David Gorman and James Russell, of the First ward, played five games of checkers yesterday afternoon for five dollars a side. Gorman won three of the games and took the stakes.

John Lewis, of Wm. Penn, and David Owens, of Shenandoah, drove to town in a sleigh yesterday and left the horse standing in front of the Lehigh Valley depot. The animal took fright and ran a mad pace down Centre street. Oscar Lutz, the driver, followed with one of his fast horses and overtook the runaway, but every time the horse would turn from him, the animal continued on Centre street to the P. & R. railroad crossing and narrowly missed dashing into a passing train. Lutz followed the runaway on foot and finally overtook it at the railroad bridge near St. Nicholas. The horse's legs were dangling between the rails. Lutz and others succeeded, with the aid of planks, in getting the animal out of the trap. An examination showed that the horse was but slightly injured and Lutz drove it back to Mahanoy City and put it in his stable, where it was cared for until claimed by the young man.

A case came up before Justice May in which a West Centre street jeweler named J. Rosenstein is defendant. It is against the plaintiff, L. Rosenstein, a well known jeweler of St. Nicholas, place of business and learning that both came from the same European country, struck up a friendship at once. Rosenstein was royally entertained and plenty of beer made him quite communicative.

During the evening Rosenstein accused him, and for a few minutes and brought an affidavit with a warrant for Rosenstein's arrest on the charge of peddling without a license. Then Rosenstein was told that the charge was a serious one, and that he would be liable to long imprisonment unless he would give Steinberg $50. The peddler, having little knowledge of the law, and almost no command of the English tongue, reluctantly complied. Steinberg then withdrew the charge and dismissed the officer. A day or so after Rosenstein, with some Shenandoah friends, called upon Steinberg and requested a return of the money. The jeweler refused, but upon being threatened with arrest, and he had spent most of the $50 and begged off, promising to make restitution this morning, which he did and the case against him was withdrawn.

A WARNING.

Patrons of Lotteries to be Prosecuted by the Government. The Post Office Department has at last awakened to the necessity of crushing the monster Iniquities, lotteries, by the prosecution of those who participate in them as well as those who conduct them.

By direction of the Postmaster General, Fourth Assistant Maxwell will soon issue instructions to all Post Office Inspectors to prosecute patrons of the lottery companies. It will be impossible, of course, to prosecute all, but it is expected that the prosecution of some of them will suppress the practice to some extent.

Assistant Attorney General Thomas has said: "The man who participates in a lottery is just as guilty as are the operators. They are using the mails for lottery purposes, and therefore subject themselves to the prescribed punishment. Accordingly, all our inspectors will be instructed to make cases against them."

There is a general impression that those who participate in the lottery are not guilty, but this is erroneous. The appreciation by these people that they are violating the law in this way might go far toward suppressing lotteries.

Methods Party. The home of Letter Carrier Kehler, on North Jardin street, was a scene of much merriment last evening, the occasion being the celebration of the anniversary of Mr. Kehler's son, William. Among those who took part in the festivities were Mary and Sarah Jones, Hannah Becker, Hattie Seibert, Nellie Watkins, Bertha Swindt, Ethel Link, Edna Weidman, Jennie Bogenbach, Margaret Snyder, Gertrude Schwenker, George Yost, Edward and Harry Shamus, John Weider, Charles Seibert, Clarence Hower, James Meekle, Henry Gise, William E. Hughes, Jacob Anspach, Willie, Ralph, Raymond Warren, John and Walter Kehler, Ralph and Walter Hassler, John and Earl Klauer, Arthur Brown and Roy Hess.

Protection to Letter Carriers. An important bill is now before Congress for the better protection of letter carriers, which is likely to pass and become a law. It provides that no letter carrier shall be recommended for removal until after written charges have been made against him, publicly examined into, and reviewed. The bill does not hamper the Postmaster General; it simply provides that he shall have the facts before him when he makes a decision. If this becomes a law, no postmaster can secure the dismissal of carriers for personal or political reasons on charges that will not bear the light of day.

A Way to Get Nearer. We all admire the beautiful hymn "Nearer My God to Thee." Now if you will take a little of this potent, a sack of flour and a big pinch of yeast to some poor family, who are suffering for the necessities of life, it will bring you nearer God than all the spiritual songs you can sing for the next six months. The songs are all right and exert a good influence, but when mixed with a charitable deed, the combination gives much peaceful rest to the conscience.

DELICATE OPERATION.

Skin Grafting by Superintendent Huddle and His Assistants. A very delicate surgical operation was performed at the State Hospital at Fountain Springs, Wednesday afternoon, and one in which heroic measures were adopted to secure the desired end, the taking of over five hundred particles of healthy tissue from the arms of four gentlemen who had volunteered their aid to a suffering fellow man.

The operation was performed on Jeremiah W. Huling, aged 40 years and a resident of Schuylkill Haven, who was injured in the Philadelphia and Reading railroad yards at Schuylkill Haven last September while in the act of making a coupling. His trousers were caught in a splinter from the rail, and he was held until the train struck him down, and the flesh was stripped from his right limb, from the hip to the ankle, causing an awful wound.

Huling recovered the strength of the limb, but the flesh would not grow over a chronic ulcer. Wednesday was fixed for an operation known as skin grafting and on that day Dr. C. Lenker, Schuylkill Haven, Huling's family physician, went to the hospital, accompanied by J. A. Bowen, Frank Weber, F. A. Buckley, Lewis Bitzer and Elias Reed, five friends of the Huling family.
