr. Grow's majority shall not fall below that of the Republican party in this state last November. In the name of the party they love, and for the sake of the unemployed laborers who are in want and suffering throughout the state, every Republican should exert himself to get out the vote of his party on election day, in order that, by the emphatic protest of Pennsylvania, we may compel the Democratic party to stop their effort to destroy our indusbrice by the passage of the Wilson bill.

He was born of French parents in Harociona, Spain, on Sept. 30, 1872. He recently lived in London, where the police knew him to be an anarchist.

Emile Henry is a brother of Fortune Henry, who is now undergoing a term of imprisonment at Clairvaux for inciting murder. Their father was a member of the Commune, and was sentenced to death in Contumacian for being absent from in Contumacian for being absent from court when his trial was called. He had fled the country, and afterwards died in Spain. The anarchist Sebastian Faure, Vaillant's friend, was at Clairvaux at the same time Fortune Henry, over whom Faure had great influence, was serving his time. Faure used to gather around him the anarchist prisoners and harangue them.
Inspector Duchatel, referring to an in terview with Henry yesterday, said:
"Henry remarked that he alone was responsible for the explosion in the cafe be-peath the Hotel Terminus, adding that Vaillant was a child to put nails in his bomb in order to blow up the bourgeois. Henry also said that there was better material than that to be had, and he was sur-prised that his bomb did not have more effect than it did."

Henry is guarded by two detectives, who have instructions, according to the French ustom, to endeavor to induce the prisoner to talk.

The prefect of police had a two hours' conference with the minister of the interior, and it is reported that the police official mentioned has received search advices from the police department of London to the effect that the explosion at the Hotel Terminus was only part of a scheme which Henry and certain of his companions had arranged before leaving London. It was the intention of Henry and his accomplices, according to the London advices, to commit as many outrages as possible, and it is believed that the prisoner's associates will be heard from in some manner before long.

The police of this city are engaged in an active search for Menry's fellow conspirators. The police took another photograph of Henry, which shows him to have short, stiff hair, restless eyes and a youthful face. with three other anarchists, and the London police assert that they have information which leads them to believe that Hunry and his accomplices, previous to leaving England, had planned, among other outrages outlined, to cause a terrible explosion in the Parls Opera house, which was to include, in addition to the tinguished the electric lights.

It was stated in the lobbies of the cham-ber of deputies that the police who have been on the trail of Henry's fellow con-spirators are now close upon them, and that their arrest within a very short time
